Imitating Birds.
How to Make Money.
To Honor Man o' War.
Steam From Mercury.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE Curtiss and Wright airplane companies unite, with some others, in a $70,000,000 merger.

This air combination, next in size to the National City Bank's "United Aircraft," organized by Charles Mitchell, seeks to divide the field of flying with the big bank's company.

THERE will, however, be plenty of chance for the little man.

An air line is not like a railroad line. The air is open. Road bed costs nothing. There can be no monopoly of terminals or of air rights without the connivance of government, which the people would not tolerate.

ABOVE all, there can be no monopoly of ideas.

The flying machine of today is far from perfection. It is merely an imitation of a bird. Science does not imitate, it originates.

The United States has ordered the construction of a plane which is one great wing, no body, all power in the wing itself.

A BIRD requires a body, to eat, think, lay eggs, and perpetuate its species.

But it is not necessary to imitate the bird's body in a flying machine, any more than it was necessary to put "dashboards" on the first automobiles, as many manufacturers did.

A little man, with a big idea, might make more out of flying than the two big flying companies combined.

THERE are various ways of making money.

For instance, Henry Ford bought a little railroad, called "a junk road" by railroad men.

He paid about $5,000,000 for it, and made it earn $1,000,000 a year.

HOW did he do it? By squeezing down wages, economizing on the road? No! He inaugurated high wages among his men, gave them a chance to buy certificates that have been paying them 12 per cent annually. He made other railroads hate him, and fight him. But that didn't worry him.

FORD is now selling his road to the Pennsylvania. How much he makes is not known, but he didn't lose anything. His profit probably in the neighborhood of $20,000,000. And the Pennsylvania, ably managed, will add a good profit to that.

ADMIRERS of the great race horse, Man O'War, propose a bronze statue of him, life size, to be erected on Churchill Downs, where the Kentucky Derby is run. Man o'War deserves the honor.

LEONARDO DA VINCI, made in wood, an equestrian statue of heroic size, never cast in bronze. It has long since gone to decay, probably. If that could be recreated from the original model, how many millions would it be worth, eclipsing, as it probably would, the world's greatest equestrian statue, Verro Cohio's Colleoni.

TURBINE and other engines may use mercury instead of water for steam power, according to scientists, with saving in coal, increase in energy.

It takes about 500 more degrees of heat to boil mercury than water. But once boiling, mercury, which weighs 13½ times as much as water, is much more efficient.

IT is very expensive, but can be used over and over. Mercury vapor is poisonous; steam from mercury does not wet steel.

The Hartford Electric Light Company renders a service to industry, experimenting, successfully, with this idea.

UNCLE SAM, who doesn't gamble, gets a nice rakeoff from the earnings of all Street speculators.

The end of the fiscal year, June 30, Secretary Mellon says, will show a government surplus of close to $200,000,000.

More than half of this surplus is income tax on stock exchange profits.

BOBBY JONES, amazing Georgian, continues to be wonderful. Yesterday, in open golf play he finished his last nine holes in 31, five under par.

That means a great deal to many, to whom the Einstein theory means little.

SOME years ago the late Cleveland H. Dodge, deeply religious, thought Princeton needed a statue of "A Christian Student." He ordered it, paid for it, and it was set up on a pedestal.

Some students evidently thought it was a good Christian, but a poor statue. Now it has been destroyed by a stick of dynamite, the early Christian, life size and his old-fashioned tight football breeches, blown to fragments.

NOT Columbus, or the ancient Scandinavian in his little boat, was first to land in America, by many thousands of years.

In Florida, mastodon bones and ancient stone scrapers and roughly shaped arrow heads, found near them, show that human beings appreciated the Florida climate and lived in Florida at least 25,000 years ago.

YOUNG women trying to get thin or keep thin by not eating enough, please observe that Marietta Millner, moving picture actress, is dead in Vienna. She was killed by "extreme dieting."

You teach your system not to absorb food and it may never learn again how to do it.

Plane Crashes

Secret Romance With Flier In Rival Ship Revealed as Girl Near Death Calls Him

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 28.—(AP.)—Tragedy and romance rode side by side today on the wings of disaster that broke in upon the friendly rivalry of a flight for a new endurance record.

Throughout the night two planes circled above the Long Island fields and then in the dawn one crashed and through the wreckage there was revealed the story of a secret romance.

In one plane, which went up two nights ago, were Mr. and Mrs. Martin Jensen and William Ulbrich, a professional pilot. In the other was Viola Gentry and Jack Ashcraft.

GIRL CALLS FOR ULBRICH

At 6:15 this morning the Ashcraft-Gentry plane crashed into a tree. Ashcraft was killed. Miss Gentry, hysterical in the wreckage, and critically injured, called over and over again for Bill Ulbrich.

It had been known she and Ulbrich were close friends, just as she was a close friend of the Jensens, but that the feeling between them was more than that was not known until, believing herself at death's door, she prayed to have him with her.

And then Ulbrich, who had seen the other plane disappear in a bank of clouds, effected communication with the flying field office by means of the radio telephone in his

WINGED FOOT GOLF CLUB, MAMORENECK, N. Y., June 28.—Al Espinosa and Gene Sarazen, great golfers both, were deadlocked at the head of the field in the national open golf championship today with a score of 142 strokes for two rounds of the classic event.

Sarazen followed his 71 of yesterday with another 71 this morning.

Espinosa replied with a 35-37—72, which with his 70 of the first round, brought him to the clubhouse in a dead heat with the Italian.

Walter Hagen, the perennial British champion, had started and also finished—finished with the round and virtually with the tournament. He took a 39-42—81 for one of his worst rounds of championship history and closed the day with an aggregate of 157.

GENE STARS ON GREENS

In some respects Espinosa's round was more meritorous than Sarazen's for the latter got home before the wind began to blow a gale which was late in the morning. Even with his early start Gene began to wobble in the wind on the late holes and only his putter kept him at the pace. Espinosa also was putting well, but an eight-footer on the eighteenth that was needed to give him the lead failed him by a split-inch.

Sarazen finished with a great exhibition of putting. Gene rolled in a 25-footer on the eighteenth for the birdie 3 that enabled him to crack par. This was the climax of a streak of six one-putt greens on the last seven holes. Altogether he took only 11 putts on

AUTO AFTER SKIDDING AND UPSETTING ON FORBES STREET

Two men are dead, a third is believed dying and three are in serious condition today as a result of the wreck of this car. It skidded on the wet street today at Forbes and Beeler curve, hitting two trees and overturning in Forbes street after crossing a lawn.

LOVERS LANE SCENE OF TRAGEDY

3 Bullets in Woman's Neck, Escort Seriously Wounded 5 Miles From Canonsburg

CANONSBURG, June 28.—Out in the long, shaded path known as Lover's Lane, near Van Eman station, five miles from Canonsburg, they found the bullet-pierced body of a young widow and the slumped form of a former coal and iron policeman today.

They found the body of Mrs. Edith Michales Johnston, 17, of Morgan, with three bullets in her neck and breast.

Within whispering distance was a coupe out of whose open door hung the head of John N. Farr, 35, of Vestaburg. He was rushed to Canonsburg Hospital, a bullet in his head, still living.

NOTE TELLS OF LOVE.

A note was found in Farr's coat, a note which indicated that a rejected love lay behind what the detectives felt was a murder and an attempted suicide.

"I'm sick and tired of everything," the note read, "and my trunk and everything are at Hotel Arlington, California, Pa.

"J. M. FARR."

The note was dated June 25, an indication that Farr had contemplated the act for days.

Washington County authorities learned that Farr and the girl were childhood sweethearts. Their romance of years was shattered when Edith rejected the coal and iron policeman's love for that of the young miner, who became her husband.

Farr disappeared from the scenes in which he pursued the girl, busied himself with policing the Vesta Coal Company property at Vestaburg.

SUCCESSFUL RIVAL DIES

Then he heard that the successful suitor had been killed in a mine accident.

Five days ago Farr reappeared in the company of the young widow. In those five days he again assumed the role of suitor.

Whether his love again was rejected remains, for the present at least, a mystery. Farr, in the hospital, hovers between life and death, too weak to supply the details of what happened in Lover's Lane last night.

Neighbors saw Farr's coupe park in the lane. They were not surprised for they had seen it happen countless times.

GIRL HEARS SHOTS.

Fifteen minutes later shots rattled through the air in rapid succession.

Dorothy Spicer, 14, in the Spicer home above the lane, heard.

"Mother," she shouted, "there's shooting down there."

Mrs. Spicer was unimpressed. She felt the shots came from the practice range of a nearby boys' camp.

The father, J. F. Spicer, returned to his home about 11 o'clock, saw the parked car.

Early today he arose for work. The car was still there. He walked the few paces that brought him alongside the machine and saw the body of Edith Johnston.

CYCLONE NEAR UNIONTOWN

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 28.—A cyclone, lasting one minute, hit Farmington, mountain hamlet 10 miles east of here, today, demolishing buildings, uprooting trees and blowing down poles. Damage is estimated at between $50,000 and $75,000.

The home of Clifton Coleman, in which the office of the Bell Telephone company was located, was virtually demolished. Mary Magee, operator, stuck to her switchboard while the rain poured upon her. She left her post after the storm felled wires and cut off all wire communication.

The store of Mrs. Sally Rush was unroofed. The service station of Roy Cable, was blown down, after being struck by lightning. The Rush homestead was badly damaged and a vacant dwelling was wrecked.

The storm cut a swath about 75 yards wide and a quarter of a mile long.

$150,000 LOSS AT KANE

KANE, Pa., June 28.—A storm of cyclonic proportions struck Kane at 6:15 a. m. today and in 20 minutes did damage roughly estimated at $150,000. Hundreds of trees were uprooted, many being blown upon roofs of dwelling houses and smashing porches. A dozen frame buildings used as garages were flattened, chimneys blown down and hundreds of windows broken. The fury of the storm was confined to a path two blocks wide, bounded by Biddle and Bayard street, and embracing an area of 12 blocks. Large store windows on Bayard street were shattered and merchandise ruined by the deluge of rain which accompanied the storm.

No serious injuries are reported, although several persons were cut by flying glass.

HAWKS BEGINS RETURN TRIP

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, LOS ANGELES, June 28.—(INS.)—Aiming to smash his own transcontinental nonstop flight record, Capt. Frank Hawks took off at 3:37 a. m. here today, pointing his slim Lockheed monoplane Texaco toward Roosevelt Field, L. I., his destination.

A report from Albuquerque, N. M., later stated Capt. Hawks' plane had passed over that place at 9:27 a. m.

Before entering the cab of his plane, Capt. Hawk said he hoped to accomplish the coast-to-coast air journey in about 15 hours.

The record he now holds is 18 hours and 22 minutes for a flight between Los Angeles and New York.

Sweden-U. S. Fliers Likely to Give Up

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, June 28.—(INS.)—The attempted flight of Capt. Albin Ahnberg and his two companions from Stockholm to New York, which was interrupted here by motor trouble more than a week ago, is now expected to be abandoned completely, it was said here. The fliers were bitterly disappointed when a defective propeller forced them to turn back to this port 45 minutes after they had hopped off for Greenland on the long-delayed second leg of their flight.

King Case Against 'Jakie' Klein Ends

Another chapter in the Citizens' League vice-booze crusade was completed today. "Jakie" Klein and "Dopey" Davis, alias Harry A. Meyer, were freed from an old charge of conspiracy to intimidate a government witness—William L. King—the league's departed executive secretary.

United States Attorney John D. Meyer, appearing before Federal Judge Nelson McVicar today, asked that an indictment of September 26, 1927, be quashed because the government lacked sufficient evidence to convict.

King charged that Kline gave him $300 to leave town and tried by "force, intimidation and threats" to prevent King from testifying. In other circles it was said King had received $20,000.

Rain Ends Drouth; Traffic Interrupted

The first heavy rain during June brought relief to withering farm crops, lawns and gardens today, but did some damage by washing and slowed up early morning traffic.

The rainfall, heaviest since May 19, was .23 of an inch in Pittsburgh proper and in Ingram reached 1.18 inch.

Tons of silt and debris washed from hillsides temporarily held up traffic in East street and Penn avenue district, and there was slight interruption of electric service in some districts.

GARBAGE FIRM ASKS TRIAL

William F. Hill, president of the American Reduction Company, minimizes the statement of City Controller Henry O. Evans that the company overcharged the city about $1,000,000 during the years 1921 to 1928, inclusive, for the disposal of garbage and rubbish under the cost-plus system.

EVANS' CHARGES

Evans had told Council yesterday that the reduction company had charged to operating costs the following items:

Donations, $12,000, including the cost of tickets for dinners to politicians, a box for baseball games at Forbes Field, a box for football games at Pitt Stadium, tickets for police benefits and picnics and Christmas cigars.

Advertising in programs and publications of numerous organizations, $11,000.

Radio set for an official of the company, $135.

Initiation fee, dues and tax for Hill's membership in the Duquesne Club.

Plant replacements, $276,456.

Rent, $148,999.

Salary of the late George Flinn for four years, $93,000.

TRIFLES, SAYS HILL

Hill has admitted some of the items were charged as operating costs, and that he was not sure of others, but that they were "just trifles" and not important when the period they covered was considered.

An unsigned open letter made public by the American Reduction Company states that Controller Evans weeks ago had notified the company of a preliminary report of an audit of the company's books which showed a large sum of money owed to the city.

The company suggested that auditors for the company work with the controller's auditors to determine whether the money represented items properly charged against the city, the letter stated.

The communication closed with this statement:

"In view of the fact that charges have been made reflecting upon the honor and good faith of the company, it demands that both in juctice to the company and the public, the charges be determined in open court."

President Hill refused today to amplify, interpret or comment on the letter.

He was asked if the demand "that the charges be determined in open court" meant the city would have to sue the company.

"You will have to see our attor-

Louis Spreckels, 62, Sugar Man, Dies

YONKERS, N. Y., June 28.—(AP.)—Louis Spreckels, 62, widely known sugar refiner and for many years general manager of the Federal Sugar Refining company in Yonkers, died today of a heart attack.

Jailed Constable Can't Do Work, Resigns

Constable Frank Hartz, of Neville Island, who has been in the Western Penitentiary since November, resigned today and Judge Thomas D. Carnahan immediately appointed Jacob J. Esau his successor.

Hartz explained that his confinement interfered with the performance of his duties. He, with Justice of the Peace C. J. Ranshaw and three other constables, were convicted of conspiracy to defraud.

REDS MAY FACE GRIMES TODAY

Provided he is able to accept the task, Burleigh Grimes will be on Fogarty Knoll this afternoon when the Pirates face the Reds in the third game of the series. Grimes has been on the hospital list with an ailing left side, but he wants to take his turn today, and Manager Bush is anxious to use him if he is in shape to work.

Burleigh will be after his twelfth victory of the season, in the event of his appearance. And he will be facing the only club in the league who has made him taste defeat. The last place Reds downed Grimes at Cincinnati in the "twilight" game of a doubleheader at Redland Field about 10 days ago.

The contest will be flavored by the appearance of Fred (Red) Lucas, star righthander of the Cincinnati staff, who owns nine victories in a row over the Oaklanders.

The Pirates won yesterday, 5 to 3, and it is fortunate that they did, for the Cubs also copped. The Bucs are less than a full game in front of the Bruins.

2 DIE, 4 HURT AS AUTO SKIDS

Two men are dead, a third is believed to be dying, and three more are in serious condition in Homeopathic Hospital as the result of an automobile crash at Forbes and Beeler streets at 5:20 a. m. today.

The dead were Patrick Walsh, 25, of 3234 Juliet street, employed in the laboratory of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, and William Good, 38, of 62 Wakefield street.

FATHER OF TWINS HURT

Dan Donahue, 36, of 3636 Frazier street, a paper hanger and father of nine children, is believed to be dying. Last Tuesday twins were born to Mrs. Donahue.

The others injured were James Herwood, 28, of 3438 Frazier street, a brakeman on the Monongahela Connecting Railroad; Francis Kearns, 30, a chauffeur, of 3419 Ward street, and William Welch, 33, a chauffeur, of 3526 Whitney street. All are suffering from probable fractures of the skull and crushed bodies. Welsh's wife underwent an operation in a local hospital yesterday. They have two small children.

SKIDS ON WET STREET

The accident occurred when the automobile, bearing the six men, and said to be running at high speed, skidded on the wet pavement in front of 5109 Forbes street. The point is on a wide curve, and regarded as dangerous.

Police learned that the car, after skidding, leaped over the curb, crashed into a tree on the lawn of the house, bounced against another tree and shot back into the street, where it turned over, pinning the victims under the wreckage.

Police of two stations were called to the scene. Walsh and Good were dead when taken from beneath the car. Donahue, barely breathing, was said at the hospital to be so seriously injured that it was doubtful if he could live through the day.

Dress Reformers Open War on Collar Button

By JOSEPH THOMAS.
International News Service.

LONDON, June 28.—War has been declared on the collar button. The future dress of man will be a tennis shirt, open at the neck, with sleeves rolled up; shorts, and except on the hottest days, a flannel jacket and woolen stockings.

In an effort to revolutionize man's dress, an organization has been formed here by an actor, an artist, a school teacher, three doctors and a high representative of the church. The organization is known as the "Men's Dress Reform Party."

Th object is to discuss the means whereby "men may reform their clothes with as much profit to their health and appearance as women have already achieved."

Dr. Alfred C. Jordan, secretary of the party, today thus explained the organization's aims:

"We want to make men's clothes less unhealthy and less cumbersome; men wear far too much.

"Perhaps the first thing to abolish is the collar button."

100,000 Children Whoop As Schools Close

More than 100,000 Pittsburgh boys and girls tossed their books into as many odd corners today as the schools of the city closed their doors for a two-months' vacation.

All day, following little social hours, meetings and fun programs, the school crowds whooped out of the 150 school buildings, cheered by the fact that there will be no more classes until September 3.

Of those who left, however, more than 1,500 will not return. Their public school days are over. They are the graduates who received diplomas from the 19 senior or junior high schools during the past week, and all of them have had commencements with the exception of Allegheny high, which will be held tonight.

The schools, according to Associate Supt. Ben G. Graham, have had a successful year with record-breaking attendance. The kindergarten had 6,820 children, elementary, 64,239; junior high, 9,395; senior high, 13,030; vocational, 15,054; special, 428; part time, 4,417.

$10 Fire Routs Two Families From Beds

A $10 fire routed six persons out of their beds today at 6238-40 Butler street.

A mattress in the cellar of a one-story frame double house caught fire. The residents, Mrs. Albert Sincox, and Mrs. Jacob Vilsack and her four daughters hurried to the street.

DRIVE AGAINST BLUE LAWS FAVORED AT BAR MEETING

OPEN SUNDAY PLEA WINS SUPPORT

Many Jurists and Lawyers Back Plan for Repeal Or Revision of Statutes

By HOWARD CASSIDY
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

BEDFORD SPRINGS, June 28.—The subject of modification or repeal of the ancient Pennsylvania "blue laws" of 1794, thrust before the Pennsylvania Bar Association at its thirty-fifth annual conference, has revealed many supporters of the movement among the jurists and lawyers from every county of Pennsylvania.

The subject was not considered through parliamentary objection and while it is uncertain whether a resolution will be presented before the conclusion of the conference tonight liberal members are discussing the advisability of formally bringing the question to the floor.

SMITH PLAN ADOPTED

A telegram received yesterday by George W. Pepper, president, from the National Association opposed to Blue Laws, asked the conference to go on record favoring modification or repeal of the laws of 1794. Pepper announced that the appeal could not be ignored and William Watson Smith, president of the Allegheny County Bar Association, offered a resolution to the effect that the association would properly entertain a specific resolution offered by any member looking to the alteration or repeal of existing laws, but that it deemed it inadvisable to make abstract declarations respecting any law or its enforcement. The resolution was adopted without any dissenting vote.

The association closed the business of its annual convention today by electing the following officers:

Bernard J. Meyers, Lancaster, president; Harold B. Beitler, Philadelphia, secretary, and Fidelity Philadelphia Trust Company, treasurer.

Zone vice presidents and executive committeemen were elected as follows:

First zone—J. C. Taylor, Delaware County, and Harold G. Knight, Montgomery.

Second—Daniel Kearchner, Schuylkill, and Fred B. Gernerd, Lehigh.

Third—John D. Faller, Cumberland, and D. Edward Long, Franklin.

Fourth—C. C. Lash, Northumberland, and Seth T. McCormick, Lycoming.

Fifth—Cornelius Camegys, Lackawanna, and Alonzo T. Searle, Wayne.

Sixth—Henry A. Cottam, Fayette, and R. H. Meloy, Washington.

Seventh—John L. Nesbit, Venango, and H. H. Rimer, Clarion.

CORRESPONDENTS SPEAK

Two Washington, D. C., lawyers and newspaper correspondents of prominence read papers before the conference last night. William Hard took as his topic "The Lawyer as Lobbyist" and the subject of Willmott Lewis was "The Lawyer as an Officer of Justice." United States Senator Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas, listed as a speaker, was unable to attend.

Last night Hard, while defending lobbying according to five rules, which he outlined, assailed class lobbying.

He declared that there are about 900 organized lobbies in Washington, and that they are generally legitimately employed. He attacked lobbying by anyone identified with either political party.

Action taken by the association yesterday embraced two important subjects. The conference unanimously adopted a report presented by George E. Alter, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the committee on civil law, for submission to the Legislature of a draft of an act giving broad authority to the Supreme Court for the promulgation of rules regulating the practice of law in the courts of the state in civil actions. Conflict between the Legislature and judiciary as to the regulation of practice is involved in the subject. The judiciary has assumed this authority reposes in it but legislative acknowledgment is desired. The Legislature has held regulation of practice is a matter of statute.

Approval to the proposal to make Pennsylvania a more popular state in which to incorporate and thrive in a corporate sense, was expressed by the association in adoption of a resolution by Franklin Spencer Edmonds, of Philadelphia, recommending to the Legislature the appointment of state commission to revise the corporate laws of the state.

MARION BOYD

"This is your country"—beautify it," is the slogan of Marion, 17, Detroit girl, and soon it will be the slogan of a national campaign by the Art Center of New York to beautify rural communities. It was selected in a contest sponsored by Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Law Meeting's Sidelights

BEDFORD SPRINGS, June 29.—Drop an "X" anywhere in this beautiful valley nestling peacefully between two mountain ridges and it marks the spot just vacated by two judges who wanted to discuss golf, interrupted by a former attorney general who wanted to discuss law, interrupted by a prospective candidate for governor who wanted to discuss politics.

BOOM FOR MACKEY

The halls are congested with potential candidates for governor. The candidacy of Mayor Harry A. Mackey, of Philadelphia, has been given substance in the gossip by the appearance of boxes of golf tees distributed by his friends here. The box bears the inscription, "Compliments of Harry A. Mackey, Mayor of Philadelphia," and each tee reminds the user, "Cheer for Philadelphia."

Others who have been mentioned in political speculation as gubernatorial timber include Attorney General Cyrus E. Woods, of Greensburg; Republican State Chairman Edward Martin, of Washington; Chief Justice Robert von Moschzisker, of the Supreme Court; Superior Court Justice Thomas J. Baldridge, of Hollidaysburg; District Attorney John Monaghan, of Philadelphia; Judge George W. Maxey, of Scranton; Judge Albert W. Johnson, of Lewisburg; Auditor General Charles A. Waters, of Philadelphia, and former Attorney General Francis Shunk Brown, of Philadelphia.

SCRATCH GOLFER

Attorney Richard C. Long, of Pittsburgh, who successfully wrestles with par on the championship Oakmont course, is acknoledged by the handicaps as the best of the legal array. He is the only scratch man in the tournament.

District Attorney John Monoghan, of Philadelphia, who has stirred politicians, police and the gentry without visible means of support, and Lemuel B. Schofield, director of public safety, who has been a target for the administration, are friendly and came here together. Monoghan is the general object of congratulation on the fact that yesterday his office disposed of the last murder case on the list and for the first time in 100 years or more, no murder case is awaiting trial. "Scarface" Al Capone and efforts to free him by a little-known writ form an interesting discussion.

Score Seized for Grilling Released After Police Fail In Marlow Murder Inquiry

By DAVID P. SENTNER,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Several angles of the vigorous investigation by Police Commissioner Grover Whalen into the slaying of Frank Marlow, Broadway racketeer, apparently ended in a blind alley at dawn today, when virtually all of 20 persons who had been rounded up for questioning during the night were released.

Those taken to headquarters included four prominent Boston sportsmen. They were Dan Carroll, prize fight manager; Eddie Mack, matchmaker of the Boston Stadium; Charles Solomon, and his brother, Chink.

300 ROUNDED UP

Hoping to clinch idenification of the two men who lured Marlow to his death, 300 detectives rounded up a telephone operator and 19 other persons.

The theory previously had been advanced that Marlow may have become involved in a feud with a group of Boston men as a result of the unexpected outcome of this bout.

Five persons with Marlow at his "last supper" were Wilson, "Boston Louie" Lewis, gambler; Al Seigel, Broadway dancer; Ignatius Coppa, restaurant owner, and "Mickie" Seiden, night club entertainer, who was in Marlow's room at the Victoria Hotel while he lay dying in the shadow of the tombstones of a cemetery on Flushing, Long Island.

DEATH CAR FOUND

After questioning the suspects, Police Commissioner Whalen announced that the death car had been found. It bore Massachusetts license plates.

New York again became the center of the investigation after Michael Rocco, known as "Mickey, the wise guy," was released in Boston on an alibi.

Storm Halts Ohio Endurance Flight

CLEVELAND, O., June 28.—(INS.)—A violent rainstorm halted the endurance flight attempt of the monoplane City of Cleveland at 1:40 a. m., today. The plane, piloted by Byron Newcomb and Roy Mitchell, had taken off at 7:16 p. m., last night.

Pilot Newcomb said he tried to remain aloft despite the storm, but that lightning blinded him. Preparations were rushed for a second attempt to break the endurance flight record today.

U. S. Society Women Ask Paris Divorces

PARIS, June 28.—(INS)—Two prominent American women filed suits for divorce in the Paris courts today.

One was Mrs. Albert Gould Jennings, Jr., born Bertha Bailey, who was married in Waukegan, Ill., October 1, 1924.

The other was Mrs. John Mills Sawyer, born Camille Foegeli, married in Paris May 30, 1910.

Both are prominent in New York society.

TRAFFIC, LIQUOR LAWS SNARE DIPLOMATS

Washington Police Report 37 Motor Code Arrests Among Foreign Legations

(Copyright, 1929, by International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Foreign diplomats, from an ambassador and ministers plenipotentiary down to ordinary attaches, were halted by police on the streets of the National Capital 37 times within recent years accused of driving automobile while drunk or other traffic violations, Maj. Henry G. Pratt, police superintendent, reported to the Senate today in response to a resolution of inquiry.

The police superintendent listed the diplomats whom his men had caught violating the traffic law. A few were halted more than once, Pratt reported, "by members of the police department and warned for operating automobiles in the District of Columbia while under the influence of liquor or other traffic violations."

AMBASSADOR NAMED

The most prominent name on the list was that of "Von Prittwitz" from the German embassy. The only member of the official German staff here by that name is Herr Frederich W. Von Prittwitz Und Gaffron, the German ambassador.

The foreign ministers listed by Pratt were Eduardo De Midina, the Bulgarian minister; Count Laszlo Szechenyi, the Hungarian minister, whose name appeared twice, and J. H. Van Royen, the minister from the Netherlands. Several counsellors and charge d'affaires also were named.

The police chief's report showed that but 14 diplomats were halted by the police for traffic law violations in the 11 years from 1917 to 1927 inclusive. Last year there were 13 diplomats halted, while in the first five months of this year the report showed a growing "crime wave" among the foreign representatives, with police forced to halt 10 violators of the traffic code.

OFFENSES NOT LISTED

The police superintendent did not cite which diplomats were caught driving while drunk and which violated other traffic laws. He simply lumped all the names under the generalization that they had been halted and warned for one offense or the other.

The report showed the Argentine embassy had the greatest number of traffic violators, it being listed four times. The three-time offenders were the Bulgarian, Hungarian, German and Bolivian legations. Those listed twice were the Cuban, Mexican and Persian embassies.

after having completed the nonstop flight from Roosevelt Field in 19 hours, 10 minutes and 23 seconds, almost five hours better than the time established by the late Capt. C. B. D. Collyer and the late Harry Tucker on an east to west cross-country flight.

The flier had planned to take off some time before midnight, but mechanical imperfections on his plane necessitated adjustments which delayed the hop.

The plane had 460 gallons of gasoline when it left the airport.

A large crowd of persons who tendered Capt. Hawks an enthusiastic ovation upon his record-breaking arrival from New York last night, had dwindled to a mere handful this morning.

LOS ANGELES, June 28.—(INS.)—The trip west was perfect, except for fog over the Pennsylvania mountains and in the vicinity of the Cajon Pass near Los Angeles, Capt. Hawks said on landing here.

Only once did anxiety assail him. That was when bumpy riding over the mountains shortly after the takeoff from New York caused gasoline to spill perilously close to the open exhaust pipes' spouting flames.

St. Louis but they caused no delay."

The trip here was made at elevations ranging from 5,000 up to 12,000 feet.

Two big trucks equipped with special pumps and gasoline strainers were put in operation after his landing and even before the motor was cool.

The flier's parents, Charles M. and Mrs. Hawks, hovered at his side to direct details of "refreshments."

UP 124 HOURS

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 28.—(INS.)—Owen Haugland and Charles Johnson, pilots of the Miss Minneapolis, out to establish a new endurance flight record, passed their one hundred twenty-fourth hour in the air this morning. Another contact was made and 100 gallons of gasoline and five gallons of oil were transferred.

Two Charleroi Boys Accused in Holdup

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 28.—(AP.)—Charges of robbery, grand larceny and vagrancy against Oliver Williams and Joseph Pohan, both 19, of Charleroi, Pa., were continued until next Wednesday when they were arraigned in police court here.

They were identified by police as two of a trio that held up and robbed a street car motorman of $34 last week. They said they had been hitch-hiking through several states.

plane. He was as hysterical as Miss Gentry had been and he pleaded and stormed and wept for a true report on what had happened to Miss Gentry.

RADIO TO GIRL'S BED

Pilots at the field told him there had been an accident and that Miss Gentry had broken an arm. He was so distracted they were afraid to tell of multiple other breaks, of cruel lacerations and of internal injuries that had made hospital physicians shake their heads and murmur of "a 50-50 chance." They said two arms were broken.

Ulbrich was promised, to quiet him, that a microphone would be run directly to Miss Gentry's bedside, that he might speak with her. Preparation were made to do this on the chance that in a lucid interval the woman flyer might be able to say a word—perhaps her last word, to the man she continued to call for in her semi-conscious moments.

Ulbrich lives near the flying field with his mother and for several months Miss Gentry had been staying with them.

She and Ulbrich were seen together often, at the fields and elsewhere, and they always were "Bill" and "Viola" to each other, but that was easily accounted for by the natural intimacy of persons in the same hazardous profession.

REFUELING SHIP ARRIVES

The Answer's refueling ship arrived at Roosevelt Field this afternoon from Hartford, Conn., where it had taken off at 8:45 a. m. The plane had been delayed by the fog.

Carl Dixon, Claude Kincaid and Joseph Baltrun, members of the crew of the refueling ship, and all close friends of Ashcraft, first learned of the accident to the Answer when they landed.

Dixon notified Ashcraft's parents in Kansas. Ashcraft's brother, Francis, was killed recently in Macon, Ga., in a similar airplane accident, Dixon said.

Ashcraft, who was at the controls in the forward part of the cabin, was killed instantly.

Nassau county policemen found The Answer's tanks were dry. At 5:50 a. m. the plane had circled over Roosevelt Field and dropped a note requesting that the refueling plane be sent aloft, saying they believed they had sufficient fuel to last them for two hours longer.

Miss Gentry was born 27 years ago in California. She had her first airplane ride in Florida in 1911. She was a licensed pilot.

Miss Gentry formerly was a cashier in a restaurant. She attracted attention early in 1926 by piloting a plane under the Brooklyn and Manhattan bridges over the East River in New York.

In 1928 she set an endurance solo record for women fliers by staying in the air over Roosevelt Field 6 hours and 37 seconds.

MACDONALD TO SUGGEST ARMS TALK

Washington Anticipates He Will Invite U. S. to Take Part in Conference

WASHINGTON, June 28.—(AP.)—An invitation by Prime Minister MacDonald to the United States for the latter's participation in a preliminary naval disarmament conference in London was regarded in American government circles as a possible outcome of the conversations now under way among the diplomatic representatives of the five principal naval powers in the British capital.

Although no invitation has been extended to the American government to take part in such a conference and the Hoover administration has not been sounded out formally on the subject, a Five Power conference during the summer on the political aspects of the naval armament reduction question, was looked upon as a probability.

STIMSON OPTIMISTIC

Secretary Stimson has declared he shares the optimism expressed by both Prime Minister MacDonald and Ambassador Dawes that some concrete result will be accomplished through their discussions, which have been going on in London since Mr. Dawes' arrival.

Japan's participation in such a conference is believed by officials to be assured in view of Premier Tanaka's recent declaration of his government's willingness to participate in any step looking toward further naval reduction.

While no comment has been made in official circles here regarding the attitude of the United States in the event of an invitation to such a conference, it is expected that this government would be willing to participate to the fullest extent.

CONFERENCE PRATICABLE

The consensus was that a conference of a preliminary nature in London could deal most readily with the technical aspects of the disarmament question. The technical phase will be dealt with at the next meeting of the League of Nation's preparatory disarmament commission, which probably will be called to meet in Geneva in September.

The new American naval disarmament "team" of Ambassadors Dawes and Gibson have been suggested as the probable delegates of this government to a conference, if called by Mr. MacDonald. It is possible, however, Ambassador Dawes might be the sole representative of the United States, as Ambassador Gibson probably may devote particular attention during the forthcoming months to the questions confronting the preparatory commission.

PILOTS KILLED IN CRACK-UP

It was said the plane was being flown by Lieut. Maxwell W. Balfour, accompanied by a mechanic.

SEEK VICTIM'S BODY

BEACH HAVEN, N. J., June 28.—(INS.)—While two men were recovering from injuries sustained yesterday afternoon when a Curtiss Flying Service seaplane dived into Barnegat Bay here, killing three others, coast guardsmen from the Bonds Station were still dragging the bay for the body of one of the dead.

Paul Micelli, 30, of 611 Fifty-ninth street, Brooklyn, the pilot, was reported not seriously hurt and recovering today at the Paul Kimball Hospital in Lakewood. Allison Price, Beach Haven electrician, 20, is in his home here, also on the road to recovery.

In the meantime, the bodies of Police Chief Frank B. Conklin and Harold Potts, both of Beach Haven, have been taken to the undertaking establishment of E. P. Jones, at Tuckerton, to await instructions from members of the families.

The body of Leslie Broom, 22, a member of the Beach Haven Yacht Club, still is missing.

Gould's 'Wine Worked Until Barrel Bulged'

ST. LOUIS, June 28.—(AP.)—United States Senator Arthur R. Gould, of dry Maine, expected some "fine wine" from a shipment of "cordial," he purchased from the Fresno Vineyard Company, of St. Louis, in 1927, according to a second letter he wrote the company which was made public here in connection with a law suit in Federal Court.

In his first letter, Gould, who the company contends was one of its customers, told of favoring a license for light wines and beer.

The second letter, dated two weeks after the first, acknowledged receipt of a shipment of cordial on May 27, 1927. "the cordial was in perfect condition," the senator wrote. "It was working quite lively," he said, "in fact the pressure was so great that the head of the keg bulged."

The letter thanked the company for "all this kindness," and added that "I know I shall have some fine wine out of this shipment."

Both letters were made public by counsel for the Colony Vintages Company, successor to the Fresno firm, along with testimonials from other customers, for use as a defense in a $100,000 breach of contract suit. eNither letter had been introduced in evidence today, but in Maine Senator Gould verified the correspondence.

Celebrate Golden Wedding By First Air Flight

Their first airplane flight marked the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Gillihand, of Calhoun Park Plan and was observed by more than 50 relatives and friends at their home on Wednesday.

The couple was married June 26, 1879, Mrs. Gillihand being the former Miss Margaret A. Roberts, of East Pittsburgh, then known as Brinton. They made their first flight at Bettis Field, accompanied by many of the guests who had gathered for the event at their home and that of their daughter, Mrs. I. C. Johnston, nearby.

Mr. Gillihand is a retired employe of the Carnegie Steel Company in Homestead, where the couple resided 40 years before moving to their present home. Among the guests attending the anniversary were seven persons who had witnessed the marriage 50 years ago. They were the Rev. and Mrs. William Lowry, of Evans City; Mrs. J. F. Roberts, Wilmerding; Mrs. M. M. Roberts, Homestead; J. C. Churchfield, Wilmerding, and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Church, Clinton, Ill. Floral gifts were received from the Ladies' Aid and the Sunday School class of the Homestead Methodist Episcopal Church among the many presents given the couple.

FRENCH SEEK DELAY IN WAR STOCK PAYMENT TO U. S.

PLEA FACES DENIAL IN AMERICA

More Time Possible Only If Mellon Debt Accord Is Ratified by August 1

PARIS, June 28.—(AP.)—The French government has opened negotiations with Washington with a view to postponing beyond August 1 maturity of the bill for $400,000,000 for war stocks sold to France when the American expeditionary forces pulled up stakes and went home.

A resolution, framed with consent of the government, authorizing this action, was adopted in the first hours of the morning by the Chamber of Deputies. The members of this body desired to have longer time in which to decide whether to ratify the French war debt settlement to the United States.

AUGUST 1 LIMIT

According to the Mellon-Beringer debt settlement, France must ratify this agreement before August 1 if the war stocks bill is to be included in its terms, otherwise this bill falls due on that date. Led by Franklin-Bouillon, who said this agreement was a knife at the throat of France, Parliament rebelled against the arrangement yesterday, and in a late night sitting obliged the government to ask Washington for postponement.

NO DELAY LIKELY

WASHINGTON, June 28.—(AP.)—The bill for the $400,000,000 war supplies debt of the French government to the United States due August 1 probably will be presented on that date unless the French Parliament ratifies the Mellon-Berenger agreement in the meanwhile.

In expressing this opinion, high administration circles said that they knew of no authority under which the Treasury could postpone collection of the debt except with the specific authorization of Congress. It was emphasized that the recent congressional resolution permitting the Treasury to postpone the collection of the $400,000,000 becomes effective only if the French Parliament ratifies the Mellon-Berenger agreement.

"DORA," COMPLACENT HORSE SEIZED IN HILL FOR DRAWING LIQUOR WAGON

Because mathematicians figured that "Dora" would eat more than she would bring at auction between now and the time she could be condemned for sale as a seizure by prohibition agents, her owner, George Low, Negro, 1604 Clark street, has been notified to get his horse. Agents appropriated "Dora" when they arrested George on charges of transporting liquor in the Hill district. Here under government care, "Dora" is fed—from a moonshine still!

GERMANS RIOT IN PROTEST OF TREATY

Versailles Pact Anniversary Sees Reichstag Pave Way For Ex-Kaiser to End Exile

BERLIN, June 28.—(AP.)—Fighting broke out between students and police today over a protest meeting against prohibition of demonstrations against the Versailles treaty.

The police fired a number of shots into the air to break up a meeting which students were holding in front of the Berlin University. The students then marched to the residence of President Von Hindenburg.

They chanted Hindenburg's name in unison. Police, using their clubs, dispersed the group.

KAISER CAN RETURN

The return of former Kaiser William to Germany from his place of exile in Doorn today had become a legal, though by no means a likely, possibility.

This development came last night on the eve of a nation-wide observance of the tenth anniversary of the signing of the Versailles treaty, with numerous organized protests against "the war guilt lie."

President Von Hindenburg himself headed the signatories to a statement which termed today "a day of mourning" and and rejected the Allied contention that Germany alone was responsible for the World War.

By a further coincidence it was the fifteenth anniversary of the assassination of the Austrian Archduke Ferdinand at Sarajevo.

LACKS TWO-THIRDS VOTE

While the nation was engaged in its protests against "The War Guilt Lie," it was faced with the new complication of the Reichstag's failure to prolong the present Defense of the Republic Act, one clause of which definitely bars the former Kaiser from German soil.

After riotous voting in the Reichstag last night the government measure in favor of prolongation received 268 votes while 166 were against it, but as a two-thirds majority was needed the bill failed and the present law will expire July 22.

There was little to indicate the former ruler might attempt to return to Germany, Carl Severing, Socialist minister of the interior, said he would present a revised form of the bill for consideration later, while there was nothing to show even among the former Kaiser's supporters that he would take advantage of the peculiar situation created by last night's vote.

Education will become compulsory for those who need it.

FARM BOARD ASPIRANT LIST CUT

Hundreds Eliminated as Hoover Reduces Preferred Group to Score of Names

WASHINGTON, June 28.—(AP.)—President Hoover is making very substantial progress in the selection of the eight members of the Federal Farm Board, having reduced the 400-odd nominations to a preferred list of around a score of names.

He offered a place to Alexander H. Legge, of Chicago, president of the International Harvester Company, whom he invited to Washington. Legge returned later to his home to determine whether he could so arrange his affairs as to accept the post.

EDITOR MENTIONED

Another whose appointment is regarded as certain is Carl Williams, of Oklahoma City, editor of the Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman. He might be considered as the representative of the cotton industry, as he long has been connected with the American Cotton Growers' Exchange.

Others on the preferred list are Arthur P. Knapp, of Lake Charles, La., who as a banker has had wide experience in financing the exportation of rice, one of the basic commodities specifically mentioned during consideration of the farm relief act. He was recommended by Senators Ransdell and Broussard, Democrats, Louisiana, as well as others.

CONSIDERS STONE

The President also is known to desire the services of James S. Stone, of Lexington, Ky., president of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Marketing Association. Stone was here several days ago conferring with the chief executive and is reported to have the matter under consideration.

While the name of F. B. Wells, of Minneapolis, vice president of F. H. Peavey & Co., grain dealers, has been repeatedly talked of for appointment, it was learned upon high authority that he is not now under consideration.

YOUTH, GIRL, 15, SLAIN IN PACT

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 28.—(AP.)—Leon Arentz, 21, and Genevieve Mummert, 15-year-old daughter of the owner of a general store at Two Taverns, five miles south of here, were dead today as the result of a shooting in which the police say the boy killed the girl and then committed suicide.

Her father, Ira Mummert, expressed the belief they had died in a death pact, and local authorities are inclined to accept this theory.

The bodies were found in Arentz' automobile parked along a road about a quarter of a mile from Two Taverns. Genevieve died as she was being rushed to a hospital. Shot between the eyes, the youth died almost instantly. Coroner Miller declared that the girl had been shot first by Arentz and then turned the gun on himself.

Tuesday night they drove to Chambersburg in a rented automobile and did not return until last night.

Foils Bunco Game, But Pays $10 to Save $200

MONESSEN, Pa., June 28.—Mrs. Fannie Couch, of Monessen, was offered $1,000 for $200.

A man and woman stopped at her door yesterday and told her they had just found $2,000 on her porch. A salesman, waiting for a street car, dropped it, they said.

The pair offered to split the money with her if Mrs. Couch would post $200 with them "in good faith."

Mrs. Couch secured the money and handed it over, but realized the pair might not be honest. She ran after them and made them return her $200. When she counted the money later, it was short $10.

ACTORS DENIED EQUITY VOTE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 28.—(AP.)—Frank Gillmore, president of Actors' Equity Association, announced today that he could "take no notice, under the constitution," of a petition presented Tuesday night by 33 actors and actresses of the film colony here. The petition requested, among other considerations, that the signers, all of whom were represented to be members of the association, be granted a voice in the conduct of Equity's campaign for an "Equity shop" in film productions.

The petition further asked that an executive committee be selected to work with Gillmore during the "present emergency," and asserted that Hollywood motion picture actors had been denied representation in the councils of the association.

Gillmore declared that only 11 of the 33 signers had a right to vote, and that "for various reasons, the remaining 22 signers could not be considered."

Today's development followed several days of activity by film players who were said to be opposed to Equity's demands, which were made on producing companies several weeks ago. These demands were that future contracts between players and producers must follow the form laid down by Equity, which stipulated that no member of the actors' association would be permitted to appear in any cast where non-members of Equity were employed. The producing companies refused to accept this dictum.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 28.—(INS.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was here today inspecting plans for the Lambert Field airport and surveying the proposed transcontinental air transport route. Col. Lindbergh said he expected to remain in St. Louis over the week-end. It is his first visit to the city of his legal residence since his marriage.

8 U. S. WOMEN AT COURT

LONDON, June 28.—(AP.)—The final royal court of the season was held last night in a blaze of crimson and golden splendor at Buckingham Palace. Once again there were American young women to make the bow to Queen Mary and again the new American ambassador, Gen. Charles G. Dawes, appeared in simple American evening dress in preference to the silk breeches of court etiquet.

It had been explained at the office of the Lord Chamberlain that the ambassador had obtained special dispensation to wear trousers, although his staff for the most part followed the regulation costume.

Eight American women were received. They were the Misses Annie E. Nourse, of Boston; Mary E. Riddle, of Tennessee; Elizabeth Stuart, of Cambridge, Mass., and Mistresses Ernest Dorbbitz, of Philadelphia; Walter Mangum, of South Carolina; Francis Neilson, of Chicago, John B. Seth, of Georgia, and Andrew Wheeler, of Philadelphia.

DRY FUND GOES FOR SURVEY

WASHINGTON, June 28.—(INS.)—The $50,000 which Congress appropriated for educational purposes concerning prohibition, and which some dry officers intended using to "sell" prohibition to the country, drinking and otherwise, isn't going to be devoted to furthering any high-powered sales campaign.

Instead Commissioner J. M. Doran, with the approval of the Treasury Department, has launched a general survey aimed at compilation of accurate statistics as to what the government, the states and municipalities actually have done about prohibition since the eighteenth amendment was put into the Constitution.

'Most of the $50,000 will be used that way," Dr. Doran explained. "Heretofore the bureau has been without adequate funds to compile really accurate statistical information and other data of enforcement, but now it becomes possible."

Only a small amount of the $50,000 so far has been used.

Following the ban placed by President Hoover on seeking to establish prohibition courses in the public schools, and the tabooing of propaganda by the Treasury, the prohibition bureau will not employ extensive poster campaigns and will not use the radio, moving pictures or lecture platforms to promote the dry cause.

Pair Held for Grand Jury As Fortune Tellers

J. B. Carpenter, of 7203 Idlewild street, and Mrs. Jennie M. Steiner, of 234 Emerson street, were held for the grand jury on charges of fortune telling, in Morals Court today.

"He told me my husband, who has been dead for 16 years, was going to leave a card game after quarreling about me," testified Mrs. Nellie McDonald, regarding a "reading" given her by Carpenter.

She and Mrs. Sarah McClanahan, also a policewoman, paid Carpenter $1.50 each for readings, she testified.

Carpenter, formerly a laundry foreman, is an astrologist and not a fortune teller, his attorney, Ralph Tannehill, informed Magistrate A. D. Brandon.

Mrs. Ida Forsyth, policewoman, testified that she had tried with success to induce Mrs. Steiner to accept less than $2 as a fee for telling her fortune.

"She told me Pitt and Tech professors paid as high as $5 and $10, placing the money in a Bible," Mrs. Forsyth testified.

Both defendants were released in $1,000 bail.

GARBAGE FIRM ASKS TRIAL IN COURT

Hill Calls Controller's Charges Trifles—Move to Arbitrate Claim Held Up

neys as to that," he answered.

George R. Wallace, of Wallace, Patterson & Co., the company's counsel, declined to discuss the matter.

CITY EMPLOYE BLAMED

Evans denied that any charges had been made that reflected on the honor and good faith of the company, but "if the company desires to have the question tried in open court, this method is perfectly satisfactory to me."

During his conference with Council yesterday, Evans said:

"I want to make it clear that these disclosures in no way cast any reflection on my predecessor in the controller's office.

"It is obvious, however, that the employe of this office whose duty it was to make the annual audit of the company's books failed in that duty."

Evans declined to name the employe, but it was learned last night that the controller has in his hands the resignation of H. S. Breitenstein, city statistician and chief accountant, who has been employed in the controller's office nearly 20 years.

The controller informed Council that he was also making an audit of the books of the Allegheny Garbage Company, which has the garbage and rubbish contract for the North Side districts. He said some debatable charges were apparent, but that they were not comparable in size with the American Reduction Company's accounts.

BOOKS DESTROYED

Evans explained that the audit of the Allegheny Garbage Company would not cover the period of the other audit, as "unfortunately, the company's books, prior to 1925 have been destroyed."

During the conference with Council, the controller explained he had agreed, subject to Council's approval, with the American Reduction Company to submit the entire list of disputed accounts to a judge of the court of Common Pleas to arbitrate. He suggested either Judge Ambrose B. Reid or Judge Elder W. Marshall.

On motion of R. J. Alderdice, Council asked Evans to present legislation at a special meeting at 10 a. m. tomorrow which will authorize the controller to continue the audit and to select a judge as arbitrator. The judge's decision is to be final and conclusive.

The current audit covers an eight-year period from 1921, during which the city paid the contractor $9,600,000. The agreement provided for the payment of a unit price per ton for the garbage and rubbish disposed of. It was stipulated that a profit of only $1.50 a ton would be allowed and that any excess should be returned to the city.

Council's appropriations for the garbage and rubbish account ranged from $1,157,00 in 1921, to $1,420,000 in 1928. The peak was reached in 1927, with an appropriation of $1,580,000.

DEMANDS OPEN COURT

The letter submitted yesterday to the Sun-Telegraph follows:

"Several weeks ago the city controller came to representatives of the American Reduction Company, stating that he had a preliminary report from the books of the American Reduction Company for the past eight years. The controller stated that the preliminary report showed that in his opinion the company owed the City of Pittsburgh a large sum of money, but that most of the items raised questions of judgment as to whether or not they were correctly allowed under the provisions of the contract; in others words, they were questions in regard to which there might be a legitimate difference of opinion.

"It was suggested that auditors for the company work in conjunction with the auditors for the controller, and furthermore it was suggested on the part of the controller that the officers of the company furnish complete information concerning certain items to satisfy the controller as to whether or not the items were properly chargeable to the city. This was readily agreed to.

"Accordingly, on last Sunday night, June 23, the controller gave to the company for the first time a copy of this preliminary report, and in the few days following the company has been working diligently studying the report and preparing the data which the controller requested.

"Every item shown in the preliminary report is taken from the books of the company which at all times were open to the controller and his predecessor, and were shown in the annual statement made to the city.

"In view of the fact, however, that charges have been made reflecting upon the honor and good faith of the company, it demands that both in justice to the company and the public, the charges be determined in open court."

DENIES SLUR ON FIRM

When his attention was called to the company's letter, Controller Evans issued this statement:

"I made no charges reflecting on the honor and good faith of the American Reduction Company, either in the formal statement I made or in my answer to questions of representatives of the press and Council and published in the newspapers.

"I have tried to settle matters in dispute without a law suit and by arbitration. If the company desires to have the question tried in open court, this method is perfectly satisfactory to me."

Garbage Expose Stirs City Officials

Most of the city officials available for interviews indorsed the efforts of Controller Henry Oliver Evans to obtain a refund of all money improperly charged to the cost of operations in the collection of garbage and rubbish.

Controller Evans claims that the city has been overcharged $1,000,000 for the collection of garbage.

Mayor Charles H. Kline, through his secretary, Frank L. Swaney, said: "I have no statement to make, as nothing has come to me officially."

James F. Malone, president of Council—"Council always has been anxious to keep down costs as well as having contractors render the very best service to the people. Information was brought to Council on several occasions that the garbage collection contract was not the kind of one that was conducive to low costs and good service. Many public hearings were held by Council. The president appointed a special committee last year, and out of that committee's work many changes were made in the 1929 contract, which we believe will work out much better than the contracts in existence up to the end of 1928.

"Information came to Council that the bookkeeping system used by the company was not a correct one, and money was provided by Council for an audit. The controller made the report of that audit yesterday, and Council renewed its desire to see that the city's interest was taken care of by telling the Controller that Council would pass the necessary legislation to provide an appropriation to carry on any proceedings that would bring back to the city every dollar that it is entitled to, regardless of what the amount may be."

WILL SUPPORT EVANS

Councilman Charles Anderson—"I have the utmost confidence that the Controller is doing the right thing, and I will support him in getting to the bottom of this affair. No doubt when the Controller presents the various items he questions as not properly charged at our meeting we can discuss them more intelligently. I have always been an agitator for reform in the city's garbage and rubbish disposal activities. As a matter of fact, it was the principal plank in my platform when I was first elected to Council."

Councilman Robert J. Alderdice—"I made the motion to give the Controller support in his efforts to obtain refunds of any money owed to the city by contractors employed for the disposal of garbage and rubbish. I believe the Controller is on the right track and will lend him every assistance."

Councilman Harry A. Little—"I am heartily in accord with Controller Evans' investigation to bring out all the facts that might insure a return to the city of money paid as a result of improper charges. I feel confident that the Controller's efforts will eventually stabilize conditions in the gabage and rubbish situation."

Councilman John S. Herron—"I was greatly surprised at the conditions revealed by Controller Evans and heartily support his efforts to obtain the maximum of refunds. I believe a satisfactory settlement will be effected in view of the fact that both principals have agreed to abide by the decision of a judge of Common Pleas Court who will be selected as absolute arbitrator of the amount to be returned to the city."

DEMANDS RESTITUTION

Councilman W. Y. English—"As one member of Council I intend to see to it that the interests of the citizens are protected and that full restitution shall be made of all money paid by the city as a result of improper charges."

Councilman P. J. McArdle—"I am in favor of the method proposed by Controller Evans as the one best calculated to effect the fullest restoration of all money due the city."

Dr. C. B. Maits, health director—"As director of the Department of Public Health, which department supervises the service rendered by the garbage and rubbish contractors, I am in hearty accord with the activities of the Controller in seeking a refund to the city of any money which is legally due under those past contracts of 1921 to 1928, inclusive.

"The 1929 contract for the removal of garbage and rubbish is totally different from those that were in force from the years 1921 to 1928, inclusive, the present contract being on a straight tonnage basis, the contractors receiving a set price for every ton of garbage and rubbish removed. The present contract eliminates the cost-plus feature of former years.

"I wish to emphasize that, after the Health Department executes the agreements with the contractors, it is concerned primarily with the enforcement of the garbage and rubbish removal service to the people of the city of Pittsburgh."

The new day wage is $4 a day. It formerly was $5. According to reports, the wage scale is not down to the minimum being paid in some parts of the district.

Sleeveless Dresses

Will Be the Smartest

And These Are Anniversary Priced!

A trip in the car? Then you'll need a little print ... one that won't show the dust, but will be cool as a cucumber. A polka-dot, perhaps, or an allover print in the medium-dark colors. Or are you playing tennis? Then, of course, a sleeveless silk crepe in white or a pastel shade ... often accented with color. Or perhaps you plan an afternoon at the club? Then by all means a plain or printed chiffon ... they're lovely in the soft summer colors ... sometimes with bertha collars and dipping hemline.

And there is this advantage to any dress you choose ... it will be smart all summer long ... and it is Anniversary priced. If you value your budget at all, you'll appreciate the savings. Women's and misses' sizes.

And listen! Tomorrow is the last day of the Anniversary!

"Save Old Ironsides" Plea Radio Feature Tonight

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

A PLEA to "Save Old Ironsides" will be broadcast in song and story from KDKA at 11:30 o'clock with stars from the Stanley and Enright theaters taking an active part.

"Speaking will be taboo" is a significant little note attached to the publicity and we know that this little act of discretion will do more to "Save Old Ironsides" than a lot of talking. Dick Powell and Charlie Melson will bring the full cast of "Vanities" and David Broudy's Orchestra.

Cousin Lora and Uncle Gimbee will say farewell to the Gimbee Family for the summer months in an extraordinary program from WCAE at 7:10 o'clock. These two have worked hard and patiently to bring joy into children's lives and they deserve a rest. More than the children will miss them, too, for the Gimbee Family has many adult listeners.

"STUDENT PRINCE"

We look forward to the Mary and Bob broadcast at 9 o'clock from WJAS. A large chorus will sing, accompanied by a symphony orchestra.

Jessica Dragonette, Colin O'More and the Philco cast again will be heard in Romber's "Student Prince" at 9:30 o'clock through KDKA.

Dance of the Camorrist from "Jewels of the Madonna" will be put on the air by WCAE at 8 p. m. during the Cities Service Hour. "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" will be sung by a quartet.

WOMEN SHOULD CHECK HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Women who are at the changing time of life, who have dizzy spells, thumping and pounding in the head, shortness of breath, sleeplessness and nervousness, have symptoms of high blood pressure, a dangerous condition that should have immediate condition.

Norma, a physician's prescription, reduces high blood pressure so surely it is sold under a guarantee of money back if you are not satisfied. Often only one bottle brings great relief. Ask for Norma at Dow Drug Co., or any drug store and rid yourself of the distressing symptoms of high blood pressure.

McCREERY'S SPRING FASHION CLEARANCE

Saturday, June 29th

McCreery's is essentially a Fashion Store. Every McCreery dress, or coat is an important and new fashion. Our policy does not allow anything that is not new to remain here long. No matter if it be desirable in every way, it must go to make place for new fashions that are arriving daily.

This is the reason why McCreery's have reduced for clearance these coats, dresses and other fashion merchandise. They are wearable, they are fashionable, they are desirable. And tomorrow they are offered at decidedly less than their original prices.

STORE BANDITS HOLD UP BOY

"Jimmy" Wagner, 10, of 720 Ivy street, had an encounter with hold-up men shortly after noon today and felt a revolver pressed against his stomach.

He complied with the holdup man's command and retired to the cellar of the P. H. Butler store, at 5523 Walnut street, with the manager, M. F. Plunkett, and Viola Cleland, 17, of 209 North Highland avenue.

Three bandits had alighted from an auto in front of the store, leaving one in charge of the steering wheel. Entering the store they ordered Plunkett, Miss Cleland and "Jimmy," the errand boy, to the rear.

"Jimmy" made a dash for the door, but one of the men stopped him, pressed a revolver against his stomach and ordered him back. Then the three store employes were marched to the cellar and instructed to keep quiet. The cash register was rifled, but Manager Plunkett said he was unable to say how much cash was taken.

KLINE SILENT ON ENTERING RACE

Mayor Charles H. Kline today said he had made no reply to North Side politicians who petitioned him yesterday to enter a campaign for another term, except for a brief speech acknowledging the request.

The petition was signed by Dr. F. H. Frederick, president of the Civil Service Commission, and these ward chairmen: William Herd, John P. O'Donnell, Robert Murray, Justus Schroedel, Senator Morris Einstein, Police Magistrate E. M. Hough, Representatives S. J. Grenet, James Wettach, C. A. Michael and W. F. Standtlander, and George J. Schad, chairman of the County Tax Board.

Kline's friends declared that Joseph G. Armstrong, Republican county chairman and chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, would be in the Mayor's corner when W. L. Mellon begins conferences to determine the candidate the Republican organization would indorse in the primary election.

Schad and Schroedel are personal appointees of Armstrong.

COLORS SHOWN BY TELEVISION

NEW YORK, June 28.—(AP.)—Color television—another step of that infant of science—was demonstrated yesterday at the Bell Telephone laboratories, which devised the apparatus for the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The apparatus, except for the addition of special color mechanisms, was the same as that demonstrated three years ago in a wire and radio test between New York and Washington.

For the experiment the receiving and recording apparatus was set up in the auditorium of the Bell laboratories, but the system is subject to use over long-distance wire or radio circuits.

The difference between the color television apparatus and the regular television machine is merely the addition of three electric eyes, each transmitting a current corresponding to the amount of the natural color in the subject.

Before the three electric eyes in one end of the auditorium, a young woman stood holding various objects such as a glass of water, a colored ball and a pineapple.

3 ROBBERS BEAT AGED MAN

Beaten by three young holdup men when he attempted to resist them in his home late last night, Joseph Miller, 60, of Pangburn Hollow road, Forward township, received a severe bruise of the face and was robbed of $12.

Called to the door of his home, where he lives alone, about 11 o'clock, the aged man was held at bay at the point of a revolver. Then the robbers ransacked the house after obtaining the money from the victim's pocket.

A STYLISH AFTERNOON DRESS FOR MATURE FIGURES WITH SLENDER HIPS.

Cravat silk was used for this design, with facings of crepe in a matched shade. Silk and wool tweed, satin or moire are also suggested. Asymmetric lines are featured in this model. The pattern for this desirable model is cut in nine sizes: 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52 and 54 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 46-inch size will require six yards of 39-inch material. Little cheeks rosy with the bloom of health—

Delicious, chocolated Ex-Lax has helped to keep them so.

A LITTLE thing in itself! To the eye and tongue it's just a bit of delicious chocolate. But what a big thing it has turned out to be to keep the bloom of health on the cheeks of millions of little "Jims" and "Marys" all over the land.

Because it has qualities that make it ideal for children, many parents at first thought it was not for adults. But in home after home Ex-Lax has proved itself superior to harsh, nasty-tasting cathartics for young and old—it is sure and positive, only its effects are produced in a pleasant, modern way.

The laxative ingredient of Ex-Lax is an achievement of chemistry. It does not gripe, nor disturb digestion. It does not embarrass.

The chocolate with which this laxative is blended by the exclusive Ex-Lax process, is a perfect carrier, insuring uniform action and full effect.

Your druggist has Ex-Lax in two sizes—25c and 50c. Trial size 10c.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Nancy Hollenbeck, young, vibrant and beautiful, reluctantly drops her latest beau, Mat Tully, when her mother warns her against marrying a poor man "as she did." At the rich Craigs' house party, Nancy receives the attentions of Jack Beamer, handsome sportsman unhappily married. Nancy and Louise, her sister, are called home. Their rich Aunt Ellie has arrived. She promises the girls a trip to Yosemite.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VII.

JACK BEAMER telephoned twice in the next two days. Nancy talked to him for 20 minutes at a time, long secret conversations, her mouth close to the phone, the hand that held the receiver cold and moist.

"Who was it, Nancy?" mama wanted to know, as usual.

"Oh, just one of the boys."

That would not have been enough ordinarily, but what with waiting on Aunt Ellie, who had to have warm milk or an egg every two hours, and helping the girls get ready for Yosemite, mama wasn't quite herself.

Papa wasn't well, either. After that first long, roundabout talk with Aunt Ellie he seemed to sense the futility of expecting financial help from her. Every night after dinner he would make a pretense of looking over his mail. Bills. Dunning letters. The only mail he ever got except once in a while a lodge notice, or a thin, cheap envelope addressed in faded ink, probably another dun from one of his poor relations. But he hardly looked at them any more, and when Nancy wanted a pair of the new scarlet kid slippers to take with her on the trip he agreed without a murmur.

Mama worried a little over him, but gentlemen took bills seriously, and besides, something would turn up. His oil stock would begin to pay soon and the girls would be getting married.

The Whaley girl next door furnished her with more tangible worry. She was getting invitations the Hollenbeck girls were not. And who were the Whaleys? Nobody at all. Mama had snubbed Bertha Smith for the shopkeeper's daughter she was when they were girls, and turned up her aristocratic nose at the plodding Raymond Whaley, who wasn't even in society at all. And now Bertha Smith was Mrs. Raymond Whaley, living in the big house next door, with a daughter mentioned in the society columns nearly every day. It was too much. Mama was worried, and when she worried, she nagged:

"Louise, the Whaley girl is on the receiving list at Maj. Nutting's."

"Is she?"

"Yes, she is. It says here in the Herald, 'Miss Isabelle Whaley, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Arthur Whaley of Piedmont, will be one of the charming young girls who will——"

"Oh, spare us! What do I care what Isabelle Whaley does?"

"Louise! Mama won't have you talk like that. I don't understand why you girls weren't asked? Are you sure you have always been sweet to Mrs. Nutting? You know, dear, sometimes you're a little indifferent——"

"Oh, mama! It isn't that!"

"How do you know it isn't, my dear? And it isn't as though you were alone. Your actions reflect on Nancy. It hardly seems fair for your younger sister to have to suffer because you——"

"But, mama I haven't been rude to Mrs. Nutting. Good lord, she doesn't know I'm alive!"

"Louise! You mustn't talk like that to your mother. Why doesn't she want to know you? I'm sure my people are as good as hers. When I was a young girl no smart gathering would have been complete without me. It's true that your father's people are not . . . distinguished . . . but nobody knows them around here. It isn't like having a grandfather who kept a grocery store like poor Isabelle's. Who would think, to see Bertha Whaley in her mink coat now, that she wore dirty red plush—dirty, mind you, made out of an old table cloth or something when she was first married. I'm not one to wish anyone harm, but I often think, if people ever saw Dutchy Whaley with his dirty face, working for my father, around the stable in Fruitville. . . ."

Clickety, clack, Clickety, clack. Once mama's tongue got started on that subject there was no stopping it. Aunt Ellie, hands folded on her stomach, rocked and nodded. Louise sewed in frozen silence. She would have given anything in the world to get away from it all. To get out and make a place for herself in the workaday world. The world where nobody cared how pretty you were or how much money you had, provided you did your work efficiently and well. But how can you get out and carve a career for yourself when your mother's health is failing and you're needed at home?

In that mood she almost sympathized with Nancy. Love didn't last. Look at all the romances that ended in the divorce court. Jack Beamer had more money than he could spend, and he had a place in society as well. Head waiters scrambled when he approached. People liked him. His ranch in the fertile valley of the San Joaquin was one of the show places of the state. His yacht, the Swallow, won every regatta up and down the coast. His horses were international favorites. Sunday supplements from East to West knew him as a polo player.

It was even easy to overlook his marriage. It was notoriously a joke. They didn't even go to formal parties together any more. For years people had asked, "When are the Beamers going to Reno?"

Why shouldn't Nancy marry him if she wanted to?

But just when Louise would get that far in her thoughts and begin to picture Nancy secure, petted, pampered, the second Mrs. Beamer, another picture would form over the first one, blotting it out . . . Jack Beamer holding Nancy in his strong, thick arms, his broad back bent to lift her closer . . . Nancy, slim and white and strangely tragic as she had looked that night in the pale starlight when she and Mat had come upon them near the river. So she always ended by wanting to cry . . . no use pretending . . . it wasn't right, and nothing, not even Jack Beamer's money, could make it right.

Nancy wasn't herself, either. She wandered around with two bright red spots in her cheeks, listening for the telephone, watching for the post man, quarrelsome and restless as a caged cat.

"For Pete's sake, if we're going, why don't we go? What is Aunt Ellie waiting for? If I'd known we were going to wait around a week I'd have gone right back to the river. It'll be just like her not to go, after all!"

But slowly and surely, Aunt Ellie got ready to leave. Two of the best rooms at the Awahnee were reserved. Tickets were bought. A fat roll of greenbacks withdrawn from the bank. Her favorite prescriptions were filled, her traveling medicine case equipped with vari-colored pills. A bottle of pre-war whisky against snake bite. A case of mineral water to go on ahead. A last farewell to poor Uncle Joseph, round-faced and jolly despite his sufferings, as he lay on his narrow white bed at St. Francis' Hospital. A last poisonous look at the fresh looking nurse who was "specialing" him, and Aunt Ellie and the girls were on their way.

Mama waved a fondly tearful goodbye from the doorway; the taxi started. Aunt Ellie pointed a fat finger at the meter. "It was twenty-five cents before we went a quarter of a block. He can't cheat me. There goes his tip!"

They came into the valley at midday. It lay under the golden eye of the sun, in extravagant, unreal beauty. A turquoise sky without the faintest puff of cloud hung like a canopy overhead. A back-drop of mountains, picked out with the silvery threads of distant waterfalls; the deep green of distant forests, was like a stage setting for the rustic luxury of the most expensive hotel. Rivers rushed, clucking coolly over stones. Mountain meadows gleamed through trees. The great falls thundered; the sun made rainbows of their far-flung spray.

But Aunt Ellie Watson was not interested in scenery. She had come to the Yosemite to rock, and she made it very plain that she had brought the girls to rock with her.

Resentful but resigned, Lou sat beside her and said "Yes, Aunt Ellie," and "No, I don't think so, Aunt Ellie," while the old lady droned, "I didn't think much of the fish for lunch. At the prices they charge one would expect . . . mercy, was that a mosquito? I declare, if there's one around here for miles, it makes for me. . . . I wonder what your Uncle Joseph is up to? You needn't expect to get anything when he passes away; he will have it all spent on women. Did you see that nurse look at me? She knew I knew what she was up to. . . . Rheumatism, indeed! I'll show him!"

Nancy sat mute beside them, her slim hands crossed in her lap, dark eyes moodily scanning the crowds. After dinner they yawned in the lobby until 9 o'clock. Aunt Ellie put her ever lasting crochet in its black satin bag and plodded towards the elevator. "We might as well go too," Louise said. "We don't know anyone."

"Wait!" Nancy breathed. She was leaning forward, staring fixedly at a man who had just come in.

Aunt Fannie's Strategy — By DORCAS WEBSTER — Daily Short Story

I WAS much pleased at the prospect that Aunt Fannie was to take charge of our house while mother went away for a much-needed rest.

You see, Aunt Fannie is father's sister and a widow with a good deal of money, although she plans to get value received for all she spends. Aunt Fannie has traveled a good deal and has lovely clothes, and is what might be called decidedly sophisticated. So I looked forward to introducing her to my friends and sort of showing her off. Although she has visited us from time to time, her stays have been very brief, for she has lived mostly abroad for several years.

It was something of a surprise to me therefore to have her take just the place in our home and town which she did with scarcely a moment's delay. I'd rather expected that I would introduce her to some of our friends, but she remembered that she had met the president of the Hammond Woman's Club abroad, and everyone knows that anyone whom Mrs. Townsend takes in tow and approves socially, is accepted by everyone in the town of Oakwood.

So the first thing I knew, Aunt Fannie was right in the swing, and was even planning reciprocal hospitalities on her own account. I didn't mind at first, for my own friends came and went as usual, and Aunt Fannie was lovely to them, as indeed she is to everyone.

But there didn't seem just the opporunity for the jolly evenings our crowd had been accustomed to at our house, for Aunt Fannie always had friends running in, or she was going out, and then I had to prepare the refreshments and do all the work of making it pleasant for them myself.

Believe me I missed Mother! I was glad she was having a chance to get away and enjoy herself, but every single morning I looked at the calendar and counted the days until she would be likely to return.

Dick Warren and I had become pretty good friends, but his firm sent him on a South American trip in the interest of finding markets for their goods down there. I'll confess that I was disappointed that Dick hadn't proposed before he went away, for I was sure Dick cared about me, and once or twice I was almost positive he was on the point of telling me that he loved me, but something seemed to hold him back. And when he bid me good bye, it was just as he might bid any good pal of his, a somewhat casual farewell.

He had been gone about five months, and although I had heard from him once in a while, there seemed to be a restraint about his letters which I sensed instinctively.

He didn't even tell me he was coming home. I just heard from Betty Cain who works with me in a downtown office that she had seen him on the street and spoken to him. He had returned the day before.

It hurt just a little that he hadn't called me up, but I thought maybe he was planning to come over that evening and to give me a surprise.

Mother keeps no maid and Aunt Fannie saw no reason why we should change that program. So we did up the supper work together and put the kitchen in order. It is an attractive kitchen—all blue and white, with dainty little checked gingham curtains, and a table oilcloth with blue birds on it, and a white sink, and blue and white linoleum.

I slipped up to my room and put on a little pink dimity dress which I knew made me look young and girlish, for I proposed to be presentable if Dick should come.

When the door bell rang, I couldn't restrain my impatience. I literally flew to the front door—and there, to my disgust, stood Mr. and Mrs. Townsend and Judge and Mrs. Green. Judge Green is a special friend of father's.

All in a moment, the four callers and dad and Aunt Fannie were having a wonderful time, and I was just left out of things. I could have cried! The living room and dining room opened into each other in our apartment, and there would be no place to entertain Dick by ourselves if he came.

And come he did within the next half hour! He looked as handsome as a Greek god, for Dick is polished anyway and travel had improved him.

But Aunt Fannie was too much taken up with her own friends to see the situation. She was gracious to Dick, of course, and then what do you think she said? I never was so shocked in my whole life!

"Lucille," she remarked after Dick had been there about 10 minutes, "naturally you children are not interested in what we old people are talking about. Why don't you take that willow rocker out of the south bedroom into the kitchen, and you and Mr. Warren just go out there and have a nice time by yourselves? There's one easy chair there already, and I know you must have plenty to talk about."

You can imagine how mortified I was! In my wildest moments I couldn't visualize my mother sending the son of Senator Warren out to the kitchen to be entertained. But Aunt Fannie went right on talking and there was nothing for me to do but to act on her suggestion.

"Say," burst out Dick, "This is a peach of a kitchen. And, Lucille, you look like a rosebud in the daintiest kind of a setting!"

Dick looked at me intently for a moment.

"I didn't call you up," he said, "for I wanted to surprise you. Besides I have been out of town all day and just got in on that 8 o'clock express."

"Where did you eat your supper?" I inquired.

"Haven't had any," he said, "but that's no matter."

"Sit down in that chair," I ordered in my most important manner, for Dick was again my old pal and I was going to feed him.

And believe me, he did full justice to that lunch of cold chicken, salad, fruit, thin bread and butter, delicious coffee and fresh sponge cake which I sat before him.

"That's real cake," he remarked, helping himself to the second piece.

"I made it this morning before I went to the office," I informed him rather proudly.

Dick finished without another word. Then he leaned his elbows on the table.

"Lucille, I've a confession to make," he said soberly. "I love you. I've known that for a long time, but I'm going to be perfectly frank. Somehow or other I got it in my head that you were a good deal of a butterfly and not domestic. I knew I'd never be happy without a real homemaker as a wife, and so I—well, I took this trip to test myself out, and to find how much I'd miss you and what the homecoming would mean. I've found out, Lucille, and—I can't live without you."

When we heard Aunt Fannie and Dad bidding their guests good night, we went into the front room, where we told him the good news—at least Dick did, for suddenly I found I hadn't much to say.

Wildflowers

By Madge Geyer

IN the free, untrammeled areas of the countryside there are no prohibitive warnings. "Do not pick flowers,' and "Keep off the grass," are admonitions for only city dwellers. The lovely blossoms of the woods are for all.

There are wildflowers, too, in the garden of love—hardy little blossoms whose hearts beat fiercely with hope and anticipation. They watch the endless stream of passersby with luminous eyes which light up at a loving glance, a sympathetic word. Ever-watchful, ever waiting for Love's Selection, they lose neither hope nor desire.

And the little wildflowers in the garden of love need have no fear of drooping unseen. For while their more cherished sisters, the flowers that grow in cultivated soil, are seen and admired by the hordes attracted to the obvious, they, too, will have their day. For they will be seen only by the elect, only by those who appreciate the lily unadorned, the natural loveliness of a flower untouched.

Take heart, little wildflowers, for love is worth waiting and searching for. It comes but once in a lifetime, but when it does appear on the horizon you will understand why it was long in coming.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Ronald Creates Quite a Stir Among Girls At School.

"NOT the main entrance, Auntie Madge. Don't turn this corner. Keep right on a few feet. There! Do you see those tall gate posts? Turn right in there and draw up by the side of those parked cars. You'll be almost under my window then, for this is Senior Hall."

She could have said "This is Heaven!" in much the same tones, I was sure. We had heard enough during her junior year at Whitney of the traditions and privileges investing life in the building which housed the girls in their last year of school to know that she was realizing the fulfilment of a cherished dream.

The Brixton car had followed us in, and Marion scrambled to the ground, meeting Carolyn in an equally impetuous exit from the other car.

"Look, Carolyn!" she exclaimed. "There's my window, and there's Bob! And Mike, too. What a gyp! I'm not the first, after all. Hello, up there! Come down for a minute before I have to see Mrs. Barnes."

"Can't, for a few minutes," one of the girls leaning out of a second-story window returned. "But leave your traps down there. We'll help you tote them up after you've made your bow in front. When you go in pipe Dr. B.'s necktie. It's a hot baby."

"He hasn't the limelight all to himself," the other girl interrupted. Only her curly head showed above the sill and I guessed that she was not dressed for critical inspection by strangers. "Mrs. B. has the spiffiest new rig ever. Oh, I tell you, we're all dolled up for fair."

"The disrespectful little devils," Lillian murmured in my ear, but I had caught a distinct note of pride in both the girlish voices and knew that their comments were really a tribute of admiration to the man and woman at the head of Whitney. They would have been loyal to shabbiness, but they openly exulted in modish attire.

Something else I had noticed also and that was the low pitch of the voices of all the girls. Their tones were gay, unsubdued, but not shrill or loud. I doubted if they could have been heard many feet beyond my own car.

I had no opportunity to tell Lillian of my theory, however, for Marion came dancing back to the car, pulling Carolyn after her.

"Mums, I have a scheme," she said. "Let's you and Auntie Madge and me go round in front and see Mrs. B. I have to report I'm here, you know. And you can tell her how I want Carolyn for a roommate, and how she's here with her mother. Maybe, as she's going to be a senior, Mrs. B. would let her come in today. You never can tell what might happen."

"I think that's a very good idea, Marion," her mother said, smiling at her enthusiasm. "And we'll go over right away."

She turned to the other car with a word of explanation for Helena Brixton, and then we were on our way to the front of the building.

We were several minutes reaching the main entrance, for Marion not only wished to point out to me every detail of the big ivy-covered buildings, but she was in turn interrupted by girls who were arriving singly and in groups, and were apparently filled to bursting with greetings and questions. We were just at the steps when one of the girls we had seen at the window and who had evidently made whirlwind progress downstairs, caught Marion by the arm.

"The girls sent me down to find out who the sheik is," she said in what was meant to be a whisper, but which was clearly audible to Lillian and me.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Returning the Photograph

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I had been going about with a young man for about a year and at Christmas time I gave him my picture as a little remembrance. Just after that I met another young man whom I really love and I have been keeping "steady company" with him and some day I intend to marry him. Would it be proper for me to ask the first young man to return my picture? G. H. R.

YES, if you wish, although if the photograph is of the usual formal variety, and if the written message on it is of not too "warm-hearted" and consequential a nature, it really isn't necessary to have it returned.

The Host Pays

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a man and woman spend a week-end at the home of a couple who have no automobile, who should pay the car fare when they go some place—the host or the guest? Or should each man pay for his own wife? R. R.

THE host should pay the carfares for all trips taken while the guests are visiting at his home. Then, when the guests are, in turn, hosts in their home, they would pay the carfares. In no case should each man pay for his own wife—that would be most awkward.

Another Argument

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. My girl friend and I had an argument and I decided that to settle it I would write to you. When a young girl of 13 meets a "boy friend" on the street, who should speak first, the boy or girl? My friend say that he should, as it is improper for a young girl to speak out of turn. I claim that the girl should speak first, because if she does not care to remember the acquaintance she need not speak.

2. Is my paper in good taste? V. C.

YOU win, lady! It is logical, as you intimate, for the woman, of whatever age she is, to be given the privilege of acknowledging first the acquaintance of a man, whether the gentleman is 13 or 90.

2. I don't like your letter paper, V. C. It isn't an interesting shade, at least to my taste, and it isn't large enough for your large handwriting. You see, you have no room for the margins about the four edges, the margins that give such an attractive and artistic frame to the "picture," which is your handwriting.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Feeding the Infant During Warm Months

WE are in the season when little babies must have the closest of attention. Hot weather is bad enough for all us huskies, but it is terrible indeed for the frail infant.

Let me say to the dear mother: You must take the best of care of yourself. You must have good health, poise and get rest enough to restore your strength and vigor. Each day is one of trial, and hard indeed even if you are perfectly well.

If you get too little sleep and lose your appetite, the baby is influenced almost at once. The child becomes restless and irritable. It won't be long before the poor little thing loses its normal eagerness for food. Then comes diarrhoea and vomiting.

It is to be hoped your child can continue breast feeding all through the hot season. If there is enough milk for that purpose, it is a lucky baby indeed.

There is no real substitute for mother's milk. The scientists are making progress in arranging artificial feedings, but in many things it is impossible to improve on Nature. In the matter of baby feeding, certainly, nothing is equal to breast feeding, provided the mother is perfectly normal.

It is extremely difficult to keep cow's milk in proper condition during the hot days and nights of summer. Unless the milk is kept at very low temperature, below 50 degrees, the germs or bacteria always present are sure to multiply.

In contrast to this is the pure and uncontaminated mother's milk. There is little danger of infections from that fluid.

Of course, poisons and illness can be carried to the infant if the mother is out of health. But if the mother is normal the milk carries substances and agents that guard against disease and cause the baby to grow rapidly into strong body and vigorous health.

Babies who are properly fed, whether on breast milk or cow's milk, have such vigor that they resist disease. Such babies will endure the heat of summer, no matter where the temperature goes.

Keep in touch with your family doctor. If baby does not thrive as you think it should talk with him. In all probability your fears are groundless. But I don't want the mother to have any fears. They are bad for her and the baby.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, June 29

TODAY'S planetary configurations hold augury of conflicting conditions, according to the lunar aspects. While Jupiter promises benefit, advantage and some degree of financial prosperity, yet the inimical place of Saturn, square to Luna, portends obstruction, delays, postponements or disappointments. With perseverance and the indomitable will to surmount obstacles, definite progress may be achieved.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year calling for resolution and the utmost determination to surmount difficulties, with patience and courage to brook delays and disappointments. With these firmly adhered to there may be success, advancement and financial returns worthwhile.

A child born on this day may be ambitious, progressive and capable, but may be called on to meet and vanquish many stubborn obstacles and much opposition in life.

I call no fight a losing fight, if fighting, I have gained some straight new strength.—Miriam Tihhner.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Cheerful Cynic

IF WIVES were never known to nag, nor husbands known to curse;
If everything worked out as planned, in all the Universe—
This world might be a better place—and yet, it might be worse!

If all the hills were mountains—and all the rivers, seas;
If buttercups were hollyhocks, and all the bushes, trees,
How we should miss the little things—like flies and ants and bees!

HELEN ROWLAND

If nothing were a punishment, and everything a blessing;
If all the problems had been solved and nothing kept you guessing;
And nothing worried you at all—well, life WOULD be distressing!

What would the good reformers do, if nobody were bad?
And what would little minnows do, if all the fish were shad?
And what would Pollyanna do, if everyone were "glad?"

If women were all perfect, and every man a saint;
If all we heard was compliments—and never a complaint,
Oh, what a dull world this would be! But, thank the Lord, it AIN'T!

When you see a man suffering in a high starched collar these melting summer days, you may know that he either loves or fears some woman, with his whole heart.

The aeroplane and the radio may have done more than any other invention to make the world interesting; but the lipstick, the powder puff and the safety razor have done more to make it beautiful.

Nothing hurts a woman's vanity more than to have you agree with her that the man she happened to draw in the matrimonial lottery is the "oil can" she says she is.

The hardest part of being a wife is not cooking a man's meals and waiting on him; it's sitting there, AFTER they are cooked and waiting FOR him.

A man usually has to be reminded of his birthday, but it takes all a woman's will power, philosophy and mental science to FORGET hers.

TRANSMISSION CONTRACT LET

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 28. — Stevens & Wood, Inc., constructors and engineers of New York for public utilities, have obtained a contract to construct a steel tower transmission line from the generating station at Toronto, O., along the Ohio River, to Akron, to serve the Northern Ohio Traction properties. This line will require 580 steel towers, and will take nearly two years to complete.

At Toronto, the Pennsylvania-Ohio Power and Light Company, Youngstown, has within the past two years greatly enlarged the capacity of its generating station, which now supplements the capacity of its power stations in the Youngstown district.

Stevens and Wood have five contracts for new construction and expansion of utility properties in Akron, Barberton and Cuyahoga Falls. In the Youngstown district, they are working on contracts at Youngstown, Sharon, New Castle and Zelienople for the Pennsylvania-Ohio Power and Light. The contracting firm also has important work at Grand Rapids, Mich., and in Tennessee. In Northeastern Ohio; unfilled contracts and new construction in progress insure Stevens and Wood activities for at least five years.

The utilities serving all the territories mentioned are subsidiaries of Allied Power and Light Company, New York. Plans are now being considered to establish headquarters of the holding company in Youngstown, in a large new office building which is to be erected by the Pennsylvania-Ohio Company. Financial headquarters will be continued in New York.

B. C. Cobb, of Grand Rapids, is chairman of Allied Power and Light.

AWFUL NEURITIS IS PUT TO END BY NEW KONJOLA

Grateful Lady Tells How She Was Unable to Raise Her Arms—Praises Modern Compound.

Read the good news, all who suffer from neuritis, and who may fear that there is no escape from this dread ailment once it lays hold on its victim. Day after day, wherever it is known, Konjola, the new and different medicine, is winning victory after victory over this dread ailment.

MRS. EMMA SIMPSON

And no wonder, for Konjola is actually 32 medicines blended into one, and of these 32 ingredients 22 are the juices of roots and herbs of known medicinal value. Konjola conquers—no matter what has failed—because these 32 elements go to the very fount, the very source, the very roots of the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. But get the facts—all the facts—about this amazing compound from the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh. There daily he is telling the wonderful story of Konjola. But remember this: the Konjola Man makes no promises, no claims, no pledges. He deals in actual, known and verified facts of Konjola's amazing victories over even the stubborn cases that have baffled and defied all else tried. In the experiences of others with Konjola lies the hope for all who suffer and would be well again.

Read, then, the words of Mrs. Emma Simpson, Monroeville Road, Turtle Creek, near Pittsburgh, who said to the Konjola Man a few days ago:

"For three years I suffered the fortures of neuritis, and as medicine after medicine failed to do me a particle of good, no wonder I became disheartened and discouraged. At times the pain was so severe that I thought I could not stand it another minute. But I had to stand it, for nothing I tried reached the source of my condition. Indigestion added to my miseries, and I had terrible dizzy spells, and spots appeared before my eyes. I tossed about in bed, and was fortunate to get half a night's rest.

"Day by day my condition became worse, and I was almost distracted. About this time I began to read in the papers about Konjola, and the sincerity of the indorsements interested me deeply. I decided to find out for myself if Konjola was all that it was said to be. Well, it surely proved its worth in my case. Konjola ment immediately to work. My appetite improved, I found that I could eat many things that I had not been able to digest, and gradually the neuritis pains became less and less severe. In two weeks a remarkable change came over me, and in another week I was free from neuritis. I did not have a dizzy spell since starting the treatment. Konjola is so wonderful that I could not have believed such results possible did I not know from my own experience. I owe Konjola a debt I shall never be able to pay, for it gave me health I never expected to enjoy again."

So it goes; the same splendid story of success whenever this master medicine is given a chance to prove what it can do.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine.

TRAIN KILLS WOMAN AT HOMESTEAD DEPOT

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

RESPONSES from a recent reference to Victor Herbert's stay in Pittsburgh are varied.

No. 1 was that the idea to change Aiken avenue to Victor Herbert avenue was not so bad, but it was silly to suggest that some other street near Aiken be named after the composer. This was an error and the only alibi in sight was that the typewriter took a bad hop.

No. 2 was that "Kiss Me Again" is from Mme. Modiste and it was just a little disconcerting when a young woman said: "I think you're wrong about that 'Kiss Me Again' business." In conversation, there were no capital letters visible.

No. 3 was the following note: "Your interesting notes about Victor Herbert and Wilson S. Borland's article, 'Pittsburgh, Musically Speaking,' in the Pittsburgh Record for June, give testimony to the effect that whereas Herbert was deposed as conductor of the old Pittsburgh Symphony because his programs were too popular to suit some ardent enthusiasts for better music, the orchestra gradually lost favor and finally died under Herbert's successor, Emil Paur, because the audiences objected to the music of the immortal Brahms, which Paur insisted on playing. Isn't this a sad commentary on something or other?"

No. 4 was another note: "Your Victor Herbert story contained only one error that I can detect. You said he was working on 'The Fortune Teller,' in Pittsburgh. This is not a fact. He wrote 'The Fortune Teller' in Brooklyn. It was produced about 1896. The work he was doing here when he came was 'Babes in Toyland.' That was about 1903. Glen MacDonough was the librettist and it was staged by the late Julian Mitchell. All three of these gentlemen lived in the Herbert Aiken avenue home for several months while this opera was being developed. It was the first real extravaganza produced in this country and was written in a style approaching grand opera."

If that is all, gentlemen, we will turn now to the next order of business.

"You wrote of the woman who feeds the birds every morning at 8 o'clock on her way to work," writes E. H. K. E. "The writer can satisfy the curiosity of your inquirer. I happen to be personally acquainted with the woman whose kindness to birds is but one of her many charities. And I may also add that she is abundantly able (although she works every day) to afford to buy the food for the birds. When she is feeding the birds she is about her Father's business, who said: 'Inasmuch as ye have done it with the least of these ye have done it unto Me.'"

I know I'm expressing the sentiment of every other Boy Scout by saying it is nice to hear that our little feathered friends are being so well taken care of.

Since I built my last bird house and got a lead pencil and a Scout knife from Joe Aylward, the bird house contest Man, I have taken a great interest in our little friends of the air.

ONE of the newest jobs is doctor to night clubs running a low pulse. There is a man in town who makes a specialty of taking the temperature, pulse and blood pressure of the local cabarets, getting them to stick out their tongues and say "Ah," and then telling them why business is not so good. One place in the red was pulled out and followed two more similar operations. The man in question was concentrated on learning how to make whoopee places interesting.

I didn't get Mr. Barnhart's first name, but he is a young Pittsburgher just returned for a summer vacation from studying medicine in Edinburgh, Scotland. He has been away from home two years. "How's business in Scotland," Mr. Barnhardt was asked. "Things are pretty tight," he said, confirming an old rumor.

PAGEANT GIVES HISTORY OF CHURCH

Mt. Lebanon U. P. Dedication Reveals Progress Made in 125 Years of Organization

One hundred and twenty-five years of history of the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church was portrayed in a pageant held in the church auditorium last night. It makes the fifth of a seven-day dedication program.

The prologue of the pageant related the coming of the God-fearing settlers to America and to Old St. Clair Township. James McKelvie sang, while Margaret McCown, Virginia McCown, Mary Elizabeth Dougherty, Lillian W. Willoughby and Ruth Leitch played the various roles.

Following the prologue, the chronicler began the history of the first period, from 1804 to 1858. Cyrus B. Schreiner was chronicler. He told the story of the period, with the characters of the past, illustrating its outstanding events. Music for this part was furnished by the Men's Class.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

For the second period, Dr. J. C. Boyd's ministry, Arthur Davidson was the chronicler. It embraced the years of 1858 to 1903. Music was given by Mrs. George Donald and William G. Brown, Mrs. Raymond Wright, Chester A. Gerst, with Mrs. R. T. Charters at the organ.

The third period was dedicated to the 25 years which the present pastor, Dr. E. C. McCown, served the church. Willis Siegfried was the chronicler, with music furnished by Mrs. Lucille Werner, Mrs. Eda S. Kreiling, Robertson Tilton, Robert J. Harry, Ed C. Timmerman, Jr., at the organ.

FUTURE FORECAST

The epilogue was entitled "Facing the Future." It was concluded with the congregation joining in the music, and benediction by Dr. McCown. A reception in the social rooms in honor of the pastor followed. A large cake and 25 candles was set up, and a gift presented him.

The committee in charge included Mrs. Harriet S. Boobyer, Mrs. S. A. Schreiner, Miss Margaret Gilfillan, John Gilfillan and Miss Jean Blair.

ONLY FOUR ABLE TO ATTEND REUNION

The only four members of the One Hundred Second Pennsylvania Volunteers, able to attend at Memorial Hall the sixty-fourth anniversary of that famous Pennsylvania Civil War unit's mustering out. They're remembering how Maj. John Poland at the battle of Malvern Hill in 1862 died on the field as he bore this tattered flag, given Memorial Hall by his son.

COMPANION NARROWLY ESCAPES

West View Victim Dies, Cousin Slightly Injured When Struck by Engine

Mrs. Anna Chaney, 29, of Highland avenue, West View, was killed last night, and her cousin, Mrs. Raymond Miller, of 223 Tenth avenue, West Homestead, narrowly escaped a similar fate when a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train struck them at the Homestead station. Mrs. Chaney was returning home from a visit with Mrs. Miller.

Arm in arm, they were crossing the tracks toward the depot when they heard a train approaching. They continued on their way, believing that the train was on another track, morgue attaches said. There are four tracks at the station.

The train struck both women, knocking Mrs. Miller aside and dragging Mrs. Chaney 50 feet. Mrs. Miller was slightly injured. Mrs. Chaney was pronounced dead upon arrival at the Homestead Hospital.

DRIVERS TO USE CAR TRACKS

Pittsburgh motorists are not expected to keep to the right in passing safety zones at street car stops. Unless the car tracks are blocked by street cars loading or discharging passengers, they are expected to drive to the left, following through on the car tracks, or between the two safety zones if these islands are established on both sides of the tracks.

This was made clear by the Pittsburgh Better Traffic Committee and the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh this morning after the question of just how motorists were expected to pass safety zones, under the new Pennsylvania Motor Code, was raised by the action Wednesday of Millvale police in handing tickets to motorists who followed through on the car tracks in that borough, as reported to the Automobile Club.

Only in this way can downtown streets be used to their capacity and the advantage of the new signal lights be fully realized, according to J. V. Long, director of education of the Better Traffic Committee, who declared that, unless these islands at car stops are plainly marked "Safety Zone; keep to right," Pennsylvania motorists the state over had the right to drive past to the left of them on the car tracks. Incidentally, Mr. Long said, there is no safety island in Pittsburgh so marked.

STOREKEEPER FINED IN RAID

Stanley Edzik, 50, who conducts a confectionery store at 139 South Twenty-second street, was fined $50 or 30 days to the county jail by Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court yesterday, when he appeared on a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

Lieutenant James B. Earley and squad of the South Side station raided his store Wednesday, and confiscated a quantity of moonshine liquor, they testified. Edzik was committed to jail when he was unable to pay the fine.

VETERANS HOLD REUNION

With faltering steps and their years weighing heavily upon their shoulders, four members of the One Hundred and Second Pennsylvania Volunteers walked into Soldiers' Memorial Hall yesterday to celebrate the sixty-fourth anniversary of the mustering out of their unit at the conclusion of the Civil War.

Forty-one members of the famous Pennsylvania volunteer unit are alive today, but only four of them were able to attend. The remainder, broken in health, feeble and confined to their homes, may never again meet their "buddies" at a reunion on this side of the great beyond.

The regiment's oldest member, John Hamilton, 87, of Hays, lay in his sickbed, waiting for the last taps. He had been looking forward to meeting the "boys" just once more, but in vain. The best he could do was to send members of his family. Six of them came. Two sons, John W. and H. G. Hamilton, and the latter's wife; a daughter, Mrs. Ethel H. Vaught, and two granddaughters, Grace Doyle and Ruth Hamilton.

"This is the first reunion Dad has missed in 50 years," G. H. Hamilton, one of the sons, said. "He was heartbroken when he discovered that he could not go."

Of the four members of the unit present, William Patton Griffith was the oldest, being 86. He came all the way from Brooklyn, N. Y. He is department commander of the New York State G. A. R. The other three are Thomas Reynolds, 86; John Renton, 85, and William W. Hunnewell, 81, president of the association.

One of the features of the reunion was the presentation of a regimental flag which was borne by Maj. John Poland, killed in the battle of Malvern Hill in 1862 while commanding the One Hundred and Second Infantry Regiment. John Poland, of Pittsburgh, his son, presented the emblem to Col. Samuel M. Evans, superintendent of Memorial Hall. The Major's sash and other relics also were presented. They will be placed on permanent exhibition.

RETURN BOARD COUNTS VOTE

The returning board counting the votes cast at the special election on the Metropolitan bill Tuesday, in four hours yesterday tabulated more than one-half the votes cast at the election. The board began working at 1 o'clock under Judges Harry H. Rowand and John A. Evans, and at 4 o'clock had completed half its task.

All the votes cast in the first 17 wards were counted as well as the third-class cities and 59 of the 68 boroughs. The board will resume its work today. Members of four election boards were called in by the judges when it was discovered their returns lacked tally sheets.

ORDERS BALLOT BOX REOPENED

Judge Elder W. Marshall, in Common Pleas Court, yesterday issued an order to reopen the ballot box used at Tuesday's election in the Twenty-third district of the Twenty-third ward, to remove from it unused ballots which were issued to the district. When the return sheet was taken to the prothonotary's office officials refused to accept it. When it was explained that the unused ballots had been placed in the box Albert Dean, judge of election, had counsel present a petition to the court to open the box and remove them.

2 CLUBS RAIDED BY DRY AGENTS

Two clubs were raided and an automobile and a truck seized by prohibition agents, who arrested three men yesterday.

A club at 709 East street yielded the raiders five pints of moonshine, they reported. Peter Miller, 37, taken in the raid, was released on a $1,000 bond, agents said. Another club, in the rear of 232 Collins avenue, where Terrance Keenan was arrested, also yielded whisky and 238 pints of homebrew, according to the raiders.

The truck in which James Stelluto, 23, of 219 Renfrew street, was transporting three half-barrels of beer, was seized at Seventh avenue and Amity street, Homestead, along with the beverage, agents declared. Stelluto was arrested. On the second floor of a garage at 1327 Pennsylvania avenue the seizure of a truck laden with 85 gallons of moonshine, was reported. The owner of it was being sought.

Morningside Man Sues Street Railway

Michael C. Kelly, of Morningside, who alleges he was permanently injured when a one-man street railway car collided with the automobile in which he was riding, has brought suit against the Pittsburgh Railways Company for $50,000 damages. The accident occurred at Negley avenue and Black street, April 24.

It is alleged by Attorney Lawrence C. Cook in the bill of complaint that the car was running at a dangerous speed. Kelly was in the rear seat of the automobile when the accident occurred. He has not been able to work since, because of injuries to his back and body in general, the bill charges.

Moonshine Agent Suspect Fined $50

Soliciting orders for moonshine liquor, according to the testimony of Patrolman James Queenan before Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court yesterday, Edward Zack, 21, of 1915 Larkins way, was fined $25 or 30 days in the county jail. Zack was unable to pay the fine. He was arrested at South Twenty-first and Carson streets.

The Wilmerding Fourth of July committee, composed of representatives of the post of the American Legion, the Business Men's Association, Firemen, Lions and Rotary Clubs and the Y. M. C. A., has completed a tentative program for the celebration of a "safe and sane Fourth," it was said today.

The program includes foot races for boys and girls, bicycle races, a baseball game, kiddie car race for children, roller skating races, skooter races, stilt races and three boxing matches. The athletic events will be held at the Concourse field.

P. R. R. Shopmen Attend Big Picnic

Eight special trains yesterday carried members of the Shop Crafts Association of the Western Pennsylvania Grand Division, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, from the Pittsburgh district to the association's annual outing at Meyers Lake, near Canton. It was estimated that more than 6,000 persons attended. D. S. Steele was general chairman of the committee in charge, assisted by H. C. Roberts as general secretary.

Woman Hurt in Auto Crash; Man Arrested

Mrs. Della Mellon, 409 East Ohio street, was injured on the left arm when the taxicab in which she was riding, collided with an automobile in the 1800 block on East Ohio street early today. The driver of the automobile fled without stopping to render aid. An hour later police of the Forty-third street station arrested W. S. Wick, 22, of 1603 Middle street, and held him on charges of violating the automobile laws.

Plan Joint Services At Turtle Creek

Union Sunday evening church services will be begun in Turtle Creek July 7 and will continue until August 25. The services will be held in rotation in the various borough churches and will last an hour. Gospel hymns will be used and a suggested order of service to be followed is being prepared by the committee on arrangements, composed of the Rev. W. A. Logan, the Rev. J. A. Yount and the Rev. G. E. Fisher.

Accident Victim Sues for $50,000

Knocked from a motorcycle at Ohio street and Sherman avenue, August 16, last, and his skull fractured and right shoulder dislocated, the result of a collision with an automobile, Richard H. Kornmer has brought suit against Donald F. Summers for $50,000 damages. The injured man charges the defendant with negligene, in his bill of complaint filed in Common Pleas Court.

PHYSICIAN SUED BY PATIENT

Alleging that her right hand was burned because of her physician's negligence, Mrs. Josephine Janucha, 427 Eighth avenue, Carnegie, has brought suit against Dr. Charles E. Herman, of Glendale, for $25,000. The plaintiff says the physician treated her for an injured right hand on November 7.

A bottle of fluid was prescribed, according to the bill, the woman poured the fluid on a bandage as she had been instructed. Later while cooking, her hand came in contact with the stove and the bandage ignited, the bill charges, the fluid being inflammable. The woman charges that there were no written instructions on the bottle. Of the sum sued for, the husband, Felix Janucha, asks $5,000.

LIBERTY RAMP PLAN O.K.'D

A ramp from the Boulevard of the Allies to the Forbes street approach to the Liberty bridge which the county commissioners proposed as an aid for traffic from the East End to South Hills, was approved in Quarter Sessions court yesterday by Judge Thomas D. Carnahan.

South Hills traffic from the East End cannot turn onto the Liberty bridge at present, but must descend to Grant street. The ramp would take off the boulevard about 250 feet nearer Grant street than the bridge, and descend and curve to the Forbes street approach below Duquesne University bluff.

The improvement is estimated at a cost of $143,000. The proposition will now go before the grand jury for approval before being made final by the court.

Will Rogers Says

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 28.

Viva Democracy. Viva Charley Dawes. Among all the diplomats gathered at King George's imperial court, Charley was the only one that didn't wear rompers.

He wouldn't bare his Chicago shins to the crowned heads of the British Empire. Among all the satin stepins of the other males, his long and uncreased pants stood out like a diadem.

It was not only a victory for modesty, but a Godsend for the people who sell material by the yard. Even the women, they say, followed him.

But not even an ankle would he reveal. Long live Charles Dawes and longer live his long breeches.

Yours, WILL.

LONE GUNMAN HOLDS UP, ROBS DOWNTOWN RESTAURANT

WOMEN IN PANIC AS ROBBER TAPS TILL

Masked Negro Cows Cashier With Pistol and Escapes; Gets $65; Police on Hunt

A lone Negro, armed with a revolver and wearing a handkerchief over the lower part of his face held up a Gammon restaurant at First avenue and Smithfield street at 3 a. m. today and escaped with $65.

William Digman, 28, of 305 Grantham street, North Side, night cashier, was standing beside the cash register near the door when the man entered. Pressing the revolver against Digman's side, the Negro commanded:

"Buddy, keep still."

With his left hand he reached around Digman, opened the drawer of the register, took $65 in paper money, and left the place. He ran east on Second avenue and disappeared.

Three other persons were in the place, Mrs. Violetta Anderson and Miss Jennie Saras, waitresses, and a woman patron who declined to give police her name.

Mrs. Anderson was standing near the counter phoning to her husband when the robber entered, and screamed through the telephone that the place was being robbed. Anderson broke the connection with the restaurant and telephoned to the police. Several other calls were received at about the same time.

Due to the mask Digman was unable to supply police with a good description of the Negro.

VOTE MACHINES UP TO ZONES

Even though the voters of Allegheny County should give a negative answer at the November election to the question "Should voting machines be adopted by the county?" they may still be adopted by the city and other municipal divisions.

This is explained to the County Commissioners in a letter to Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong from Mrs. George G. Bray, secretary of the Women's Voting Machine Campaign.

Expressing appreciation of "the splendid attitude" the Commissioners have taken in voluntarily offering to put the voting machine proposition on the ballot in November, Mrs. Bray adds:

"We decided, after long deliberation, to circulate petitions for municipal divisions because in case the proposition fails on a county wide scale, it may be carried in various localities, which will form the opening wedge for the further use of voting machines in the county."

The Women's Voting Machine Campaign is the official name of an organization composed of 55 constituent bodies.

Dog Attacks Boy, Ordered Tied Up

John Poe, 8, of 2727 Shiras avenue, was bitten on the left knee by a dog said to be owned by David Duda, 1724 Rutherford street, while the boy was playing in front of Duda's home yesterday. His wounds were cauterized by a physician. The owner was notified to keep the animal tied up.

FLAG TOURISTS WIN 'FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—Dazed a bit by the warmth and breadth of their reception, but striving to disguise it, four wide-eyed representatives of America's much discussed "younger generation" have captured San Francisco, and in turn have been captured.

It was no ordinary experience that San Francisco provided these four. City officials, civic organizations, the military, private citizens, youngsters from the schools, joined in paying tribute to them for their victory in the first national flag contest.

It began officially Wednesday at the City Hall. Through streets, flag-decorated in honor of what they had done, the four champions rode behind an escort of motorcycle police to the city's home. With the Municipal Orchestra playing "California, Here I Come," they passed into the City Hall rotunda, amid the applause of a throng that overflowed into the corridors and packed the three galleries above.

WELCOMED BY MAYOR

Mayor James Rolph, Jr., bade them welcome, termed their visit "a very sweet compliment to us" and outlined the objects of the contest which brought the four to San Francisco on their prize trip around the world. Then he introduced the champions:

"Miss Alma Groves, from Byronville, Ga., whose ambition is to become a school teacher; Miss Mary S. McGonigal, of Troy, N. Y., leader of the Campfire Girls, who wants to become an author; Robert Sullivan, of Syracuse, N. Y., whose ambition it is to become a playwright or producer, and Merle Clark, of Detroit, who will enter the University of Michigan to study for the bar."

And while flashlights popped and listeners applauded and the orchestra played, the four rose in turn and bowed and looked glad to be here.

Then the Mayor introduced others of the round-the-world party—Mrs. Edward C. Gregory, of North Carolina, daughter of Senator Overman, who will chaperone the tour, and Floyd Williamson, representative of the Hearst newspapers, which sponsored the national contest.

GUESTS OF ARMY

From the City Hall the party rushed to Crissy Field. But first there was the "Star Spangled Banner" by the Municipal Orchestra, more flowers pressed upon the visitors, more handshaking and congratulations and taking of pictures.

BOGUS $20 BILL GETS FARMER INTO SNARL

Horse Deal, Moonshine, Bank And Store Have Parts in Tangled Somerset Case

Michael Yonish, of Hooversville, a farmer, according to his own admissions, is somewhat of a David Harum in that section of Somerset County, but he regretfully admitted that a horse deal was indirectly responsible for his being arrested on a counterfeiting charge.

He also admitted that the purchase of a quart of moonshine figured in his present predicament.

These incidents in his personal affairs were related by Yonish when arraigned before the United States commissioner for the alleged possession and passing of a $5 Federal Reserve note that had been raised to read $20.

ADMITS TAKING BILL

John Kusnovich, a government witness, said Yonish gave him the counterfeit bill to purchase a quart of moonshine, which he said was bought from Mrs. Josephine Sitar at Petoria Mines. Mrs. Sitar, also a government witness, admitted receiving the spurious note. This occurred on May 16, according to the testimony.

Mrs. Sitar testified that on the following day she gave the bill to her husband to buy her brother a suit of clothes, and when the bill was offered in payment the merchant detected the deception.

TELLS OF HORSE DEALS

Yonish did not deny having the counterfeit note. He told the commissioner he had sold a horse and a check received he cashed at a bank and the money involved was part of the currency he received. He then told of having purchased the horse for $60 and selling it for $140. While discussing the horse feature of the hearing he told of once having purchased a horse for $5 and selling it for $150.

After hearing other witnesses who told of seeing the raised note in Yonish's possession the commissioner continued the hearing for further testimony. Yonish was arrested Saturday by United States secret service operatives.

Frank Campbell, manager of a store at 324 North Aiken avenue, and his wife were forced into a rear room by three armed men who entered the store shortly after 6 p. m. While two of the bandits held the couple at bay, their confederate looted the cash register of $100.

Fleeing into the street, they leaped into an automobile which they had parked near the place and escaped.

Their description tallied with that of the trio who held up a manager and a clerk in a store at 6100 St. Marie street Wednesday night.

LAWYERS APPROVE CAMPAIGN TO REDUCE FEDERAL TAX

JUDGES PRAISE CAMPAIGN OF REVISION

Compliment Hearst Papers On Leading Battle for Lower Earned Income Rate

Reduction of the federal tax on earned income meets with the general approval of jurists and lawyers attending the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Bar Association at Bedford Springs.

Members of the association indorsed the campaign carried on in Western Pennsylvania by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and emphasized their approval by signing petitions, uring prompt action by Congress for revision downward of the tax on the incomes of professional men and women, salaried people and wage earners.

Von Moschzisker

Chief Justice Robert von Moschzisker, of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, commenting on the movement sponsored by the Hearst newspapers for earned income tax reduction, said:

"This campaign has my hearty approval. I agree that the income produced by the actual physical or intellectual effort of an individual ought not to be tax any more than is absolutely essential to the maintenance of the government. Any other policy means discouraging individual effort and initiative, which is the greatest asset of America today."

C. E. Woods

Cyrus E. Woods, of Greensburg, attorney general of Pennsylvania and former ambassador to Japan, ardently expressed his interest in the proposal for tax revision, saying:

"It is a most worthy movement and I am glad that the Hearst organization has taken it up. I have read about it with deep interest."

George E. Alter, of Pittsburgh, former attorney general, declared:

"I am a strong supporter of reduction in income tax and particularly the reduction of tax on earned incomes is a highly meritorious aim. The campaign deserves general encouragment."

Crowded conditions will be relieved by the additional rooms, school authorities say.

Preparation of plans for a new 8-room unit near the Oakwood grade school was requested of the architect by the board. Bids will be advertised for within a month.

"Harry" Bleichner and six others are charged in the indictment with conspiring to transport a stolen automobile from Wheeling to St. Clairsville, O., on October 19, 1927. SCHOOLS VIE FOR SCOOTER PRIZE

John Morrow Pupil Held Victor in Classic Staged At West View; Give Prizes

Speed! The cry of the age was satisfied at West View Park yesterday when seven North Side schools engaged in a "Whoopee" scooter race for championship of the North Side.

Youthful devotees of the scooter gathered in large numbers on the baseball grounds at West View yesterday to see Jack Lynch, of the John Morrow School, gallop madly against the tape in a spurt neatly calculated to best 19 veretan "Whoopeelites" pitted against his prowess.

CROWD CHEERS RACERS

The course was nearly 100 yards long, and a crowd of several hundred cheering spectators were held in suspense as Jack, George Silay and Foster Traft, both of the Horace Mann School, fought for the championship along the entire course in the final race.

Schools participating were: Hall's Grove, John Morrow, East Street, Spring Hill, Horace Mann, Columbus and Chatham.

SEVEN SCHOOLS RACE

From these schools, Joseph Defazzio, Carl Dawson, Joseph Bill, Jack Lynch, James Garvey, Bill Young, William Guigan, Fred Dangler, Howard Miller, Russell Thurnhorst, Harold Durn, Harold Walker, George Silay, Foster Traft, Frank Daily, James Grant, Jack Jackson, William McCartner, Philip Singe and Arnold Leguerre took part in the final race.

Jack Lynch, first place, took the $5 gold piece, and George Silay and Foster Traft, respectively, the books of 50 and 25 amusement tickets to West View Park.

The "Whoopee" scooters which proved themselves so sturdy in yesterday's races may be obtained by any boy or girl who secures one 26-week subscription to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

O. B. Morrow, 532 City-County Building, is a chief inspector; his stenographer found his pass No. 62,831 in Wednesday's paper. Edward J. Sam Liebig, a retired business man of 27 East Lacock street, R. J. Dadowski, a merchandise broker of 702 Wabash Building, and Joseph Latshaw, 1526 Denniston avenue, found their pass numbers in a similar manner.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

'Bud' Dinner To Precede Cotillion

JUST before everyone leaves town for the remainder of the summer, those who've neglected to take definite dates for the coming season will be making arrangements for entertainments they wish to give for the debutantes. Some social leaders are waiting to see if some dates already taken will be canceled. With nearly 40 debutantes to be feted, it's no wonder hostesses are having a hectic time arranging dates honoring their favorite buds.

The debutantes themselves, after the taste they've had during this week of a season, will be glad to have a summer out-of-doors to get them in such "good form" that they can dance through the whole season without missing a single event. And a debutante's day in a brilliant season such as we are going to have this fall and winter ignores all eight-hour laws.

Around the holiday season, there'll be a heightening of activity with the school set returning and with the gaiety created by the Yuletide.

Of course the cotillion on Tuesday, December 17, in the Pittsburgh Club, will be the climax of social activity for the younger set, I mentioned a few days ago.

And now I've learned that preceding the cotillion, Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Evans, of Beechwood boulevard, will give a dinner in their home for their debutante daughter, Laura. Debutantes of the season, and of course a "matching" number of men will be the guests. Laura's father and mother will omit the usual debut tea, I understand.

MANY sister buds will regret to learn that Janet Davis, daughter of Mrs. Charles Wiley Davis, of Sewickley, will not come out this fall, as her mother had planned earlier.

Mrs. Davis and Janet will leave next month for California, where they expect to remain all summer and all next winter, too.

A PITTSBURGH girl made her debut yesterday—Frances Johnston, daughter of the Norwood Johnstons, of Shady avenue. Her father and mother presented her at a tea dance yesterday afternoon in the Longue Vue Country Club. In the drawing room of the clubhouse, where the guests were received, Calla lilies and gift bouquets were seen against a background of cibodium ferns and palms.

The debutante wore an eggshell chiffon gown, fashioned with a tight bodice, and a full, three-tiered skirt, and a jade green horsehair braid hat. Receiving with her were her father and mother and her sister, Mrs. S. Davidson Herron, of Philadelphia.

Dancing followed the reception. Tea was served on the terraces at small tables placed beneath gaily striped marquees, and the dining room of the clubhouse, decorated with pink and yellow Pernet roses and blue delphinium, was lighted by lavender and yellow tapers.

Supplementing the debut was a small buffet supper in the Johnston home.

AND this afternoon, the Don Roses, of Sewickley, are giving a tea in their home to present their daughters, Anne Allen Rose and Margaret Shaw Rose. And tonight, don't you remember, the Roses will give a dinner dance in the Allegheny Country Club for the debutantes of this season and those of the past winter.

THERE'LL be one wedding of interest to the social world in July, may I remind you? I'm referring to the marriage of Harriet Agnes Patterson, daughter of the James Pattersons, of Beechwood Boulevard, and Lowell Clements Noyes, son of Mrs. George Edward Noyes, of Evanston, Ill., which will take place on Wednesday, July 10.

The wedding will take place at noon in the home of the bride's father and mother.

Ann Blakeley Watt will be Harriet's only attendant and George F. Noyes, brother of the bridegroom-elect, will be best man. Allan S. Noyes, another brother, and John G. Patterson II, Harriet's brother, will be ushers.

THE marriage of Miss Virginia Bernice Frank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clarence Frank, of Beaver, and John Francis Dawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dawson, also of Beaver, was solemnized Tuesday at 4:30 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church, of Bridgewater, by the Rev. Homer K. Miller. The bride wore white satin and real lace, and her tulle veil was held with orange blossoms. She carried white roses. Pale orchid point d'esprit with a hat to match were worn by the maid of honor, Miss Mary Frank, and the bridesmaids, Miss Ramona and Miss Phyllis Bailey. Miss Jane McCreery and Miss Marjorie Schmunk, wore chiffon in the pastel tints with hats to match. They carried pink roses and delphinium. Virginia Johnston, of Rochester, was flower girl. Frederick S. Dawson was his brother's best man and the ushers included Sharp and Jack Bailey, James C. Cotter and Thomas A. Scantling, Jr. Miss Frances E. Waddle played the wedding music and Mrs. Ruth Morgan sang. Mr. and Mrs. Dawson are motoring in the East and after July 8, will be at home in Second street, Beaver. The bride is a graduate of the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Beares, of North Euclid avenue, was solemnized by the Rev. Dr. W. W. T. Duncan, pastor of Emory Methodist Episcopal Church. The bride was given in marriage by her father and she wore a gown of apricot Lanvin painted lace made on straight lines with a long skirt, and fashioned with a large bertha collar which formed sleeves. A bow of spring green faille satin hung from one side to the edge of the hem. She carried orchids, butterfly roses and lilies of the valley. The bride had no attendants, but Hamill Beares was his cousin's best man. A reception for the families and a few friends followed the service. Mrs. Banker receiving in a gown of beige lace and Mrs. Beares in one of black lace. Their flowers were orchids. After an eastern motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Beares will be at home in Dover Gables, South Negley avenue.

The check, bearing the indorsement of M. T. Crowley, local undertaker, was returned by the service station proprietor, who declared he would simply charge the tire to Crowley.

SAVED HIM TRIP OVER THE SEA

World's Tonic Took Place of Change of Home.

Sometimes this climate, with its fogs and frequent changes, seems to disagree so much with people who came here from other countries that the doctors order them back to their native land. Mr. John Gelenovsky, who lives at Scottdale, Pa., was one of these unlucky people. For twelve years he worked in the tube mill, and he got so badly run down that the doctors told him he must go back to Poland to recover his health, because the climate here did not agree with him. He went back for six months and got well, largely, he thought, because of a tonic he got in the old country. But when he came back here and went to work, it was only a few months until his old trouble came back on him, and he had to quit work. Pittsburgh doctors told him he could not get well in this country.

Some of his friends suggested that World's Tonic might help him. He did not have much faith in it, but consented to try a bottle. Now he says: "This is only my third bottle of World's Tonic, but I feel just as good as when I was in Poland, and I am going back to my old job as healthy as ever I was."

So many of these cases have been reported that many people believe World's Tonic, in addition to its general value for everybody, has a special value for people who were born across the seas. Some of these folks even say it tastes like famous medicines they used abroad. While there is nothing else just like World's Tonic, it is not unlikely that the years of research that went into its formula, extending over different parts of the world, brought to it some of the remarkable healing ingredients that have been used so successfully across the water. World's Tonic is intended to be used wherever people are run down or sickly, anywhere in the world, for many sections were searched to make it most effective. That is why it is named World's Tonic, and why it is used so successfully by hundreds of foreign born with whom this climate has failed to agree, as well as by so many who have lived here all of their lives.

It has been the means of saving some from expensive trips back to the Old World, helping them when other treatments have failed. World's Tonic works on the blood. It helps clear away the impurities, tones up the bowels, kidneys and stomach, and thus assists in building up the system so that one has the strength to overcome an unfavorable climate. Before you give up use this good medicine which can be bought at Dow's, formerly McCulloch's, also May's, or at any other first-class drug store. (A-20).

New Hollywood Chronicles Relating to Citizens of Photoplay World

DIRECTOR SEITER INTRODUCES SWEATER AS LATEST REDUCING AID

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1929, By Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 28.

D'JUH HEAR Dixie Wilson's story about the little Scotch youngster who did away with his mother and father because he wanted to go to the orphanage picnic? D'juh?

Attention, dieters!

Dieters may be intrigued with a novel reducing scheme practised successfully by one Bill Seiter. Bill is megaphoning Colleen Moore et al. in "Footlights and Fools." I espied him on the set swathed in a brown sweater. And he looked rawther warmish. Hence, the query: Why the sweater? According to Bill, a sweater in hot weather melts sections of fat. This, one may call, the eight-hour tropical diet.

Colleen Moore

A bevy of "tired-business-men" blondes were rehearsing dance numbers, supervision Larry Ceballes, on the stage next to Colleen Moore's flick. The guardian of the entrance, Larry Stroller, tiptoed in for a look. But he was shooed out by a cynical soul who muttered something about age, "I MAY BE GETTING OLD," Larry agreed, "BUT I'M NOT CRAZY!" That lad should be a title writer.

Leatrice Joy Isn't Engaged

NEARING the completion of "A Most Immoral Lady," Leatrice Joy finds she is actually on the verge of a vacation, Leatrice declares she would't know what to do with a vacation. So she's rehearsing a new voodvil sketch to take on the road for three weeks. After which she sinematizes "Furies," by Zoe Akins. I really ambled into Leatrice's set dressing room for cross-examination purposes. But Leatrice states she was "between ideas" and heaven knows my only idea is dodging work.

Leatrice Joy

We both were meeting with rare success when in walks Arthur Strauss and a few of his friends from Havana. Now be it known in very small type that this colyum recently took Mr. Strauss' name in vain and rumored him engaged to Leatrice. I fully expected him to wring my neck for said rumor. Though to be sure it was a lovely one. But he didn't. He offered me a cigaret and suggested I act nonchalant. After all, the story was just rumor and even though sundry friends in Chicago had communicated with him about it, he was going to let me get away with it. But fairness is fairness and 'tis no more than right to explain in very large type that Miss Joy is not engaged to Mr. Strauss. Tch, tch. There goes another swell yarn shot out of a paragraph.

Beery May Build Hotel on Ranch

SCREENALITIES: NOAH BEERY, his mother and father speeding down from Noah's trout ranch to Hollywood. Noah has improved the place mightily and in the most distant future plans to build a hotel. MARILYN MILLER'S initial bow in a sinematic "Sally" was the shooting of the Childs Restaurant sequence. The thermometer at the time sizzled to 134 degrees. And this isn't bologna. CARMELITA GERAGHTY and JIMMY CREELMAN playing tennis together. Jimmy swung for a high one and socked it. But in obeying the law of gravity, his racket walloped his toe. . . . RICHARD BARTHELMESS and MARION NIXON, his leading woman in "Young Nowheres," making tests, direction Frank Lloyd, Dick plays an elevator boy in this 'un. . . . And —That's all.

Noah Beery

The Gleasons—James, Lucille and son, Russell—have had their Hollywood home renovated. Part of the renovating scheme was building a private stairway for Russell. Said stairway leads directly to his rooms. It's small and it's steep—the stairway, of course—but an individual stairway is an individual ditto for a' that.

Winnie Sheehan, production czar of the Fox lot, also has a private stairway in his sumptuous Bev Hills' home.

Ann Harding Gets Heroine Role in Colman Film

Ann Harding, former Pittsburgh stock actress, late star of "The Trial of Mary Dugan," has joined Sidney Howard, playwright, and Dudley Digges, Theater Guild actor-director, in association with Ronald Colman's next talking picture, "Condemned."

Miss Harding will play opposite Colman, in the role of Madame Vidal, wife of the warden of the prison in which Colman is a prisoner. Like Vilma Banky, who acted with Colman in five pictures, Ann Harding is blonde.

The first association of Ann Harding with motion pictures was as script-reader for Famous Players-Lasky in New York. She left that job to become a $35-a-week member of the Provincetown Players group in Greenwich Village, during the days when Eugene O'Neill was the pride and joy of that organization. Stock company work in various cities was followed by appearances on the New York stage in "Tarnish," "Stolen Fruit," "The Woman Disputed," and "The Trial of Mary Dugan."

As Miss Dugan, Miss Harding was tried for murder in many of the principal cities of the United States, matinee and evening performances. The actress has one motion picture assignment to her credit: a principal role in "Paris Bound."

12 of Crew Marooned On Wrecked Schooner

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—(AP.)—Coast Guardsmen were working today to rescue 12 members of the crew remaining aboard the lumber schooner Hartwood, which went on the fog-ridden rocks of Point Reyes, north of here, last night. Radio advices received here reported that 16 of the crew had been taken off and that a dozen men remained on the vessel. The Hartwood, a 200-foot craft of 948 gross tons, left here yesterday for South Bend, Ore.

Police Hold Two In Auto Thefts

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., June 28.—When motometers and other automobile equipment was found in their machine, James Nicklow, 22, and G. J. Saylor, 25, Normalville, near here, were arrested as suspicious characters. Later a raid on Saylor's home disclosed additional accessories, police said, who are holding them pending further investigation.

District Attorney Called in Quiz

EBENSBURG, Pa., June 28.—District Attorney D. P. Weimer was called before the June Grand Jury in its special investigation of conditions in Cambria County. The Rev. C. H. Ashman, a Johnstown minister, also was called as a witness. Russell R. Yost, a Johnstown attorney, is the special prosecuting attorney for the investigation.

Capstan Glass Co. Recalls Workmen

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., June 28.—Recalling employes who have been idle for months, the Capstan Glass Company, one of the largest industries here, is operating at full capacity. Three tanks are in operation and indications point to full operation until March, when repairs will cut off one tank.

62 Organizations In Firemen's Parade

Jessel At Studio For Star Role In Picture

HOLLYWOOD, June 28.—From the footlights to the kleig lights; from Broadway to Hollywood the hegira of stage stars is on and every train that pulls into Los Angeles daily brings its full quota.

The most important recent arrival is George Jessel, famous star of musical comedy, who comes to play the leading role in "Hurdy Gurdy Man," a Fox-Movietone all talking and singing production which will have some of its scenes filmed in Italy.

Irving Cummings who has just finished direction of "Behind That Curtain" has been assigned to direct Jessel.

"Hurdy Gurdy Man" is based on a story by LeRoy Clemens and John B. Hymer and has been adapted by Dana Burnet, who wrote "Four Walls."

There will be musical interpolations and L. Wolfe Gilbert and Abel Baer have written several special numbers, one of which, "Marguerite," is expected to prove a song sensation.

Art Jurist Dies On Golf Course

PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—(AP.)—Andrew Wright Crawford, secretary of the Philadelphia Art jury and prominent attorney, died suddenly last night while golfing at the Merion Cricket Club. He was 56.

Crawford was a teacher of law at Temple University from 1908 to 1923 and for more than 25 years was a trustee of the Fairmount Park Association. He was a member of the American Federation of Arts, and had contributed many articles on housing, planning and the general beautification of communities and parks.

NEW YORK, June 28.

On First Looking Into the Grand Canyon

(With frightened apologies to the estate of John Keats.)

MUCH have I roamed the up-and-coming West,
And glimpsed a lot of Maxfield Parrish scenery.
The Kansas plains, the Colorado greenery
Have quickened many a beat beneath my vest.
Oft had I heard (with scarce a moment's rest)
Of one expanse, grand as a Hardart beanery;
Yet did I never breathe its pure serenery
Till morbid wonder urged me to its crest.

Then felt I like the Watch and Ward Society
Watching the wards of Ziegfeld (heav'nly maids!)..
Gazed I in wonder at the Keats variety,
For here, at last (O Joseph Miller's shades!)
The source of that sad quip, sans wit or piety—
That deathless wheeze about Used Razor Blades!
—D'Annunzio Cohen.

Things That Knock Me Cold

AMONG other interesting things that John K. Winkler couldn't cram into his book, "John D.—A Porarait in Oils," in this authentic anecdote, illustrating Mr. Rockefeller's mathematical sense of economy. Years ago, when wages were a dollar per day, an extra washwoman was hired to come in by the day at Pocantico. She was instructed to come at 7 a. m. (after her breakfast); have lunch on the house andleave at 6 before dinner.

She worked so valiantly the Rockefeller chef permitted her to dine in the kitchen with the rest of the help. But when John D. heard of it, he became furious and had her docked twenty-five cents.

Flip Quip

Take it from H. C. Witwer, who boasts that he has a peach of an uncle, who is so rich he doesn't have to count the words in a telegram.

Of All Things!

CLIFFORD CHEASLEY, head of the Numerology Society, crashes the papers with his theory on why the late Margaret Lawrence died. The key note of her assumed name "Tianna" is "five," says Mr. Cheasley, indicating freedom from convention and self-restraint. "If a man by the name of Zacharias Ziegler should be a scoundrel," continues Cheasley, "it does not necessarily follow he might be made a saint by changing his name to Adam Applegate. But, according to numerology, he might be helped on the upward path."

And they hang pictures!

Add Similes

Recommended for Frank J. Wilstach's book of them: As much privacy as a pair of well-filled silk stockings . . . Conceited as the nurse who was praised by a delirious patient . . . He looked like the last hope of an old maid—Anon . . . R. Edgren's: Mad as a centipede who has his hundred toes stepped on . . . and J. L. Kelly's: Bright as the seat of a Scotchman's trousers.

Heheheh

AND Izzy Elinson similies: "As self-conscious as a pair of acrobats without a handkerchief!"

Sotto Voce

I. M. Sandberg (B'klyn): You rhymed "pleading" with "evening" and "roam" with "known," which don't.

Louis Sobol: "Portals" doesn't click with "mortal," sir.

Mark Winchellinger: Oh, yeah! Since when is the Bronx—New York?

Benedict

Something reminds this bureau of the late Keith Preston's observation: "He was the sort of old fashioned gentleman who never sat down to a table without a benediction—and never got up without a benedictine!"

Broadway Philosophy

In the Nat N. Dorfman manner: A director is one who ruins an author's perfectly good play and turns it into a hit. . . . There's a broken heart for every unkept promise on Broadway. . . . If you meet a stranger on Broadway and he lies about his salary, then he's an actor. . . . One-half of New York doesn't know that the other half buys cut-rate theater tickets. . . . A good company manager is one who never runs out of alibis explaining why business is bad.

Parody

Give my regards to Main Street,
Remember me to Court House Square;
Give my love to the old town pump
And the gossips who are loafing there.
Give my regards to the constabule,
Give the Deepo gang a cheer;
I think a lot of the old home town
But I'm going to stay right here!
—R. M.

Nifty

Russel Crouse says that the only Bow-legs he likes are Clara's.

The Retort Proper

George Creel, who once press-agented the U. S. Government, recently met Gene Tunney at an affair. During the chatter, he asked: "Are you going to write a book, Mr. Tunney?"

"No," was the reply, "they hate me because they think I can read. What would they say if they thought I could write?"

How It Started

RAY LOPEZ, it appears, who was with the Original Dixieland Jazz Band, is responsible for the derby gag used to "fan" cornets and trombones, now the vogue among all "hot-lippers" and "Doo-Dah-Deh" tooters. Long before he discovered the stunt, however, Lopez employed an old tomato can to get the tricky tone, but one performance he couldn't find the damb thing, so in his desperation he snatched a derby from a stage manager's head and dashed on stage to do his solo.

The annoyed stage hand made Lopez buy him a new hat, but a new "gag" had been discovered, and shortly after, 40,000 truck drivers became jazz band musicians, most of whom are not out of work, thank heaven, because of the Vitaphone.

SOUPS PROVIDE ALL NUTRITIVE ELEMENTS

"A delicious soup, hot or cold, will satisfy the yearnings for food and carry enough sustaining qualities to serve the purpose of a larger meal."

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City, United States Senator From New York.

THIS is the time of year when the appetite may not be coaxed by the serving of a hot, thick soup. We long for lighter things.

There is a real place in the dietary for this article of food. To have a delicious soup at the beginning of the meal stimulates the desire for more hearty things.

You can write out a long, long list of soups. They may be vegetable or animal in origin, but no matter what their content may be, they are good for us.

Just before writing this I read a list of 30 different soups. Every one can be made at home and every variety can be purchased in cans. They begin at the first letter of the alphabet with asparagus soup, and end with vegetable soup.

Many soups have a foundation of meat "stock." But there are dozens which have milk or even water as the chief ingredient. When I was a college student I used to think the soups we had consisted almost exclusively of water.

It is not my purpose to instruct you in the making of soups. My interest lies in calling them to your attention because I regard them as an important part of the dietary. Just how they are to be compounded is a matter of taste, of course.

There is one soup which is particularly popular in France. It is called, over there and here too, by a French name—"Printanier." This is made from vegetables, like carrots, string beans, turnips, fresh peas and lima beans. It is, as its name indicates, a "spring soup" and an excellent one indeed.

SATISFYING QUALITIES

What we know as "vegetable soup" is similar, but it has beef broth or meat stock as its foundation. Onions, leeks and parsley may be added.

In warm weather my taste turns to the cold soups, especially the jellied preparations. They make a strong appeal to those who enjoy them.

It is my desire to say just enough about the many varieties of soups to recall to you how appetizing they are and how valuable to health. For instance, take "julienne soup"—the addition of valuable vegetables to a meat stock, gives it satisfying qualities that make it almost enough for a light meal. With a cup of tea and a few crackers, or a slice of bread and butter, it is quite satisfying. It carries elements which are sustaining and nourishing.

OVER-EATING HARMFUL

Over-eating is the bane of modern life. Excusable as it may be in cold weather and with those who must work hard at manual labor, it is decidedly improper for persons who have little to do in hot weather. It is too bad to place unnecessary burdens on the digestive organs.

Celery and Cheese Canape.
Fried Chicken, Western Style.
Baked Stuffed Peppers.
Summer Squash.
Pineapple Salad.
Strawberry Mousse.

IN hot weather appetites must be coaxed along and the best bait is novelty. The first course must be interesting, something different from the usual fruit cocktail or soup. Celery and cheese canapes make a pleasant variation and are wonderfully stimulating to fickle appetites.

Toast bread and cut it into diamond shapes. Spread a liberal amount of tomato catsup over the pieces. On these put short pieces of celery which you have stuffed with cream or Roquefort cheese.

Now select a young chicken, clean it and cut it in pieces. Dip in seasoned flour.

When the chicken is thickly coated fry it until it is a delicate brown. Use plenty of shortening. Cover tightly and finish cooking in moderate oven or turn the fire very low. Remove to a dish and make a gravy with hot milk or the drippings in the frying pan. Pour over the chicken.

PEPPERS can be stuffed in a number of ways; one of my favorites is with rice. Fry ¾ cup rice in 2 tablespoons of fat until it is brown. Add 5 cups of water and boil until soft. Drain. Saute 2 onions in a little fat, mix with 2 cups of tomatoes and ½ cup chopped pimento, and add to the rice. Now add salt, pepper and paprika.

Put this mixture into green peppers from which you have removed the seeds and parboiled 10 minutes. Bake 15 minutes, basting frequently.

You know how I insist on using fresh fruits while they are in season. This is their season and I advise you to use as many fruits as you can in as many ways as you can think of. The salad form is one way, and a good one. Mix 2 cups of fresh, diced pineapple, 1 cup of apple, and 1 cup of bananas, diced.

Let the mixture stands in French dressing for half an hour. Drain well, add ¼ cup walnut meats and serve on lettuce leaves.

FOR the strawberry mousse, wash and hull a box of strawberries, sprinkle with 1 cup sugar and let them stand. Mash and rub through a fine sieve. Add ¼ box gelatine soaked in cold and dissolved in

"I ALWAYS say the salad depends on the dressing. And the dressing is only good if the ingredients are the finest you can buy. The flavor of Hellmann's Mayonnaise proves that it is made of the purest oil and best eggs. I started to use Hellmann's a short while ago and I notice that my salads are more successful than ever. I use it plain, just as it comes from the jar, or add a little cream for my fruit salads or chopped pickles or olives to make a salad spicy."

"MAKES BETTER SALADS"

SAY THESE CRITICAL COOKS

THE best cooks aren't easy to satisfy. For their salads, they have fine rare fruits and vegetables. And the dressing which is to crown these salads, must be the purest that can be blended, with the fullest, richest flavor.

Hellmann's Mayonnaise has won the enthusiastic favor of fine cooks everywhere for its rich, enchanting taste—the taste which comes only from the best eggs, delicate salad oil, pure vinegar, and rare spices.

From these only, Hellmann's is carefully blended, according to a famous old recipe from France. Then, from tireless, hour-long beating, comes that clearer, finer consistency, more velvety than most mayonnaise made in the home.

In six different parts of the country Hellmann's Mayonnaise is made in spotless, shining kitchens and rushed from the nearest one to your grocer. Each jar must be as fresh when it reaches you as the salad upon which you use it, and its luscious smoothness and flavor must never vary.

Get a jar of Hellmann's Mayonnaise from your grocer today and keep it always ready for salads and sandwiches. The popular family size is ½ pint—25¢. Other sizes, 3½ ounce, pint, and quart jars.

Everything served in the home of Mrs. Irvin Cobb, of Long Island, comes from the hands of Florence Birmingham

"... I didn't know prepared mayonnaise could be so delicious"

"WHEN I used to make my own mayonnaise I always had what I thought were the best ingredients—certainly the best money could buy. Yet, more than once, I've known a meal to be ruined because the salad wasn't fit to serve. I've found that you never take a chance with Hellmann's. It must be made of as fine materials as can be found and it's always fresh and true in flavor. It never disappoints. I didn't know prepared mayonnaise could be so delicious. I've been using it for three years now and I don't know what I'd do without it. It makes the work so much easier."

BREAD PUDDING

I CAN remember the time when bread pudding was a dessert strictly for home consumption. One never served it to guests, because it had somehow acquired the reputation of being a poor relation of all desserts. You served your guests home-made pie, or a pudding which looked either very intricate or elegantly simple, or cake which you were extremely proud of—but it simply wasn't done to serve bread pudding!

And thereby, a grave wrong was done that most delicious, simple dessert. Every ingredient that goes into the making of a bread-pudding—bread, milk, eggs, sugar, fruits—is full of valuable vitamines and ranks high in the scale of food values. And, combined, they help you to achieve a dessert that is as delicious as it is nutritious.

The simplest bread pudding is made by beating 2 eggs, adding 1 pint of milk, one-half cup sugar and the gratings of nutmeg or cinnamon. Pour this over 1 quart of stale bread in a pudding dish. Let stand until thoroughly soaked and bake for 30 minutes in a moderate oven.

With hardly any additional effort, the plain bread pudding is transformed into a Brown Betty. Here's how it's done: Moisten 4 cups of grated bread crumbs with ¼ cup melted butter. Place alternate layers of crumbs, raisins and apples in a buttered baking dish, making the last layer crumbs. Sprinkle each layer of apples with fruit juice, sugar, water and lemon gratings. Cover and bake for an hour.

BANANA BREAD PUDDING is another variation that is always popular. Soak 1½ cups of bread crumbs in 1½ cups milk diluted with 1½ boiling water. Stir in 2 tablespoons melted butter, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 beaten eggs, ½ teaspoon salt and ⅔ cup sugar. Arrange a layer of sliced bananas in bottom of buttered baking dish or custard cups. Add some of pudding mixture then another layer of bananas and so on until you have used four bananas. Sprinkle top with nutmeg. Surround the custard cups of baking dish with hot water and bake in a moderate oven until the custard is firm.

HAVE you ever had chocolate bread pudding for the children? They will eat every single crumb of it. Soak ⅔ cup stale bread crumbs in 1¾ cup milk for half an hour. Melt 1 ounce of bitter chocolate over hot water. Add ½ cup sugar and ¼ cup milk to make a smooth paste. Add the bread and ¼ teaspoon vanilla and an egg slightly beaten. Place in buttered pudding dish and bake one-half hour. Serve with cream.

HOSPITALITY doesn't recognize seasons. The luncheon for which invitations are out must be given, even though the little red line on the thermometer is ascending rapidly. And though considerate guests tell the hostess they "just can't eat in this hot weather," they usually do justice to a well-prepared and nicely served meal.

Summer luncheons are different from those served during the rest of the year. They must be light, cooling and yet satisfying, with a-plenty of everything, but not enough to make the guests drowsy and fatigued.

Here is a summer luncheon that is good to the eye and even better to the palate: Orange puree, nut and cheese roast, buttered string beans, tiny buttered rolls, curled celery, chilled; ginger ale salad, punch.

The cooling orange puree is made by heating 2 cups of orange juice in a saucepan; when it is thoroughly heated add 1 teaspoon of cornstarch mixed with a little cold water. Cook slowly until the mixture is clear. Add ½ cup sugar and 1 teaspoon of grated orange rind. Put on ice until ready; serve ice cold in sherbet glasses.

The cheese and nut roast is a pleasant variation from a meat dish. Melt 1 tablespoon of butter, add 2 tablespoons of chopped onion and cook about 2 minutes. Mix ¼ pound American cheese, 1 cup English walnuts, 1 cup breadcrumbs, 1 cup milk, the juice of half a lemon, salt, pepper and paprika to taste. Put into a shallow baking dish and brown in moderate oven.

The ginger ale salad is ertainly different from almost any other of the salad group. Pour ½ cup boiling water over 1 package of lemon gelatine. Stir until dissolved. Cool and add 1½ cups ginger ale. Set in cool place until mixture begins to thicken, then add ¼ cup celery, 1 cup assorted canned fruits and 1 tablespoon chopped ginger. Pour into wet, cold individual molds and when set unmold on individual beds of lettuce.

Wouldn't any luncheon party be a success with that menu?

CHOPS

ONE does have chops so often, especially if there is to be company. But wouldn't you sometimes like to have your chops different—different than anyone else serves? And better, of course. Much more interesting and intriguing?

Then here are the ideas you have been waiting for.

FILLED LAMB CHOPS are very tempting, but should only be prepared from yearling or even more mature lamb, for the chops should be large and fully 1 inch thick. Slit as directed in the following recipe and fill with a dressing made by turning half a cupful of finely chopped onions steamed 5 minutes in bacon drippings into half a loaf of very dry bread that has been cut into thirds, dipped into cold water and quickly squeezed out again. Add salt and pepper to taste and a well-beaten egg. Place the chops in a hot dripping pan with several tablespoonfuls of their own fat fried out and slip into a hot oven—400 degrees F.—and cook from 30 to 40 minutes. When done, serve on a hot platter around a mound of well-seasoned green peas and sprinkle with chopped mint or watercress.

STUFFED PORK CHOPS are particularly hearty and tasty. Select loin chops, trim the fat a little, make a gash two inches long, then slit the meat the full length of the bone on the inside and fill with dressing used in the previous recipe, except to add a quarter of a cupful of chopped apple. Season each one nicely, dip in flour and place in a dripping pan in hot fat cooked from the trimmings and roast in a hot oven—400 degrees F. When nicely browned on the bottom, turn the chops to cook and brown on the other side. It will require about an hour for the entire cooking, and yet when served the chops will be tender and moist, much like well-cooked chicken. They are especially good when garnished with prunes which have been dropped into the pan with them 10 minutes before serving. Slit the prunes, previously steamed, remove the stone, and fill with chopped apple before cooking.

SCHMELING'S STAMINA WINS

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Buc Rookies Pass Out. Three Left of 18. Miller Not Near Mark.

Grantham Also Short. Meine Is Delivering. Simpson and Blocks.

GERMAN'S RESERVE BEATS PAULINO

THAT a major league baseball club finds only a small percentage of worth-while goods in the vast amount of new material it tries out every spring, is demonstrated again very strikingly when you glance over the Pittsburgh roster following the outright release of Infielder Harry Riconda yesterday to Kansas City.

Harry Riconda

On their spring training trip the Pirates carried a total of 18 recruit players or "possibilities," a few of whom had been tried previously in the majors. Pitcher Heinie Meine, who downed the Reds here yesterday, was not included in that total, as he did not report until 10 days after the season opened.

And of those 18 recruits who were tested at the Paso Robles training camp, how many are still with the Buccaneers? Only three. They are Pitchers Steve Swetonic and Larry French and Catcher Claude Linton. Just one-sixth of the number tried.

ALL the rest preceded Riconda to the minors. Included among them were seven pitchers in Leon Chagnon, Ralph Erickson, Lee Roy Mahaffey, Glenn Spencer, Walter Tauscher, Homer Blankenship and Duncan MacKay. There was one catcher, Johnny O'Connell, of Verona, and two first basemen in Willis Windle and Basil Panella.

The other discards were Infielders Jim Stroner and Coburn Jones, and Outfielders Carl Frey and Louis Martin. Some of them were sent out with strings attached, will be recalled later for further trials, and possibly may make good, but the dropping of so many in a single season shows clearly how steep is the grade from the minors to the big show.

BING MILLER, rightfielder of the Athletics, who batted safely in his twenty-eighth consecutive game yesterday, making two triples, while the A's were defeating the Yankees and extending their lead over the Hugmen to 11½ games, has broken all records for the present season in the majors, but is still far below the all-time mark.

That was set at 44 straight games by Willie Keeler, playing for the old Baltimore Orioles, from April 22, to June 18, 1897. Bill Dahlen, while with the Chicago Nationals, hit safely in 42 successive games and in 70 out of 71 straight contests in 1894.

Bing Miller

THE best modern records, or since 1900, in the two big leagues are 41 in the American, set by George Sisler in 1922, and 33 in the National, set by Rogers Hornsby in 1922. Ty Cobb batted safely in 40 straight games for the Tigers in 1911. Speaking of records, George Grantham's feat of accepting 12 chances at second base in yesterday's game also started the fans buzzing on that subject, but George did not approach the real mark.

FRED DUNLAP and Clarence Childs each accepted 18 chances in one game at second base in the old days of the National League, and since 1900 the best records in the majors are 17 by Jimmy Dykes of the Athletics in the American in 1921, and 16 by Miller Huggins, while with the Cardinals in the National in 1919.

Of these four men credited with a greater number of total chances, however, only one had more assists than the nine rolled up by Grantham yesterday. That distinction is held by Dunlap, who had 12. Childs and Dykes had nine assists, the same number as the Pirate second sacker, and Huggins had only eight.

IN keeping the Pirates in first place by beating the Reds while the second-place Cubs were nosing out the Cards yesterday, and at the same time preventing the breaking of the Corsairs' record of never having been defeated three times in succession this season, Heinie Meine once more gave evidence that he is a real pitcher.

Chuck Klein

Meinie has won three games and lost none for the Bucs. Two of his victories were registered in games started by himself and the other while he was serving in a relief role. In 24 1-3 innings he has allowed 22 hits and nine earned runs.

IN striking contrast to the numerous players who look like stars in the minors and then fail dismally in the majors, there are some who fail to show much in the sticks and yet develop topliners when they get a chance in the upper set. Take Chuck Klein, of the Phillies, for instance. In a semi-pro industrial league in Indianapolis a few years ago, Klein was cast aside as a failure after going through 10 games without making a hit. In 1927, Klein was sold by Evansville to Fort Wayne for only $200. The Phillies got him for $5,000 and Outfielder McDonald. Look at him now. He has made 18 home runs for the Phillies and ranks among the leading sluggers in the man tent. The Quakers could get a fortune for him.

REGIS LEHENY, the promising young Pittsburgh pitcher who recently signed with Toronto in the International League, has been sent out under option by Manager Steve O'Neill to the Canton (O.) club of the Central League in order that he might get needed work.

O'Neill retained an option on Leheny that gives him the right to recall the local boy on three days' notice. Regis has made a fine start with Canton, winning his first two games. There may be a change in the Central League within a day or two, by the way. A conference is scheduled for tonight at which arrangements may be made to sell the Akron (O.) franchise to Richmond, Ind.

IT isn't only the home fans that see the Pirates looming large as pennant possibilities. Even the club that was rated as having a better chance than any other starter when the flag race began, now admits that among its rivals it fears the Buccaneers most.

Wayne K. Otto, Chicago "Herald and Examiner" critic, reports that Manager Joe McCarthy, of the Cubs, sees Pittsburgh as THE

EVERETT LAWRENCE

Three promising rookies who recently joined the Pirates are doing their stuff in the Bucs' workouts at Forbes Field this week. Everett Lawrence, lanky right-hander, came to the Corsairs upon the recommendation of Scout Chic Fraser. He won a big reputation as a pitcher in his native state.

MELVIN INGRAM

In addition to being an accomplished outfielder, Ingram is one of the most versatile athletes ever turned out at Gonzaga University. He won 14 letters in sports at the Jesuit institution at Aberdeen, Wash., and can sprint 100 yards in 10 seconds.

STUART CLARKE

The Pirates obtained Clarke, a shortstop, from the Wichita Club of the Western League, with which team he attracted the attention of big league scouts with his brilliant fielding and timely hitting. In the practice sessions at Forbes Field he has shown plenty of class, and appears to be ready for a major-league engagement.

TOURNEY ENTRY LIST PASSES 300 MARK

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

The entry list for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's second annual Western Pennsylvania junior amateur tournament for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy, which is to be played at the Schenley Park municipal links on Thursday, July 11, is growing steadily—the 300 mark has been passed. With many boys sending in their entry daily, it is anticipated that the total entry of almost 700 of last year will be surpassed.

District clubs are falling in line and qualifying their eligible caddies for the tournament. Only eight caddies from each club will be able to play in the competition, and, so that every boy gets an equal chance of proving his ability, caddiemasters throughout Western Pennsylvania are co-operating with the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in staging qualifying rounds.

Don't get the idea that the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's tourney is merely a tournament for caddies—it is anything but that. The event is being staged for the benefit of all junior amateur golfers, regardless of where they live and whether or not they are members of clubs. Any amateur—mark that word—18 years of age or under, who is not attending classes above high school grades, is welcome to enter the tournament.

There is no entry or playing fee, but all entrants must provide their own clubs and balls.

The entries will close on Friday, July 5, and individual entries must be in the hands of the Golf Tournament Editor at that time. Qualifying rounds for caddies must be held within five days prior to the tournament.

The caddie teams, you know, will have a most interesting fight of it for the special team championship prize. A beautiful plaque is to be awarded the winner, to be held by the club that team represents, while the individual members will be presented medals. The teams will include the four low scorers in each of the club qualifying rounds.

SNAPPY PLAY OF GRANTHAM FEATURES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

While they are not ready to put him on the same plane as Hughey Critz, countless admirers of George Grantham have dismissed any lingering doubts as to the quality of George's second-base play, and the more ardent of Grantham's boosters consider him as valuable as any secondbaseman in the league.

Grantham rose to new heights as the Pirates trimmed the Reds in the second game of the series in the Oakland orchard yesterday. Boots handled nine assists and three putouts like a master, he spoiling several likely-looking hits. And when the final reckoning was made, with the score 5 to 3 in favor of the Pirates, the fielding activities of the Arizonan stood out as the winning factor.

The third game of the series this afternoon may bring together Burleigh Grimes and Fred (Red) Lucas. The spitball star of the Pirate staff has been laid up for a couple of days with an ailing left hip, but Grimes states he will try to work and Manager Bush will assign him to the role, provided he thinks Burleigh is able to handle the task. MAX SCHMELING advanced a strong claim to the heavyweight throne vacated by Gene Tunney by defeating Paulino Uzcudun in their milk fund benefit bout in the Yankee Stadium last night.

BASQUE HAS CLOSE CALL FROM K. O.

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Max Schmeling, the "German Dempsey," came from behind in the last six rounds of his 15-round battle with Paulino Uzcudun, of Spain, in the Yankee Stadium here last night to score a decisive victory and thus step into the next and likely last round of the heavyweight elimination tions to determine the successor to Gene Tunney, retired.

A crowd of 40,000 which paid something like $400,000 to see the spectacle, a record for the annual Milk Fund Benefit, saw the tide turn suddenly over the last one-third of the journey, with Schmeling a sadly beaten youngster until he turned the lane into victory street. Then they sat in on the picture of the game and hardy Paulino fighting blindly and desperately in the last round to stave off what promised to be the first knockout defeat of his career. He was a lucky man to be on his feet, bloody, but with his head unbowed, when the final gong clanged.

BASQUE NEAR K. O.

It was the closest call Paulino ever had, and in escaping the ignominy of a knockout, he proved once again, as he did earlier in the fight, that this young Herr Schmeling is another Dempsey, only in looks and appearance. He lacks both the Dempsey ferocity and the Dempsey punch.

He'll do for the present, however. He demonstrated both gameness and endurance in fighting off his discouraging start and coming on to grab a clean-cut victory when defeat was staring him coldly in the face. He finished fresh and strong and unmarked over the derby route in direct contrast to his wind-blown and battered opponent, and when he left the ring he received a tremendous ovation.

He will meet Jack Sharkey in the same ring in September. Sharkey was introduced last night.

For the first nine rounds the dope ran true to form in that Paulino made a mugg out of Schmeling. He kept on top of him all the time and never let Maxie get set. Walking in crouched and with his arms and elbows acting as buffers, he defied Maxie to throw his right hand at his chin, took the few that got through with a smile and then battered Maxie around in shameful fashion. Schmeling couldn't score from a distance, and he was outclassed in the infighting.

TAKES BODY BEATING

Round after round, Paulino would walk into Max with his head protected, and he almost invariably found Maxie putting his own head down and taking the body and head massaging. It was a bad fight in these early stages, and the crowd made no secret of its displeasure booing and clapping and stamping and even singing for action.

It wasn't that Maxie wasn't trying hard enough, for he was; but Paulino was constantly outsmarting him, keeping him off balance by piling all over him.

The shell-like Uzcudun defense was too much for Maxie, and, when he wasn't messing around futilely at close quarters, he was stepping about stabbing lightly to the head with his left and trying to force an opening for his right. Just when he figured he might get the opportunity, Paulino would come piling

MAX'S STAMINA, LEFT FOOLED PAULINO

By PAULINO UZCUDUN,

Who Was Beaten in a 15-Round Heavyweight Elimination Bout By Max Schmeling in New York Last Night.

(Translated from Basque by Interpreters.)

NEW YORK, June 28.—Certainly Max Schmeling won last night. Cuts on both eyes stopped me from hardly seeing him during the last two rounds. In the thirteenth my left eye closed completely and an old split over my right eye had bothered since the start of the ninth.

Paulino Uzcudun.

But this Basque was strong, far stronger than he looked at the finish. I can bleed much you know, without losing much strength.

As I expected this was an infighting duel from the start, and I thought I had the advantage up through the seventh round. I could hear the big crowd booing at the end of many rounds, but, believe me, it was hard fighting right from the start.

MAXIE STRONG

I am most truly amazed by the German's stamina. He did not fold up as I felt sure he would by the ninth round. He is what you call tough, far tougher than any of us expected.

Strangely enough it was Max's left rather than his right that seemed to have the worse sting.

JACOBS GAINS COLLEGE NET SEMI-FINAL

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 28. — (AP.)—All the favorites with the exception of Harris Coggeshall, of Grinnell College, have gained their semi-finals round in the singles of the intercollegiate tennis championships at the Merion Cricket Club.

Coggeshall, who was seeded No. 5, fell before Eddie Jacobs, of Pittsburgh, by 6-3, 6-8, 6-2 yesterday.

But the match which drew the gallery was the one between Julius Seligson, of Lehigh University, defending champion, and Ben Gorchakoff, of Occidental College, who has been runner up for the last two years. Seligson on steadiness and his ruthless back court game, defeated Gorchakoff in three sets, 10-8, 4-6, 6-3.

Big Bill Tilden did not disappoint his scores of American admirers in the stands and won his match with Christian Boussus, one of the youngest of the French contingent of invaders, who two days ago proved his worth by eliminating John Van Ryn, Princeton star. The score was 6-3, 9-7, 6-4.

Gleason Enters Bridgeville Race

More color and prestige was added to the July 4 automobile classic at the Pittsburgh-Bridgeville speedway yesterday with the announcement that Jimmy Gleason, who finished third at Indianapolis on Memorial Day, had sent in his signed blank for the local race.

Gleason informed B. Ward Beam, sponsor of the event, that he would arrive in town possibly Sunday, along with his famous Deusenberg that won him $5,000 in the Hoosier affair and fifth money in the Altoona race, as well as numerous purses on the various and sundry other A. A. A. boards of the country.

The addition of Gleason gives the local card four drivers who finished among the first 10 at Indianapolis and four of the five first-money winners at Altoona.

The field to date includes such knights of the roaring road as Lou Moore, Cliff Bergere, Burt Karnatz, Speed Gardner, Chet Gardner, Bill Lindau, Deacon Litz, Dave Evans, Bob Robinson, Billy Arnold, Lou Schneider, the latter being the only pilot who did not compete in the 500-miler and at Altoona.

Swetonic Given Radio At Banquet

Friends of Steve Swetonic, Pirate pitcher, gathered at the North Side Elks Club last night, where a big banquet and entertainment was held in honor of the Native Son.

The testimonial affair was enlivened by the present members of the Pittsburgh and Cincinnati clubs, including Donie Bush and Jack Hendricks, pilots of the two teams.

Steve was presented with a fine radio set.

PAULINO DUCKING MAX'S BLOW

MAX SCHMELING PAUL UZCUDUN ARTHUR DONOVAN

Uzcudun ducking one of Schmeling's early blows in the milk fund bout they fought last night in New York. Max won the decision with a rally in the late rounds.

MAX OUTLASTS PAULINO TO TRIUMPH

in with punches to the body or a wild left hook to the head. The only thing that saved Schmeling during these trying rounds was the fact that Paulino can't punch. He couldn't knock your hat off with a flock of his best punches, but he is an annoying gentleman to be in there with, and one tough baby to make an impression upon.

PAULINO TAKES LEAD

In tabbing the rounds, I called the first even, gave Maxie a shade in the second, when he kept poking his left at Paulino and trying to force down that defense for his right. The next three went to Paulino, the sixth was even, the seventh went to Schmeling, and the eighth and ninth were Paulino's. Thus, going into the tenth round Paulino was leading by the wide margin of five rounds to two, with the other two even. It was only a closing rally that gave Schmeling his edge in the seventh round, after he had been bulled about by Paulino until it was nobody's business.

Just when things looked blackest for the Black Uhlan and he appeared to be up against a hopeless task in trying to successfully combat the greater experience and cunning but clownish style of Paulino, the tide turned for Maxie. A right to the jaw early in the tenth round bothered Paulino for the first time, cutting his mouth badly on the inside and causing him to eject the blood in sprays therefrom. As he turned away to expectorate the first time, Max stepped in with a left and a crushing right to the chin, and Paulino was visibly hurt.

With his characteristic gameness, however, Paulino shook his head and went back to the business of fighting, draping himself about the form of Schmeling and working both fists to the body. Maxie had seen blood and finaly was stirred to action, though, and he kept stepping on it for his first real sustained attack of the fight. Paulino was battling back valiantly at the bell, but appeared to be tired and shaken.

TENTH ROUND FATAL

Paulino never recovered from that tenth round. It marked his doom. Heartened by the turn of affairs in his favor, Schmeling came up confidently for the eleventh and began to blaze away with rights to the chin without the formality of first leading with his left. The Paulino defense was cracked, and the rights poured through on the concrete jaw. The cut mouth, still bothered the Basque, and he continued to spit forth blood at every opportunity. As he turned to go to his corner at the bell, he gave every indication of being fatigued and through for the evening, so far as effective fighting was concerned, while Schmeling was fresh and fast in his movements.

The heart for which Paulino has become famed had not been stilled, however, and, recuperating rapidly during the minute rest period, he came up to win the twelfth round, in which he kept forcing the issue and outmauling Schmeling. Maxie, for the moment, got away from the idea of leading with his right and thus permitted Uzzie to get back into the running.

Paulino's comeback was short-lived. He continued to do fairly well for the first minute of the thirteenth round, but then Schmeling again blasted away with rights and cut both eyes open in short order. Paulino backed away under the handicap, and Maxie stalked after him and took many a sucker shot at the Basque before the end of the session.

From here on it was a rout, so far as Paulino was concerned. Maxie re-opened the left eye badly in the first few moments of the fourteenth round, and Uzzie was virtually blinded. Fighting back wildly and on sheer instinct, he missed swing after swing and ran into a barrage of uppercuts and short-arm jolts from both fists as he tried to get close.

THRILL IN THIRTEENTH

The big thrill of the fight came just at the end of this round. At the clang of the gong, with Schmeling battering Paulino in the latter's corner, Paulino turned away and, as he did, Schmeling, who had not heard the bell, clipped him with a right-hand smash on the jaw that was a beaut and staggered the Spaniard. It was the only time that he looked as if he might go down. He pulled himself together, and Schmeling continued to batter him while the timekeeper banged the bell repeatedly, and the referee, Arthur Donovan, finally got between them and pushed Schmeling toward his corner.

Paulino was slow to get up out of his corner for the last round, and Schmeling ran clear across the ring to meet him, intent on scoring a knockout. Paulino tipped gloves with him and moved out of danger. He was almost sightless, and so pathetic were his efforts to escape punishment that ringsiders were yelling to the referee to stop the slaughter. Little did they realize what a heartbreaker such official action would have been for Paulino, fighting blindly and tin-canning. Maxie, unlike the real Dempsey, kept fiddling and feinting and trying to get a clean shot for a knockout instead of piling in and shooting the works.

When the final bell clanged and his arm was raised aloft by Announcer Joe Humphries in token of victory, the German was as happy as a school kid. He embraced Humphries and then went over to shake hands with Paulino, whom he dragged out to the middle of the ring with him to share the plaudits of the crowd.

PAULINO HEAVIER

What a finish it was, after the drab beginning! And what a life-saver! If Paulino had been able to continue his baffling tactics to the finish instead of only two-thirds of the route, it would have gone down in history as one of the poorest of heavyweight bouts. As it wound up it was a satisfactory battle, on the whole, and left Schmeling in a good light for his next battle, with Sharkey, for a bigger gate.

Schmeling weighed 187 pounds and Paulino 192½ when they weighed in during the afternoon.

Jerry Pavelec, of Southampton, L. I., 212 pounds, won the decision over Jackie Saunders, of Long Island City, 199, in the opening bout of four rounds. Both suffered cut eyes.

Primo Uvaldo, of Italy, 171½, was knocked out by Roy Wallace, of Indianapolis, 165½, with only three seconds to go in the third round, when the count was completed. Wallace easily outboxed the invader up to the time of the finish, and the final blow was a pip of a right to the chin that dropped Uvaldo flat on his face. Arthur Donovan, son of Prof. Mike Donovan, was the referee of this battle.

Otto von Porat, lantern-jawed heavyweight, of Chicago, 196 pounds, won by a technical knockout over K. O. Christner, of Akron, O., 197½, in the ninth round of the scheduled 10-round semi-final, when Referee Lou Magnolia halted the contest and led Christner to his corner. Christner was suffering from a badly cut left ear and was bleeding badly from the nose and mouth as well, but was fighting back gamely and might have lasted the limit but for the referee's action, which, however, met with the approval of the fans.

CHRISTNER TIRES

Christner got off to a fine start and forced the fighting in most of the rounds, swarming all over Von Porat and winning three of the first four heats and several times badly rocking Von Porat. He tired under the fast pace, however, and was slowing down when he had his ear cut in the sixth round. He came back and cut Von Porat's right eye in the seventh and took heart and rallied and won the round. They were painted with each other's blood throughout the session. There was little to choose between them in the eighth, and the ninth saw Von Porat battering around the tired former rubber worker when the referee humanely intervened because of the condition of K. O.'s ear.

Long's Sport Comment

club to beat out. He says that when the Giants started through the West with a rush they gave indications of becoming a bothersome challenger, but that Donie Bush's team is the one that inspires the Bruins to greater effort.

CHICAGO scribes say that the Bucs battled the Cubs with confidence and gave blow for blow in the recent series. "While Bush's pitching, as a whole, was only a shade better than that of the Cubs, the Pirates took advantage of every opening," Otto writes. "Donie Bush's team 'came' overnight when it found a shortstop. This kid, Bartell, seems to be all of that. Manager McCarthy is frank to admit that he fears the Rovers more than any other flag rival. "Bartell made that infield," Joe declares, and if Bush's pitching stands up, look out. Good pitching and those Waner pests will make it tough for any club." And the Cubs are in a better position than any other club in the league to pass on the strength of the locals, as they have encountered the Corsairs a greater number of times than has any other team, 16 games in all.

George Simpson

TO what extent the Nicholson starting blocks aided George Simpson in his numerous sprinting victories this year and in his lowering of the world's 100-yard dash to 9 2-5 seconds, will be shown by the results at the A. A. U. meet in Denver next week.

The use of the starting blocks will be prohibited in this annual championship meet, and Claude Bracey and others who have been defeated by Simpson are predicting a different outcome this time. Perhaps it's only an alibi, though it's true that Bracey never lost to Simpson prior to the recent meet in Chicago. But, in any event Simpson is still the favorite, and is being picked by the majority of sprint followers to win the National A. A. U. title in the hundred at Denver.

IT takes more than brute strength and rough stuff to win a fight in the long run, as Max Schmeling's victory over Paulino Uzcudun by a decision in 15 rounds in New York last night demonstrated. Ability to "take it" yourself isn't enough. You've got to be able to punch and to hurt the other fellow.

Apart from Schmeling's superior speed and boxing ability there were two things that were overlooked by those who couldn't see a chance for the German in last night's fight. One was the fact that Paulino can't punch, and the other was Schmeling's endurance.

INSTEAD of being worn out by the brute strength and vaunted gruelling attack of the Spaniard, Schmeling had more in reserve after the tenth round than did the "tough baby" he was facing, and it was by bringing that reserve into play in the latter part of the going that he won. He took all that the Basque could give him, and then dealt out more in return, though lacking the punch to put his opponent away. In short it seems that the German out-Paulinoed Paulino. As expected, by many, it was a poor fight the greater part of the way, and, also as expected by the majority, the winner showed nothing to cause Jack Sharkey any loss of sleep between now and the date of the title match in September.

CARD COMPLETE FOR SHOW AT BOWL

Everything is in readiness for Monday night's show at the Meyers Bowl, Braddock. Matchmaker Jules Beck today announced that his card for the coming show is complete with the signing of Johnny Haggerty and Young Nanci for an eight-round semi-final return bout. The show next week should be a welcome one to the fans, for the principals in the main bout are ardent students of sockology and should either one pass out before the final bell it will be no surprise. Everyone knows that Sergt. Sammy Baker, Mitchel Field welterweight, is one of the best punchers in the business, and our own local boy, Jack Zivic, is a puncher just as dangerous. Although Jack has not been in the ring since his trip to the coast, he is in better shape than he has been for a long time.

SOLMEN BACK

Beck also has lined up two good boys for the third bout of six rounds in Joey Feldman, of Cleveland, and Howard Williams, Swissvale Negro. Mickey Solmen will come back to the ring after a layoff against Chuck Zelnack in the six-round opener.

A broken right jaw will keep Alan Beatty, Negro welterweight, of McKeesport, on the shelf for at least seven months, according to Beatty's attending physician at the McKeesport Hospital, where he was taken immediately after his fight with Rudy Ceder last Tuesday night at New Kensington. Ceder caught Beatty on the jaw with a left hook in the ninth round that did the damage.

The card for the benefit show at Charleroi ball park Monday night is complete. Cuddy DeMarco meets Eddie Frisco, of New York, in the 10-round main bout with Battling Gizzy trading punches with Frankie Buff in the semi-final. Johnny Russell takes on Harry Spencer in the second bout and Judy Marz and Young Bruce will square off in the opener.

HUDKINS, BELANGER CLASH

Ace Hudkins tosses his hat into the heavyweight circle at San Francisco where he meets Charley Belanger, the Canadian heavyweight, in a 10-round bout. Murray Gitlits and Ernie Schaaf are two other big fellows who will do their stuff tonight in a 10-round bout at New Haven, Connecticut.

Jackie Murray, local Negro welterweight, will be pitted against Larry Madge, of Cleveland, tonight in a 10-round main go at Sebring, O.

At Long Beach Stadium, New York, tonight, Rene DeVos, middleweight, of Belgium, takes on Ray Still in an eight-round bout. Bert Colima and Everett Strong are scheduled for 10 rounds at Los Angeles.

DIVER HURT

TILTONVILLE, O., June 28.—Ted Bloom, high school athlete, who has been swimming in the Ohio River as a means of getting in shape for the football season, invented the boomerang dive a few days ago at the Brilliant bathing beach. While trying an acrobatic stunt of somersaulting from a diving board, he landed on the board and sustained a cut nearly two inches long in his head.

fourteenth, when Schmeling hit me several times after the bell.

WILL NOT QUIT

Though I lost last night, I tried to win right up to the last bell. I could not see much then, just the lights and the form of the German. But I was strong enough to keep punching at him. I did everything I could to live up to the fame of the Basque people for courage, but I just could not slow Schmeling enough.

I congratulate the German on his victory, but this Basque will not quit the boxing game.

Basques don't quit.

"Wear a Plus-Six and Marry the Daughter of Your Boss," Says Prof. McGuffy

"The quickest way into a fortune and success is through the family entrance...you can marry yourself to more money than hard work will ever win you. I passed up a chance to wed the daughter of a reputable old brewer when I left college...and where am I now? Be a snob...but never buy a suit of clothes unless it has extra trousers...wear a Plus-Six and adopt a "high-hat" attitude and the boss's daughter will be enthralled. You can keep the extra pair of trousers always freshly pressed and you won't lose the crease till you propose like a movie actor...on bended knee...after that, nothing else matters."

And, considering the standard low price, Plus-Six suits will bear lightly on the purse...they'll enable men to save more when saving counts most. Tad's Immortal Fight Stories

By TAD

(For 30 years, Tad (T. A. Dorgan), one of the greatest cartoonists and sports authorities, covered the "fight game." Shortly before his death, recently, he wrote and illustrated a score of stories describing, in his inimitable style, those ring battles which for thrills and sensationalism were stamped indelibly in his mind. These reminiscences deal not only with fights in which titles were at stake, but also with thrilling affairs staged in private and at the smaller clubs. This story is one of the series. Others will follow.)

WITH his right hand still clinging to the upper rope in his opponent's corner, Freddie Welsh, beaten and helpless, tried to lift himself up in the ninth round of his championship fight at the Manhattan Casino, New York, on May 28, 1917.

Before the toppled titleholder stood Benny Leonard.

Kid McPartland, the referee, had just pushed Leonard away, automatically making him the champion, the first New York City boy to claim such a distinction in any class.

Welsh was not on the floor, and there had not been a count of any sort over him, yet he was in such a helpless condition that to allow the quarrel to go further would have been more than brutal.

For eight rounds the little Briton had done fairly well. He was outpointed, but he never was really stung. As the bell clanged for the ninth period, Welsh walked up well covered, as he had in previous rounds, and then started to dance about.

LEONARD danced sideways with the champion, and, as he drew near, he let a right go to Freddie's mush. The right landed about two inches below the top of Fred's head. It was a terrific wallop, and, as it crashed, Walsh tripped and it looked as if he was about to fall.

He recovered his balance, but Leonard was right on top of him with a volley of rights and lefts. He fought the Briton along the ropes toward his own corner, and there was a terrific battle along the line, with Welsh running second all the way.

A roar went up from the crowded house. Leonard let fly another right, but this time it landed flush on the chin and Fred fell to the floor for the second time during his long ring career.

As Welsh fell he grabbed the lower rope and pulled himself up immediately. It was very poor judgment on his part. A novice at the game will take the count to clear his head.

This round had lasted only 40 seconds that far. Leonard tore into his man and another right put Fred to the mat once more. He turned over on his side, grabbed the lower rope again and was up in a jiffy, but very much bewildered.

Leonard, thinking he might fall without being hit, stepped back to see. Welsh didn't however. Instead, he looked in blank fashion around the ring.

Then Leonard put all he had into another right, and, catching his man on the ear, sent him down on his face to the resin. Once more Welsh rolled over, and before the referee could count had clambered up the ropes again.

The crowd at this stage of the battle was wild.

WELSH had just reached his feet when Leonard sailed in again. He hit Fred on the chin with lefts and rights at the rate of about six or seven a second. Welsh gradually slipped from a standing position, and, grabbing the upper rope, held himself while Leonard did everything but kick him with the bucket.

He sent in right after right while Welsh held himself there almost in a sitting position. Blood poured from his mouth and nose. It was a terrible sight. The crowd yelled "Stop it!" Referee McPartland then did the right thing, and, pushing Leonard away, lifted the beaten Briton to his feet.

Freddie stood up straight. Then, as McPartland turned to speak to Leonard, he fell to the ropes and rebounded clear across the ring. He reeled like a drunken man. His head was about even with his waist as he took a headlong dive through the ropes on the opposite side of the ring. Those at the ringside held him up until his seconds lifted him to his chair.

The crowd went wild. Hats were broken. Cops whanged guys with clubs, the ring was full of wild nuts, everybody telling everybody else something, and no one could hear.

Leonard walked over to Welsh's corner, and, shaking his hand, said, "Freddie, it comes to all champions." Welsh looked up in a daze and, thinking probably that he was on his farm, said, "Nellie, bring in the kiddies, here's a friend of mine."

GRIMES, LUCAS MAY CLASH TODAY

the event of a change, Ervin Brame will be on the mound.

LUCAS ON DECK

Manager Hendricks states that Red Lucas, Pirate tamer, will oppose the Buccos. Lucas owns the remarkable record of nine consecutive victories over the Pirates, his unique feat taking in a part of the 1927 race, all of 1928 and thus far into the present campaign. Needless to say the Buccos will be 'out there" trying to trim the clever sorrel-top.

The Freebooters may have to swing into action without the services of Lloyd Waner, who was on the bench yesterday with a sore throwing hand. The star centerfielder injured himself in the practice session of the previous afternoon, but he was able to play in the game of that day. Yesterday his condition was such as to keep him on the bench, so Fred Brickell sung into action. The chances are about even, however, that Lloyd will play today.

Brickell proved a valiant substitute, the Kansan making three hits against the southpaw pitching of Jake May, who was charged with the Cincinnati defeat. Brick, however, played in leftfield, Comorosky switching to the bigger range. The Polish Flier featured the contest with four clean hits, including a double.

PIE'S HIT WINS

Sharing the honors with Comorosky and Pie Traynor was Heinie Meine, St. Louis Dutchman, who turned in his third Pittsburgh victory. The new pitches, who has yet to feel defeat, held the Reds to nine hits and did not walk any of them. Heinie measured 11 Rhinelanders in a row for putouts before any of them were able to reach base.

Capt. Traynor put the game on the ice in the seventh after Pie had failed in a bunt attempt. Runners were on second and first with none out when Pie came up, the Oaklanders enjoying a one-run lead at the time. Pie eventually pulled a smashing three-bagger down the leftfield line, scoring his two buddies, and Pie himself rode over on Commy's fourth hit of the afternoon.

YANKS, CARDS BEATEN

By LES CONKLIN,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 28.—The world-champion Yankees, who a week ago launched a concerted offensive to overhaul the Athletics, today find themselves hurled back to third place, crushed in four out of six games with Connie Mack's high-powered machine. By losing the first of the three games in the Philadelphia series yesterday, the Hugmen dropped below the St. Louis Browns, who beat Tommy Thomas of the White Sox, 4 to 1, after being shut out for eight innings.

Although touched for home runs by Gehrig and Lazzeri, Rube Walberg outpitched Waite Hoyt, the New York Ace. The A's collected all their runs in pairs, each time after two were out, and won 6 to 3.

The Yanks are only two games in front of the Tigers, who trounced Cleveland, 6 to 2, thanks to Roy Johnson's homer with the bases full.

Aided by the hitting of Scarritt and Ken Williams, Ed Morris pitched the Red Sox to a 4-to-1 win over Washington. Morris allowed only five hits.

Rogers Hornsby was the big noise in the Cub's 5-to-4 victory over his former mates, the Cardinals. The Rajah's home run in the eighth, his third hit of the day, gave Guy Bush the edge over Clarence Mitchell.

The Giants picked on their favorite victims, the Phillies, 9 to 3, and tied St. Louis for third place after a long chase. Memphis Bill Terry hit a single which made him the first big leaguer to garner 100 hits this season.

Win Ballou, toreador of the Brooklyn bull pen, won his first game of the season in defeating the Braves, 8 to 5.

Anjeanette Hunter Victor At Buffalo

BUFFALO, June 28.—Miss Anjeanette Hunter, of the Stanton Heights Country Club, Pittsburgh, today meets Mrs. Leo Federman, Glen Oaks, L. I., in the lower half semi-final match of the championship flight of the Buffalo Country Club's ninth annual women's invitation tournament.

In nine of her three matches in the tournament, Miss Hunter has won before the eighteenth green was reached. Yesterday she halved the hole and retained her 1 up advantage on Miss Dora Virtue, Montreal. She dropped a seven-foot putt for the half.

Mrs. Federman qualified by defeating Miss Wattles, Buffalo, 2 and 1, holding the advantage all the way.

BOBBY JONES' 69 UPSETS PROS

By HORTON SMITH,
French Open Champion and Sensational Young U. S. Pro.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., June 28.—Another big Southern victory on Northern battlefields, as well as another big amateur victory with the professionals all falling in behind as Bobby Jones stepped out in front in the National Open, beating a big drum and the rest of us little drums. As the parade swung around the Winged Foot course, the thunder of the Atlanta attorney rent the silence of the beautiful June day and upset the equilibrium of many of the professionals in the locker room.

Horton Smith.

The news that Bobby had done a 69 got around here much faster than the news spread when Washington crossed the Delaware. It was the first time Bobby had broken 70 in the open championship and he accomplished it in such a sensational manner that it created an uproar. At the ninth hole, after a bad start, marked by a brilliant fifth hole where he did an eagle three, he was out in 38. This was not too hot. But he cut loose on the back stretch, and, starting at the tenth hole, played five consecutive threes and then four consecutive fours. Can you beat that? The truth is you can't even tie it.

LEADS WITH 69

It gave Bobby a 69 for the round, put him on top for the day and sitting pretty for the journey to come. He seems to have a reservation made for the rest of the championship, but he isn't quite the winner yet, as Al Espinosa has done a 70 and Gene Sarazen a 71, and some of the other boys are not too far behind to get up before Saturday night. My own round was a 76, the same as played a little later by Walter Hagen. I was satisfied with my 38 going out because I did not play too well, but deserved something better than the same figure for the last nine.

FARRELL CRACKS

Johnny Farrell had the saddest experience of the day, the defending open champion taking 46 for the first nine and 84 for the round, which puts him 15 strokes behind Jones. He had an eight and three sixes going out when he failed to hit his shots straight to these well-guarded greens.

GOLF AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

Should a wood club ever be used for a shot out of a sand trap?

Answered by

JOE TURNESA

Mid-South Open Champion, 1928; Well-known Professional.

This is a shot that needs particular consideration on the part of the player. There are numerous traps that supply good lies, and yet the ball is far enough away from the bank to insure it of its height, in which case the spoon should be used. When the shot can't be gotten home with a spoon, it is well to play two irons and make sure of the shots. Only use a spoon in this case, since the brassie would not get the ball to its height soon enough.

Trainer Is Held In Doping Horses

CHICAGO, June 28.—(AP.)—Reports that drugged horses have been run in races here today were under investigation, following the arrest yesterday of Frank Tennant, a trainer at the Washington Park track, on charge of violation of Federal narcotic laws.

Agents under Henry L. Balaban, assistant United State district attorney, raided Tennant's quarters, and sized his trunk which was found to contain narcotics. Balaban said the raid followed numerous complaints that drugged horses were being run at the track.

Jockey E. Roehm, employed by the stable for which Tennant acted as trainer, was suspended indefinitely by the stewards for 'heedless riding."

College Swimming Conference Formed

Pitt, Carnegie Tech, Wash-Jeff and Westminster yesterday formed the Tri-State Intercollegiate Swimming Conference, sponsored by Pat Corr, swimming coach of the University of Pittsburgh. A championship trophy will be awarded the team winning the league competition.

UNIVERSAL ACE LEAVES FOR N. Y. U.

By TOM BIRKS.

Ernie Vavra, star pitcher of the Universal nine of the West Penn League, will be lost to Manager McKeag for the balance of the season. Vavra twirled the game against Export-Murraysville and only allowed the Geiger club three hits on Wednesday, and this evening will pack his grip and board the rattler for New York.

The fast ball star will report to Chick Meehan, football coach at New York University, on Monday, and the big light-haired boy expects to make a showing with the Violets.

Vavra has been in the limelight for many years as a star of the sandlots. He was a member of the Universal Class A champions in 1927.

What stands out as the leading game in the Steel City League should be flashed this evening at Malone Field, when the Moore Cardinals hook up with the Dispatch nine. The leadership of the loop goes to the winner of this game. Herron Hill Cardinals are also in this tie and play at Sullivan Field, but the Hill boys are not looking for any serious opposition in their game.

The Wagner All-Stars will be the attraction at Wilson avenue this evening, meeting Johnny Dunsky's Pleasant Valley nine. The presence of the famous Honus Wagner with the Carnegie club will undoubtedly pack in the fans. The All-Stars expect to beat the City Leaguers.

Wagner's club has only lost one game to date, and when its home field is finished, will take on a big schedule, with Dougherty and Wright in charge.

Favorites came through in fine fashion in last evening's sandlot program. In the Inter-County League, Homewood nosed out the Jimmy Smith Club, 8 to 5. Book Shoe took the Reineckers over the bumps, 11 to 6, in the only City League tussle on the books.

LIGHTERS WIN

Duquesne Light won over the Philadelphia Company, 4 to 1, in a Philadelphia Company League affair. Presbyterians defeated Hawthorne, 3 to 2, in a close Crafton Church League battle at Crafton. Twin iCty Radiators trimmed City View, 6 to 3, in a Greater North Side loop fracas, and the Collier Juniors won over the Berner Cubs, 7 to 6.

The Homestead Grays got an even break in their American Negro League double bill with the Bachrach Giants in Atlantic City. They won the first game, 5 to 4, but lost the second, 11 to 2.

The Chicago Ranger Girls, making their first local appearance, were defeated by Pop Geers' Stowe Civics, 7 to 4. The J. J. Boyles downed the J. L. Thomas nine in an independent feature, 7 to 6.

LOAN INCREASE DISREGARDED BY BULLS

Stocks Pushed Vigorously Into Higher Ground With Gains From 3 to 20 Points

NEW YORK, June 28.—(AP.) — Bullish operations were conducted at a vigorous pace in today's stock market, which completely disregarded the increase of $122,000,000 in brokers' loans last week. Public utility, steel and electrical equipment shares were in the forefront of the advance, many of the gains ranging from 3 to 20 points.

Meanwhile, credit conditions showed signs of relaxation. Call money renewed unchanged at 10 per cent for the fourth consecutive day and while the undertone was firm, the rate was expected by money brokers to hold at that figure. Time money was slightly easier, with the four months maturities quoted as low as 7½ per cent. This was construed as an indication that rates generally would work lower next month although flurries in call money are likely until around the middle of July.

Resumption of payments on the Erie Railroad preferred issues for the first time in 22 years was the most outstanding development in the day's financial news. All three classes of Erie stock responded to the announcement by climbing more than $2 a share to new high records.

PEOPLES GAS SOARS

Peoples Gas was the sensational feature in the public utility group, soaring 20½ points to a new high record at 300. American Telephone, Standard Gas and Electric, American and Foreign Power, Southern California Edison, Pacific Gas and Electric and American Water Works sold 3 to nearly 6 points higher. American Power and Light, Columbia Gas and Electric, Consolidated Gas of New York, and Engineers Public Service all moved into new high ground, the extreme gain in each case running over 3 points.

General Electric resumed its advance by climbing more than 6 points to a new high record at 322. Allis Chalmers scored an extreme gain of 6½ points and Westinghouse Electric 3.

United States Steel common, stockholders of which are looking forward to a special dividend distribution next month, moved up more than 3 points to 191⅜, or 2½ points below the high price reached prior to the enlarged capitalization of the Corporation. Sharon Steel Hoop ran up more than 5 points to a new high at 51 and Bethlehem was quickly marked up more than 4 points.

BUSINESS MACHINE UP

International Business Machines was bid up nearly 9 points to a new high at 210. Revival of speculative activity and strength in Mexican Seaboard was in anticipation of the nearly bringing in of a new well on the Kettlemen Hill's property. Allied Chemical dipped 5 points in the early trading to 320 and then rebounded to 328, a new high record.

Indiana Pipe Line Orders $20 Payment

The Indiana Pipe Line Co. has ordered a distribution of $20 a share from capital stock reduction account, which will be paid upon surrender of one old $50 par share in exchange for three new $10 par shares. Directors declared a $3 extra cash dividend and regular quarterly of $1 on the old stock, payable August 15 to record July 26.

Seiberling Silent On Tire Cut Rumor

AKRON, O., June 28.—Rumors concerning a tire price reduction are afloat in rubber circles, following a visit in Akron by A. L. Viles, manager of the Rubber Association of America.

However, F. A. Seiberling, president of the rubber association and of Seiberling Rubber Company, says there is no foundation to the report.

Borg-Warner Stock Earns $5.12 Share

CHICAGO, June 28.—Borg-Warner Corporation reports net income for the first five months of 1929 amounting to $3,911,552, equal after preferred dividends and minority interest in subsidiaries to $5.12 a share on 744,068 shares of common stock outstanding. No comparison for the corresponding period a year ago is available.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, June 28.—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 4 points to a decline of 3 points. No further May notices were reported, and near months were relatively firm on some trade buying and covering, which sent the price of July up to 18.25c during the early trading or about 12 points net higher.

There was some buying of later deliveries on weather and boll weevil advices, but this was supplied by selling encouraged by relatively easy cables, and prices worked 3 or 4 points below yesterday's closing quotations right after the call.

Later the market was quiet and fairly steady within a point or two either way of yesterday's closing figures, except for July, which held the early advance.

Two private reports were issued, one estimating the increase in acreage at 4.14 per cent, while the other pointed to an increase of 3.3 per cent in acreage and placed the condition at 72.7 per cent.

A third private report was issued later placing the condition at 72 and pointing to an increase of 4 per cent in acreage. These private reports were without any apparent effect on the market, which remained very quiet, but held generally steady late in the morning.

At midday July was selling at 18.24c or 11 points net higher, while later months were within a point or two of yesterday's closing quotations with December holding around 18.86c.

Basic Optimism.

The real basic reason for being optimistic on the immediate course of the stock market lies in the conjecture that the Federal Reserve will release large sums to aid the crop movement, says Jackson Bros., Boesel & Co. Our estimate that some $200,000,000 may be thrown into the money market through the purchase of bills seems conservative in the light of dispatches coming from Washington. One of the newspaper estimates that the Federal Reserve will throw as much as $500,000,000 into the money market. Investors and speculators who are confident of the business outlook for the third quarter will naturally tap this credit reservoir even though it is designed specifically to aid the crop movement. That was the case last year when the average price of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange advanced from 76.89 to 93.40 between July 1, 1928, and October 1, 1928, and in that period the government put only $86,500,000 of new money into the market by purchases of bills. At the present time the government holds only about $37,000,000 in bills, the lowest since August, 1924, whereas a year ago the bill holdings totaled about $136,400,000.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Chile Copper Company reports first quarter net income of $9,453,690 after depreciation and taxes, but before depletion, equal to $2.14 a share on 4,415,499 shares, against $3,172,766, or 72c a share, in 1928 quarter. The company on May 31 had $16,256,600 in cash and cash reserves. Sales of copper totaled 93,485,659 pounds, against 50,762,062 in the same 1928 period.

Andes Copper Mining Company reports first quarter net income of $3,814,503 after expenses, depreciation and accrued taxes, but before depletion, equal to $1.07 a share on 3,577,495 shares.

Combined Railroad Earnings Increase

NEW YORK, June 28.—The first 50 railroads to report May earnings show an aggregate net railway operating income of $82,700,000, compared with $70,732,000 in May, 1928.

Erie R. R. Resumes Payments on Preferreds

NEW YORK, June 28.—The Erie Railroad Company declared two semi-annual dividends on both first and second preferred stocks of $2 each. The first dividend is payable July 31 to record July 16, and the second December 31 to record December 16.

This places both issues on a $4 annual basis. The last dividend payment on both preferred issues was in 1907, when $2 was paid.

Erie common stock was a strong spot in the carrier group this afternoon, moving up to around the highest levels on record at 81¾ following the announcement.

Norfolk-Western Seeking Rail Bids

ROANOKE, Va., June 28.—The Norfolk and Western railroad is inquiring for 39,000 tons of steel rails and is also arranging to build 10 all-steel box express cars at its local shops.

Foreign Copper Demand Expanding

NEW YORK, June 28.—Buying of copper for foreign account was in heavy volume in the early market today, aggregating approximately 3,000,000 pounds, which exceeds the recent average total for a full day. The price was strong at 18.30c a pound c.i.f. Hamburg.

Ultimate consumers of wire and brass are coming into fabricators with new business in encouraging volume but wire drawers are buying only moderately as yet. The outlook is for fair buying on foreign and domestic account over the next week or 10 days.

Koppers Gets Ovens From Brooklyn Gas

NEW YORK, June 28.—Brooklyn Union Gas Company and Brooklyn Coke and By-Products Corporation, subsidiary of Koppers Coke Corporation, has asked the Public Service Commission for permission to transfer coke ovens owned by the gas company to Koppers subsidiary, which is willing to pay cost of about $17,000,000.

LOCAL FUELS IN ACTIVE DEMAND

Western Public Service Leads Trading in Gas Securities; General List Holds Steady

Securities were in good demand in the early trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today with volume of trading holding up to the recently expanded average.

The heaviest dealings in the forenoon session were in the fuel stocks with Western Public Service holding the center of trading interest. Several hundred shares of the issue were wanted at the start and the demand lifted the price to above last night's close following the first sale at a slight fractional decline. Lone Star Gas old and new held close to the previous session's closings and the Lone Star rights continued to range around 6¼.

Carnegie Metals appeared in the initial dealings at 20, unchanged from yesterday's final price. The stock appeared to be steady at that figure, which represents a gain of about three points from the level at which it started its advance this week.

Devonian Oil was the active member of the oil-producing group with a fairly large volume of the stock changing hands around $10 a share.

Miscellaneous manufacturing issues and specialties were steady to strong. Several of the issues in which there has been only small dealings recently showed advances of a point or so when they came into the market today. Hachmeister-Lind and Pruett-Schaffer preferred both sold up a point. On the other hand, Mayflower Drug dropped back a point to 10, the last previous sale having been made at 11, last week.

A Romance of Two Youths; Why They Have Succeeded.

By B. C. FORBES

ROMANCE lies behind the announcement that Stone & Webster is to become a $100,000,000 organization and that the public will be given opportunity to share in its profits.

This famous firm was planned when Charles A. Stone and Edwin S. Webster were classmates at Massachusetts Institute of Technology 45 years ago. They were probably the first strictly electrical engineering firm in America. Electricity was not taken seriously by any but a few imaginative minds in those days.

The two youths have since made history. They have built 10 per cent of all the installed central station capacity of this country. Under their supervision are 60 public utility developments in the United States, Canada, and the West Indies. They recently built the largest Hydro-electric power installation in the world. They have performed many monumental engineering and construction feats, involving expenditures of more than a billion dollars. They have become one of the largest investment security enterprises in the land.

THE Damon and Phythias friendship began when they were given adjoining seats at the entrance examination for a class being founded in electricity, a class which attracted only a handful of students.

After graduating, Stone gained experience as assistant to the famous Elihu Thomson, who later became identified with General Electric. Webster sought financial experience with Kidder, Peabody & Company.

But in 1889 they hung up their own shingle.

"WHY electrical engineering?" I asked Mr. Stone.

"Electricity was new in industry," he replied. "But we both had confidence that it was destined to become a factor of tremendous importance."

Although the partners had just 21, they exhibited business acumen by engaging the Massachusetts Institute's two most eminent professors as consulting engineers. Thus conservative business men who might have hesitated to entrust costly contracts to two beardless boys were reassured.

Their most momentous initial achievement was the harnessing of a river 15 miles away and conveying electrical power to run a paper mill. They had to invent many of the necessary tools, much of the requisite machinery and overcome difficulties new to engineering. The installation, however, proved a complete success, and when the newspapers and technical journals announced how two youthful engineers had transformed falling waters into electric current and forced it to run an industrial plant miles away, the fame of Stone and Webster spread.

MESSRS. STONE AND WEBSTER attribute their growth mainly to the men they have picked and to their successful method of handling them. Their original force consisted of one office boy. Today they employ many thousands. Numbers and Stone and Webster graduates have become famous. When I quizzed Mr. Stone about his selecting and handling of men, he said:

"We begin by picking the most promising material. We draw a good many of our young men from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. We select men with quick perception, business intellect, plenty of energy, and a proper amount of ambition. We impress upon each young fellow at the very start that he cannot hope to attain success either for himself or for the organization unless he adapts himself to team-play.

"We teach every young man in our employ that he must make it easy for us to promote him, and the best way he can do this is by fitting someone to fill his own job. Every man in our organization must train an alternate. Thus, promotions cannot disrupt our organization.

"We believe in large salaries and pay many. We also have a profit-sharing plan which has charged the men with ambitions and paid them well. Nine out of every 10 employers make the mistake of looking upon men as cogs in a machine, and expecting those cogs to remain in the spot in which they are placed year after year until they are worn out. By using a man permanently in exactly the same spot they imagine they are receiving the maximum amount of efficiency.

"That has not been our system. We believe in promotions. We want every man to feel that we want him to advance to the very limit of his capacity, and in cases where an unusually able man is offered a bigger opportunity outside we gladly urge him to take it.

"We keep in close and constant touch with all our men. We are always eagerly watching for talent. The officers of our various plants regularly send us reports covering the showing made by the men under them."

Incidentally, I have never known the head of a great enterprise more eager than Mr. Stone to have credit given his associates. He declares, for instance, that George O. Muhlfeld has the happiest faculty of any man he as ever known for inspiring all classes of employes, from day laborer up, to give of their best. Whenever a huge construction job threatens to fall behind, Mr. Stone told me that he knew even miracles could be performed, if necessary, by putting Muhlfeld on the job.

SO STONE & WEBSTER is another illustration of the truth foresight is essential to maximum that men count most. Also, that success.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, June 28.—(AP.)—A broad advance set in on the curb exchange today, carrying several public utilities and other favorites into record high ground. Trading was so heavy that the ticker fell at one time 40 minutes behind the market. The sharp advances attracted some selling, but the main body of stock held their leads.

Ten per cent call money was a bullish factor, with failure of the New York Federal Reserve Bank to change the rediscount rate. Traders viewed the $122,000,000 increase in brokers' loans as a natural result of the exercising of tremendous volume stock purchase rights.

Utilities Power and Light "A" was the feature, jumping more than 10 points to a record high above 51, before encountering selling. Through United Light and Railways this company owns a substantial interest in the common stock of American Light and Traction Company and Detroit Edison. Electric Bond and Share was pushed up more than 6 points above 123 to a new high. Commonwealth and Southern, which broke individual trading records last week, opened with a block of 100,000 shares at 26¾ and moved up to above 27 for a gain of more than a point. Southeastern Power and Light, American Foreign Power warrants, Long Island Lighting, Northeastern Power and Consolidated Gas were strong. American Gas and Electric sold off on profit-taking.

Aviation shares turned irregular after their strong demonstration yesterday on announcement of the Curtiss-Wright merger. Stock of Curtiss-Wright, the new holding company, displayed an easier tone. Keystone Aircraft continued strong, but Douglas Aircraft sold off.

The oils were quiet, with Cosden holding around yesterday's closing level.

Investment Trust continued to display a firm tone. Goldman Sachs was in demand on announcement Insurance Shares, in which it holds a third interest, had bought a block of 200 shares of First National Bank stock at 400 points under the market. The present market is 6,300 bid and 6,500 asked.

Checker Cab, in which a new pool is operating, scored a substantial gain. Bristol Myers again broke through to a record high price. Newmont Mining, which is ex-dividend, dropped at one time 7 points. Fleischmann Royal was steady.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, June 28.—Influenced by estimates that Canada would harvest 200,000,000 bushels less spring wheat than last year, wheat prices advanced today after an irregular start. The market also was strengthened by reports of notable absence of rain today in the spring wheat belt. Opening ⅝ off to ⅛ up, wheat afterward scored pronounced gains all around. Corn, oats and provisions were likewise firmer, with corn starting ⅛ to ¾ higher, and subsequently continuing upgrade.

Quick response today by the wheat market here was made to crop reports from the Canadian Growers' pool indicating that the 1929 spring wheat yield in Canada would total only about 315,000,000 bushels compared with 508,000,000 in 1928. The big falling-off thus forecast was made more extraordinary by the fact that estimates made allowance for an assumed increase of 10 per cent in the 1929 planted acreage of each of the three prairie provinces.

According to the figures of the Canadian Growers' pool, Alberta Province will raise but 86,400,000 bushels of wheat this year against 152,000,000 bushels last year, Saskatchewan, 188,00,000 against 303,399,000, and Manitoba, 40,400,000 against 52,383,000. Supplementing the pool forecast were trade reports from Winnipeg today, putting the present conditions of the Canadian wheat crop at 85 per cent compared with 101 a year ago, a showing almost entirely the result of persistent unusual moisture shortage this season.

Unemployment Could Be Eliminated With State And Federal Programs

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The United States is just concluding six months of peak industrial activity, and yet during the period of record breaking production the country has not been without unemployment.

Frank A. Vanderlip once described prosperity as full employment of labor at high effective wages. President Hoover, interested in abolishing poverty, requested the conference of governors, meeting at New Orleans last November, to give state co-operation to the federal government in using public expenditures to help even out the curves of business prosperity and depression, and thus to keep up employment.

Such a program involves long range planning of public works, quickening public activity when private activity slackens and vice versa.

"Three requisites—construction plans, public credit and economic indexes—will enable federal, state and local governments not only to increase public expenditures promptly when private business lags," William Truant Foster, head of the Pollack Economic Foundation, and Waddill Catchings, president of the Goldman Sachs Financial and Trading Corporation, experts on problems of sustaining prosperity, point out in the Century. "but also to decrease expenditures promptly when private business forges ahead too rapidly. And business does expand too rapidly, whenever, as in 1917-19, it drives up commodity prices and thereby increases speculation in commodities. By regulating that part of the total flow of money for which they are responsible, governments may help to prevent such inflation and the deflation which inevitably follows. Thus they may help to sustain trade and employment."

In the direction of fact finding, progress will be made next year when for the first time the federal government will make a census of unemployment. Incidentally, Senator Wagner, of New York, introduced a bill (S 4157) for a federal employment service, which would help to carry out the administration program.

TEN STATES TO HELP

Ten states are also taking steps in this direction. Massachusetts is improving its economic statistics and is preparing to lay out a five-year public building program.

In order to carry forward the program of stabilizing business, Catchings and Foster point out that the Federal Reserve Board has a responsibility, saying: "If, for instance, the Reserve Board, acting upon opinions instead of facts, arbitrarily forces up interest rates when commodity prices and employment are falling off, thereby discouraging construction activities, private and public, and decreasing payrolls throughout the country, the Reserve Board may more than offset all the efforts of other agencies to sustain the demand for goods and labor.

"All branches of government, Federal, state and local, in all activities which affect the flow of money, should take into account existing business conditions and trends, especially prices and employment, as revealed by adequate timely measurements. That, as we understand it, is the core of the policy approved by President Hoover for providing better jobs and more of them."

CAPITAL VS. INCOME GAINS

Irrespective of the economic soundness of the procedure, the American public is tending to use paper profits in the stock market as purchasing power. With the May reaction in security prices, the steamship companies reported numerous cancellations in trans-Atlantic bookings. The current revival of speculative bullishness accordingly should result in the reinstatement of canceled bookings. The federal government is partly responsible for this warped economic attitude toward capital gains, which for tax purposes it regards as economic. Foreign governments do not do this. Some months ago, A. H. Wiggin, head of the Chase National Bank, warned against the practice of regarding capital gains as income suitable for purchasing consumable goods. Irrespective of the theoretical merits of the case, rising stock prices—and expanding payrolls—promote public buying of ships, and shoes, and sealing wax, and lay the basis for business prosperity.

The English take a more austere view of the economic differences between capital gains and income. Over there a man's wealth is measured in terms of income, not in terms of principal.

Week's Bank Statement May Indicate Easier Reserve Policies.

WALL STREET interpreted this week's Federal Reserve statements as not alone explaning in a large way the relative complacency of the money market in face of heavy shifting against July 1 settlements, but more than that as indicating a much more lenient attitude on the part of that organization. True, the reserve while adding moderately to its holdings of government bonds, was not very active in acquiring opening market bills. The New York Bank increased its holdings slightly over $2,000,000, but the system's bill portfolit was cut by about $4,200,000. The reserve, however, does not appear to be discouraging rediscounting by members banks to the same extent as was the case until recently. Largely due to the increase of $57,600,000 in rediscounts, with the New York total expanded $63,000,000, the aggregate of reserve credit in use increased $64,000,000 during the week.

Though it is virtually impossible to obtain anything like definite figures on the amount of loans called in the course of a day, well-posted money brokers placed the total of such withdrawals as substantially above $70,000,000. Yet in face of this heavy calling, and the fact that money was in brisk demand at 12 per cent on the outside, the official call rate was maintained at 10 per cent, with floor requirements provided for at that level throughout the day. The ease in time money, incidentally, was ascribed to disinclination of borrowers to take on fixed maturity funds in the belief that when the July 1 strain has passed, and this may extend along until around July 10, the general money situation will be much easier.

WALL STREET was disposed to ignore the reported increase of $122,000,00 in brokers' loans which brought the rise for the past fortnight to $258,000,000. This expansion was looked upon as offset by the indications contained in the weekly bank statements of an inclination of the part of the reserve to aid the market over the present period of stress. The interesting point in the loan figures was the disclosure that the stock market is depending now to a greater extent than ever before on demand funds. The figures showed time loans had been cut $23,000,000 during the period, which indicated that the total of demand loans had actually increased $145,000,000 in the week. This was looked upon as explaining the ease in time money, and as indicating that borrowers are satisfied that easier money conditions are ahead.

Following shortly on the heels of decision of the Stock Exchange to admit securities of investment trusts to trading privileges, today's new listings included the shares of two such companies, namely the Sterling Securities Corporation and the General Public Service Corporation. Both stocks proved rather popular on the first day on the "big board," particularly Sterling Securities, in which there was considerable activity. Data submitted to the Stock Exchange in the application for listing showed both companies to hold well-diversified investments, with the statement of General Public Service, indicating that the company has been active in some measure on the buying side since the turn of the year.

WITH Montagu Norman, head of the institution, reported on his way here, Wall Street was given over to discussing the possibilities of a further rise in the rate of the Bank of England in the near future. News of the engagement of $5,000,000 more gold at London for New York account today naturally tended to enliven such discussion, as did the disclosure in the bank's weekly statement that its ratio is now down to 44.70 per cent, against a high of over 58 per cent a short time ago. The gold taken for American account today, together with the $16,470,000 previously taken for German account brings the total export movement of gold from London this week to around $30,000,000.

Optimistic remarks of P. E. Corwley, head of the New York Central, on his departure for abroad this morning, combined with the splendid earning statement of the road for May, influenced further heavy buying of the big trunk line stock. At top levels it was up some 3 points and into new record territory. The head of the road looks forward to satisfactory results for the year, and, among other things, set down, for the time being at least, reports of the impending formation of another holding company, by pointing out that there is already the New York Central Securities Company, available for such purposes as might be necessary. The May report showed gross $2,200,000 above last year, but charges against earnings were substantially larger, leaving net operating income only $400,000 ahead of May, 1928. For the first five months net operating income increased $2,400,000.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, June 28.—The raw sugar market was firmer with prices 1-16c higher at 3.64c duty paid. Refiners showed no interest at this level as yet, but operators were buyers and a sale was reported of 33,000 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment. The firmness which developed in futures yesterday as a result of the talk of probable crop restriction in Cuba and the single selling agency plan was renewed this morning and on active covering and some outside buying first prices were 1 to 5 points higher. There was a good of realizing on this upturn, but there was enough buying to absorb all offerings and following the call active positions showed additional gains with the list at one time 6 to 7 points above the previous. Press reports that President Hoover favored some adjustment in the tariff schedule on sugar also had some influence, as did also the firmer spot market and better cables from London, but toward midday offerings increased and reactions followed with noon prices 3 to 3 points net higher.

Refined was unchanged at 5.00c for fine granulated, with second hands available below this level.

Plate Glass Volume Shows Gain

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company is benefiting by increased volume in most of its products but prices have shown no improvement. Although no signs of a sensational increase in earnings are seen for the present year, the company's position has been materially bettered in several respects.

President Hoover, acting on reports of the Tariff Commission, has increased the duties on both plate and window glass. The tariff bills pending before Congress will not effect the new duties as they are now drawn.

The higher tariff is expected to help Pittsburgh Plate Glass and other companies in the industry more in volume than in prices. No upward revision in prices is expected at the present time. The plate glass industry is enjoying an exceptionally large volume but the completion of new factories during the past year is tending to counteract the advantages of the higher tariff.

Related Lines.

DURING four lean years for both the plate and window glass industries, the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company has been able to maintain earnings at a fairly satisfactory rate through its widely diversified line of products.

Sales of paints, varnishes and lacquers have been maintained in a large volume. The chemical business has also been profitable. The country has suffered from an over-production of cement but Pittsburgh Plate's efforts in this industry have had reasonably good results.

Officials will not make any predictions on earnings for the present year but the increased volume of business is likely to result in a moderate degree of improvement over last year.

Profits Increased.

EARNINGS showed an increase last year for the first time in several years. The cut of 25 per cent in plate glass prices in July, 1925, followed by further slashes, reduced the company's margin of profit on its principal line. These drastic changes in prices were directly attributable to foreign competition. The company's earnings reflected the reduced return.

It was not until 1928 that economies in glass production and the increases in the other lines began to be manifest in earnings to a noticeable extent. In that year net profit after all charges was $8,468,773. This was equivalent to $3.91 a share on the 2,166,524 shares of stock.

In 1927 net profit was $6,430,356, or $3.27 a share, based on the same capitalization while in 1923, when the demand for automobile glass was at a peak and foreign producers were unable to seriously harm the domestic market, the company earned $19,113,124, or $9.84 a share.

Four-for-One Split.

ON October 9, 1928, the old stock of $100 par value was split into new stock of $25 par value on a four-for-one basis. The dividend rate was maintained on an 8 per cent annual basis. This rate has prevailed sinced 1920 with extra dividends declared as earnings warranted.

An extra of 3 per cent was paid in 1918. In 1920 and 1922 extras of 5 per cent were paid while from 1923 to 1926, inclusive, extras of 10 per cent were paid. The recent depression in the glass business brought an end to the declaration of extra dividends with the payment of 5 per cent on February 15, 1927.

The company is meeting changing trends in glass production by making large expenditures for new equipment to produce both plate and window glass at the lowest possible cost. These improvements to manufacturing methods have also made the production of new types of glass possible. Plate glass one-eighth of an inch in thickness is now produced on a commercial basis. In the past it was impossible to make plate glass of such a light weight except at a very high cost. This product is being fabricated into "duplate," a shatter-proof glass which is rapidly being adopted by the automobile trade.

Moto Meter Gauge

IN discussing the outlook for the first year of operations of the Moto Meter Gauge and Equipment Corporation, a consolidation of the Moto Meter Company and the Safe-T-Stat Company, President Roy G. Martin said that numerous economies would be effected through the reduction of overhead, of operation and sales costs and the combination of engineering and experimental departments.

"Upon the consummation of the merger plan on July 15 the corporation will have adequate working capital to conduct the combined business economically and successfully," said Mr. Martin.

"The net earnings during the first 12 months will total $2,500,000 or $5 a share. The gross of the two companies last year was slightly over $8,000,000 while the gross from present indications will be more than $12,000,000. Rights to subscribe for the new Moto Meter stock will expire on July 2.

BUGS BAER Says

DON'T MAKE THE CARS SMALLER

COMMISSIONER WHALEN has made some notable improvements since he was made director of metropolitan jams.

"Bugs" Baer

His suggestion that motor cars be made smaller is not new.

Truck drivers have been trying to cut touring cars in half for years.

The new town car of Henry Ford's is a very natty job and almost meets the traffic problem.

It is so small that all the shocks of collisions are absorbed by the chauffeur's knees.

The trouble with our roads is that they were boulevards when people rode bicycles. The answer to the present traffic jam is to go back to roller skates.

Over in France there is a very small car running around underfoot. It is about five feet long, two feet wide and is propelled by an outboard motor.

They are so tiny that they average about 10 cars to one summons.

But we are glad that Noah didn't have one of them instead of his ark.

If he had, he wouldn't have saved anybody except his stenographer.

You get about 30 stops to the gallon out of the average car in America.

We could make much better time touring if people were not so huffy about wheel tracks on their lawns.

The French car is built so the chauffeur is in front. You are directly in back of him. There is no room for anybody else.

When you fly down the boulevard at three miles a tour, you look like two sox on one ironing board.

They are not comfortable. Neither are they healthy.

Things are so crammed together that every time the chauffeur steps on the gas he takes your blood pressure.

Instead of solving traffic guesses by making the boats smaller, it would be a good idea to build roads wider and have the macadam nearer the service.

Put in more green lights and throw away the red ones.

Hold down the speed limit to one instalment a month and have a scientist invent a formula that will enable a car to grow new fenders.

Vote for fewer accessories and more improvements. How is a man going to drive when his windshield wipers are hopping all over the glass like the Dolly Sisters?

And, lastly, don't make the cars any smaller. When a man takes a ride in one of those little jiggers he doesn't want to get his showerbaths from a street sprinkler.

Owing to a previous engagement, the Committee of Prominent Citizens was unable to judge our Theme Song Contest at the appointed hour last night.

This necessitated a slight change in arrangements. Mr. Robert Armstrong (above) acted for the Mayor, who applauded excitedly.

In the confusion, a Theme Song was selected, but later misplaced. However, several copies, were hastily made so that the words can be printed tomorrow. Everybody dance.

Air Terminal on River Is Speeded by Council

Council is becoming "air-minded," or more air-minded, as our law-makers might prefer to have it expressed. This is indicated in sentiment voiced in Council chamber that the question of leasing part of the Monongahela wharf as a port for amphibian airplanes be decided promptly because aviation "represented a great future activity and should be fostered."

Discussion centered on a proposal received a couple of weeks ago for leasing wharf area for the purpose mentioned, and a communication Council had received from the Pittsburgh Coal Exchange requesting Council to look closely into the matter before going ahead. A later communication from the exchange stated it had no objections against making the lease.

However, in case there may be objectors, Council has decided to hold a public hearing on the matter, setting Monday as the date in the interest of promptness.

There appears to be no present reason why Pittsburgh should not have a downtown airport on one of the river fronts.

Killing 125,000 Americans Yearly

Cancer Interests Us All.

Cancer kills 125,000 Americans every year. Adult Americans ought to know how to detect cancer in its early stages, when usually it is easily cured.

The first important rule is not to neglect any abnormal growth however small.

Remember that cancer "starts from things which are not cancer." Moles, birthmarks and other skin signs should be examined for cancer tendencies and then removed.

KEEP CLEAN. Doctors tell you "dirt on the face may turn to skin cancer."

Coal miners rarely have that form of cancer, because their faces get so black each day that they have to wash them regularly.

Cab drivers and farmers working long hours, neglecting to wash their faces, have skin cancer most frequently.

The attack on cancer to begin next month at a research clinic of the Cook County Hospital in Chicago, interests millions of us. The able Charles Mayo will direct the work, with other able doctors.

Dr. Mayo reminds you that last year 127,000 died of cancer in this country, and probably more than 250,000 of us suffer from cancer now.

Of every eight women over 40 years of age, and of every nine men over that age, one will die from cancer.

It is believed that some method of prevention and cure will be found. Meanwhile, don't neglect any strange growth or swelling or other slight, ask your doctor about it. Taken in time, cancer is not dangerous. Many fail to see a doctor, because they are afraid they will be told "It is cancer."

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

It's easy enough to hand out money when you have plenty of it. It's not very difficult to give something, when you don't need anything yourself. But the kind of charity that makes you wish there was more of it—so long as you don't have to do the work—is the kind dispensed by the three most charitable women I ever heard about.

The first was a Salvation Army member, the second was a Salvation Army member, and the third would have made a very excellent Salvation Army member.

The first was in Chicago, the second was in Tappan, N. Y., and the third was in Hoopston, Ill.

The first was a young woman, very earnest about her work and always cheerful. There happened to be two elderly women, sisters, who lived together in a small apartment. They were destitute. The rent was little, but they were too old and feeble to take care of their little home.

At first it was thought best to send them to an institution of some kind. The old ladies pleaded. They wanted to have a home and be together. They hadn't long to live.

There were no arbitrary orders issued. The Salvationists got together and talked over the problem. Then the young woman made her speech. She would, she told them, be very glad to drop in and see the old ladies on her way home every night, wash the dishes, and to go there once a week and scrub the rooms and clean them thoroughly.

And she did it for two years. I suppose the old ladies are dead now, but the memory of that charity isn't.

The second was an old lady and her husband, Salvationists at Tappan, N. Y. This good woman kept house for 16 old men, the capacity of the farm house, paid for by the Army. She gives them loving care, listens to their troubles and gives them wonderful home cooking, doing all her own preserving and canning every year. She used to be a nurse and she nurses them when they are ill, watching over them uncomplainingly all night sometimes, after working hard all day. The men are very old and sometimes trying, but she doesn't lose patience.

The third is the woman of Hoopston, Ill. I'm not sure of her name, Scott Engel, a resident of Hoopston, took me to her.

For years she had taken in children who needed care and were homeless. She didn't adopt them. No indeed! They could go where they pleased, when they pleased. Only no one ever wanted to leave and once they got into this good woman's care the children stayed till they were married.

Her husband helped her to care for the children, and they were far from rich. They owned a good farm and had all modern improvements, but 16 children was something of an expense. However there never seemed to be a lack of clean white starched aprons in the house, and there were always rows and rows of jellies and jams and boxes of cake and cookies and home made bread.

As the children married and left, the old folks visited them and they came home for visits. There was more love there than I ever heard about in any other one spot.

The old lady would get out pictures and show you the young folks at all ages. Finally there were wedding pictures. Some of them had children, and she had baby pictures too. All in boxes, because the plush album got too full.

A nice record of accomplishments, isn't it? But of course the chief requisite for such work is a great heart.

A side light on the family that raised 16 of other peoples children: they were Scotch!

Bible Passages

He That Overcometh

(Revelation 2:7-13)

He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the Churches; To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God.

And unto the Angel of the church in Smyrna write; These things saith the first and the last, which was dead and is alive;

I know thy works, and tribulation, and poverty, (but thou art rich) and I know the blasphemy of them which say they are Jews, and are not, but are the synagogue of Satan.

Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer: behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried; and ye shall have tribulation ten days: be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.

He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death.

And to the angel of the church in Pargamos write; These things saith he which hath these harp sword with two edges;

I know thy works, and where thous dwellest, even where Satan's seat is; and thou holdest fast my name, and hast not denied my faith, even in those days wherein Antipas was my faithful martyr, who was slain among you, where Satan dwelleth.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

An extravagant woman has a tough time of it when she gets to be a widow, unless her husband carried a lot of insurance.

A woman like that got a job in a women's shoe store in Oklahoma City. The boss saw her throw three pairs of shoes into the ash can behind the store about closing time.

"What's the big notion?" says the boss.

"Oh, them shoes are no good," she says. "I tried them all on four different women, and they didn't fit any of them. Besides, the women didn't think much of them, and two of them gave me their opinion that the shoes were no good."

HE NEVER HAD A TOOTHACHE

By Herbert Kaufman

THE Field Museum exhibits a group of European ancestors, even TOO far removed for David Starr Jordan's identification—and that's SOME distance.

One regrets that his genealogical labors scarcely reach beyond Charlemagne, from whom, he assures us, Calvin Coolidge is a zigzag descendant.

Dr. Jordan also bears proud tidings to John D. Rockefeller that he shares the blood of French kings with George Washington, Aaron Burr and the various Winston Churchills.

Likewise, that David, of Scotland, may claim Chief Justice Taft, Secretary Wilbur, and—OF COURSE—J. P. Morgan as chips off the old block.

Persons who go in for such things are advised to secure their copy of "Your Family Tree," which obligingly joins the veins of "Alfred the Great, William the Conqueror and Robert Bruce" to "practically every" Anglo-American.

AND all these years we were erroneously conferring the BLUE RIBBON on Solomon as the grand CHAMPION sire of all time!

Which goes to show how outrageously post-Biblical history has been Bowdlerized of "low-downs" that might have made the earlier chronicles PERPETUAL best sellers.

Men were MEN in those days, gentle reader. And even MORE so in the CAVE days.

Chicago's reconstructed troglodytes, anthropometrically true to remains found in Alpine caverns, tell us how RADICALLY the human chassis has been redesigned, by mutation and environment, until Nature's PRESENT experiments begin to depart from the basic lines of such primitive models.

OUR carburation is immeasurably better. Evolution has equipped us with mental spark-plugs totally lacking in these super-grand-folk.

But we've lost most of their climbing capacity and fail to stand up under any considerable loads.

Easier living and devitalizing comforts are fast degenerating a machine that could once fetch and carry incredible burdens, suffer indefinite privation and slay carnivora with COBBLESTONES.

The toes, then as capable as the fingers, are already useless, atrophied members.

And the prognathous jaw, developed by tough and fibrous foods, whose impact stimulated the necessary circulation to produce perfect and enduring teeth, is shrinking so rapidly that room is now seldom provided for their proper formation.

THE race is threatened with fragile, retreating chins, in which weak, overlapping molars crowd through under-nourished gums.

Five million children, condemned to orthodental bands, signify the general substitution of pancakes, hot biscuits, hashes, stews and mushy vegetables for rough breadstuffs and sinewy meats that compel vigorous and protracted mastication and ALONE keep the blood stream on the job of furnishing bone and tooth substance.

Uncle Cro-Magnon didn't know the WHY of anything, but at least he knew HOW to avoid gold fillings, indigestion and the rickets.

If Dr. Jordan had only probed far enough back, we might have learned a lot about the Adamsons, of vastly more use than the devious and DOUBTFUL wendings of certain royal strains.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I HAVE an interesting friend. Most people say that he has had more bad luck than any man they know. I used to think so myself—and I blamed him, as did most of his friends, for he actually seemed to court misfortune through his unconventionality and love of adventure.

Trouble certainly camped on that man's trail. Three times in his life his business has failed and he had had to start over again. His wife left him—a nice girl, but her rigid, precise nature couldn't endure the nonconformist pattern of his mind. A canary mated to a hawk! His friends turned against him. He lost, at various times, pretty nearly everything a man has to lose, home, family, money, position, good name. You'd think that continued misfortune like that would break the fan—that he'd grow gun shy, duck for safety.

But it hasn't and he doesn't. At 53 this man is the most colorful individual I know and the youngest in spirit. He's free from fear, prejudices or resentments. He's an enthusiastic about life as a youngster—ambitious, energetic. And his career in spite of its various cataclysms, is booming through to amazing success.

HE HAS THRIVEN ON MISFORTUNE.

He makes me think of something I once heard Guy Earle say about the people of northern Europe. We were speaking of their amazing record of achievement in the face of adversity.

"They're called the Nordics," he said, "but they should be called the Driven Outs. They were literally driven out from one place after another, hated and harried. Other races settled down in warm climates and waxed plump and prosperous, but the northern blondes were continually on the move, in constant conflict with men and beasts, hunger and cold.

"They had all the bad breaks. And much of it was seemingly their own fault. There was a restlessness in them—they were always picking fights—they were always adventures. You wouldn't prophesy much of a future for a people like that. Yet look at the results. The comfortable people grew lazy and soft—lost their grip. But the harried Driven Outs surged ahead to the leadership of the world."

True, isn't it? You've seen it working out yourself in scores of lives.

Success and safety are fine things to talk about, but they're mighty dangerous in the long run. Once let an individual or a nation settle down and begin to accumulate bank rolls and double chins and the end's near.

LIFE DOESN'T PROSPER UNLESS IT KEEPS ON THE HOP.

Perhaps my friend has chosen the better part, after all, in preferring to be a Driven Out.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Thoughts Too Sweet

THERE are thoughts too sweet for the lips to touch,
Too precious for ears to hear,
Lest the world should babble them
overmuch
And render them thus less dear.

There are thoughts so rare that a word must take
Some share of their worth away;
There are thoughts so pure that a breath must make
say.

And these are the thoughts I send to you,
Never doubting their goal will be won,
They are thoughts of all things that are brave and true,
Of the fabric virtue spun.

Though we go without speech through the flying years,
Still our silence is wholly kind:
Too dear for laughter, too deep for tears . . .
What words could our longing find?

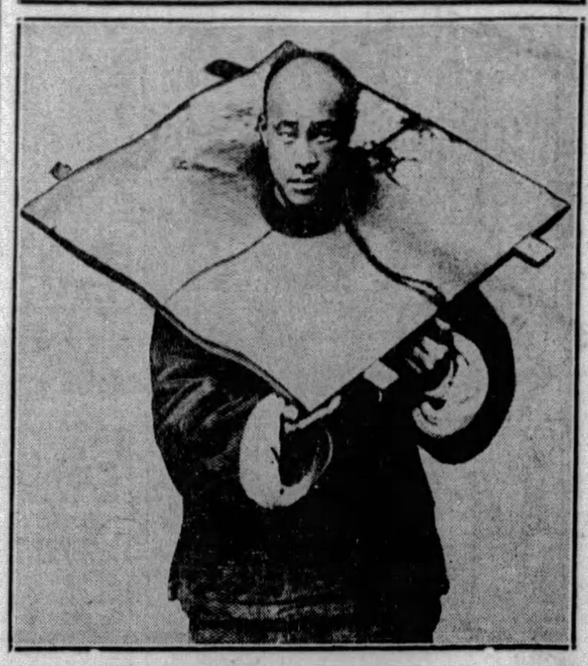
Chauffeurs, Attention

Things Might Be Worse.



CHINESE PUNISHMENT FOR SPEEDING.

American chauffeurs, especially those that earn a living by driving taxicabs, declare with much justice that they have cause to complain.

All kinds of regulations, well meant, intended to facilitate traffic and prevent congestion, COST THEM MONEY.

They can't go here; they can't go there. The speedometer works and makes money for them only while their car is MOVING.

And to keep a car moving in a modern city is about as difficult as it was for Sisyphus to finish his stone-rolling job.

The American chauffeur must take out insurance at his own expense. He must be held up and robbed by bandits occasionally, or compelled at the point of a pistol to assist them in their crime.

When the chauffeur appears in court he often feels that he gets a short hearing and that his word doesn't amount to much as against that of another American citizen dressed in blue.

This picture of Chinese punishment for a speeding chauffeur is printed to comfort the American chauffeur.

How would you like, Mr. Chauffeur, to have the judge say: "Sentenced to walk around town for two weeks with the movable stocks fastened to your neck, and to KEEP MOVING!"

Things might be worse.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 28.—Thoughts while strolling: Moon-faced men who part their hair in the middle. Glenn Hunter, dean of the adolescent actors. Haughty French cafes that make you long for a mess of greens, turnip tops and wild mustard. The fellow who invented paper milk bottles.

Slow gaited window shoppers who talk like characters in a Sinclair Lewis novel. Sign: "Just a good old place to eat." John Golden's fancy golf togs. The uniformed scissors grinder and his motor car. Self-conscious ladies promenading in riding habits. Paul Block.

Timid souls who shy around the red dynamite carts. "Muggsy" McGraw's hair almost snow white. A movie house features silent pictures for the deaf. Nothing so pathetic as a stalled fire wagon. Closing shows offering "the previous engagement" alibi. Ethel Barrymore and her daughter.

The new taxis with the black-shirted drivers. Bus top kidders. Hatless boys with swishing walks. Whoops! The venerable Second avenue doctors who still drive around in horse drawn buggies. One of the old Hatfield feudists now a night watchman. Remember Devil Anse? Pierre V. R. Key, the music critic.

What became of the juggling vaudeville crow? Isaac F. Marcossen, a Louisville (Ky.) boy who made good in the city. And whose shirts and ties suggest an aurora borealis gone wrong. The hotel that boasts of a crystal lined bathtub. Cab drivers with faces like blurred cabbages.

Those gay elevated newsstand displays. Bright jacketed magazines. Racing tip posters. Green and pink extras. Clarence Budington Kelland. Known to the literati as "Bud." President of the Dutch Treat Club. And the most prolific of magazine scribblers. Sulka's, the swank haberdashery, where all employes begin as package boys.

The bright flower boxes in Helen Gould's windows. And just a half dozen old avenue homes with dignity but no ostentation. Will Hays leaving the Ritz Tower, where he lives. Never see anybody in New York "just puttering around." The new color in men's shirts—egg shell mauve. Well, I'll be dogged!

Central Park is becoming dangerous for peaceful wayfarers. Hoodlums set upon old men, yank their beards, stone them and have held up, beaten and robbed young boys and girls. Old ladies, nurses and dogs have also been attacked.

For some time, too, Upper Central Park West, beyond Eightieth, has been particularly lawless. Young apaches have been rocking pedestrians and automobiles from the rocky cliffs of the park. Many families are seeking to break their leases to get away from the neighborhood. When a New York kid becomes tough, he has no equal in the world.

And Columbus Circle has lost many of its familiar soap-box orators. For years the police permitted malcontents to blow off steam there. It was a free nightly show, but when subway excavations began two years ago the hot gospelers scattered. It is ship shape again, but the orators have not returned.

* * *

One of the male salamanders discovers that soft-soaping ladies about their weight is unfailing in inciting free dinner. He always greets them with: "You have grown shockingly thin!" Those who have ballooned a few kilos never forget him at dinner parties. They like a fellow like that around.

* * *

A man unknown to the headwaiter in a Park avenue restaurant has lunched there every week day for seven years and never bestowed a tip. Here's my nickel toward a monument.

Blase note: The way I learned there was a fire on the top floor of the hotel where I live the other day was through Harry Acton, Verne Porter and Leo March telephoning the news from the lobby.

But the utter pinnacle of metropolitan blaseosity—what's wrong with that word?—has been achieved by a doorman on Park avenue near Forty-seventh street who calls a hall boy to open the doors of taxis. He attends only to limousines.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

YOU know that you have certain peculiarities which are not pleasing.

You feel that it is not worth the effort trying to control them.

You know that they don't add to the reputation you are trying to establish for being a person of decided opinions—not afraid to express them.

You give them sway because you don't want to feel hampered personally.

You wonder that you have so few friends.

You are surprised when friends you have seem to drop you for a while.

You feel that those who are really your friends would overlook on the grounds of friendship anything that you do which they dislike.

You are putting your friends to a test too great, although to an extent those who like you well enough do make allowance when others would not.

You can find friends who are congenial most of the time.

You can't find anyone who will put up with your moments of idiosyncrasies all the time, and that is what you are after.

You will find life is too short, and that is what the one you seek as a friend thinks—life is too short to spend it trying to overlook annoying things.

Why not look yourself over with an idea of correcting your faults?

Your friends will like you better and you will bring about an improvement in yourself.
